

INNĀ NĀRPATU, INYAVAINĀRPATU KĀR NĀRPATU, KĀLAVALĪNĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English Verse and Prose

Compiled and Edited by

P. RAJA

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

INNĀ NĀRPATU, INIYAVAI NĀRPATU
KĀR NĀRPATU, KĀLAVALI NĀRPATU

INNĀ NĀR̥PATU, INIYAVAINĀR̥PATU KĀR NĀR̥PATU, KĀLAVALINĀR̥PATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English Verse and Prose

Compiled and Edited by
P. RAJA

Translators
S. Raman, Poet Desini,
Nalladai R. Balakrishna Mudaliyar

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI
2012

Ancient Tamil Classics in Translation Series

INNĀ NĀRPATU

CICT Publication No. 17

ISBN: 978-93-81744-06-2

INIYAVAI NĀRPATU

CICT Publication No. 18

ISBN: 978-93-81744-07-9

KĀR NĀRPATU

CICT Publication No. 19

ISBN: 978-93-81744-08-6

KALAVALI NĀRPATU

CICT Publication No. 20

ISBN: 978-93-81744-09-3

© Central Institute of Classical Tamil, Chennai

First published 2012

Published by

Central Institute of Classical Tamil

Chennai 600 005

Price Rs. 200/- (US – $6)

Typeset by

Central Institute of Classical Tamil, Chennai

Printed by

Government of India Press, Coimbatore – 641 019
Tamil Nadu, India.

Dr. D. PURANDESWARI

Minister of State for Human Resource Development

Shastri Bhavan, NEW DELHI – 110 001

Vice-Chairman

Central Institute of Classical Tamil, CHENNAI

FOREWORD

The Tamils may justly be proud of the fact that Tamil has won the status of a Classical language, the status it richly deserves and should have got long, long ago. The Central Institute of Classical Tamil (CICT), established in Chennai, has mapped out various plans including preparation of definitive editions of forty-one Classical Tamil texts and translation of these works into English and other major European languages as well as into major Indian languages and writing of a historical grammar of Tamil. Language being the autobiography of a people, our objective is to preserve and safeguard the invaluable treasure of the literary compositions in our language. If only we could delve into our past and recover the riches and wealth of the mighty treasure trove of Classical Tamil poetry, we will be amply rewarded by its lofty poetry, the poetry that strengthens and purifies the holiness of heart's affection and enlarges our imagination. Apart from these, reading the ancient Tamil texts such as Tolkāppiyam, Eṭṭuttokai, Pattuppāṭṭu, Tirukkural etc., provides a foundation for scholarship for the present and in this sense they do provide enlightened education.

It is heartening to write this foreword to the series of publications brought out by CICT, which I am sure, will do full justice to the masterpieces in Tamil without compromising on the quality of production. The Caṅkam corpus being a repository of our glorious culture, it behoves our present and future generations to study them and to convey their message and the vision of life embodied in them to the public at large. Let me, therefore, commend the series to the enlightened beings the world over.

Sd/-

(D. PURANDESWARI)

PREFACE

This volume is a collection of four different, but allied, anthologies of lyrics composed by four poets. These poems – Inṇā Nārpatu, Iniyavai Nārpatu, Kār Nārpatu and Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu – form a part of a large group of poems called Paṭiṇṇēṇkīḷkkaṇakku which belong to the later Sangam period. These are supposed to be didactic in nature, teaching the public the rights and duties of citizenship by offering moral precepts and conduct on which to base our life, thereby laying a foundation for a good and healthy society. It ought not to be understood that these poems merely preach; there are poems which talk of the exploits of soldiers, battles fought valiantly for saving the reputation of their homeland, and extremely fine-tuned love-lyrics. The twin functions of genuine poetry are delight and instruction (dulce et utile) and the lyrics in this volume stand ample testimony to it.

The present volume aims to bring out such of these riches to the non-Tamil audience by means of translations: two in verse and one in prose. It is hoped that this will go a long way in spreading the glory and grandeur of the Tamil language and Tamil people.

I am thankful to the Department of Translations of the Institute and the Publications Division for the efforts they took in coordinating the work leading to the publication of this handy, attractive volume. The Hon'ble Minister of State for Human Resource Development and Vice-Chairman of the Central Institute for Classical Tamil has written the foreword which lends grace to this present volume. I am indeed most happy to express my sincere thanks and gratitude to her.

Chennai
20-07-2012

R. GNANAMOORTHY
Director

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Central Institute of Classical Tamil acknowledges, with thanks, the contribution of the authors of the translations included in this volume.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

From time immemorial man has been fascinated by stories and songs – the two ways of expressing one's thought. Like every other nation, the nation of the Tamils was enamoured of songs and stories. The Tamils had a song for every occasion. They had a proverb to tell now and then which usually encapsulated a story or a legend. Since stories needed greater attention and better understanding, the Tamil folk resorted more to songs for they were aware that the music embedded in them would make their listeners rivet their attention to the song's content. Perhaps that was the reason why there was a song for every celebration – marriage songs that sang highly of the union of the two souls, erotic songs that whispered of the union of the body, lullabies that lulled the child in the cradle into sleep, workers' songs that lessened the monotony of their labour, songs of joy to enjoy their leisure, and finally mourning songs in praise of the dead.

To the poets all things on earth are grist to their ever grinding mill. Anything serious or funny inspires them and they are ready to burst with a song. What the storytellers did through their stories and legends, the poets did through their poems and songs. That is to say they not only entertained but also instructed. And this is what we call 'Tamil Wisdom'.

Be it war or love, the two major themes in ancient Tamil Literature, the poets sang of them with equal ease and showed their calibre in many verse forms. The sculptures we come across in the ancient temples of the Tamils serve ample testimony to the fact that the Tamils were good at the battlefield.

The earliest available work in Tamil, Tolkāppiyam, throws light on the life of the Tamils in the Tamil country. And the ancient Tamils classified the subject (Poruḷ) of their literature under two general headings – Akam and Puraṁ.

In fact, Poruḷ signifying the substance or the subject of any literary composition occupies a unique place in the Tamil language. The first of its two main aspects, Akam, meaning the internal or subjective, deals with psychology in all its aspects of love with footnotes on its varied emotions, incidents and accidents. To say that it depicts the relationship between lovers is no exaggeration, which may in many cases extend to their pillow talk. Puram is objective and deals with a plethora of aspects of human society primarily of war and the martial exploits of the people.

While it is true that most of the works that belong to the Caṅkam period made their stress either on love or on war, it is also true that these works made passing references to the ethical values of life. Some touch upon the rules or principles of behaviour. Yet, Tamil scholars unanimously agree that no work belonging to the Caṅkam period is completely devoted to ethics.

For the first time, in the whole gamut of Tamil Literature, one comes across works purposely written to show man the right path and put him on the right track. Such works are found in the purposefully read anthology, popularly known as Paṭiṇēṅkīlkkāṇakku meaning Eighteen Minor classics. Paṭi-ṇēṅ-kīl k āṇakku is listed along with the other two anthologies, viz, Pattuppāṭṭu (Ten Idylls) and Eṭṭut-tokai (Eight collections). Of these three eminent anthologies, Pattuppāṭṭu and Eṭṭut-tokai belong to the Caṅkam period, while the Paṭi-ṇēṅ-kīl k āṇakku works belong to a later period. Some scholars believe that the latter also belongs to the Caṅkam period.

During the period of Buddhist and Jain glory, courtiers and scholars preferred to write in Pali, Prakrit and Sanskrit languages (as it is done in English today) with the ulterior motive of carrying their message to the learned world of that day. And the Tamil poets too showed their interest in their ethical principles true to the spirit of the times. And the result was an anthology of eighteen minor didactic works.

1. Puram (War Poetry)

Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu deals with the battlefield action and the author revels in images of slaughter and of the flow of blood.

2. Akam (Love Poetry)

Five Poems dealing with the Tiṇais (environments) viz. a) Ain-tiṇai-Aimpatu, b) Ain-tiṇai-Eḷupatu, c) Tiṇai-mōḷi-Aimpatu d) Tiṇai-mālai-nūrru-Aimpatu and e) Kainnilai, Inṇilai, and one titled Kār-Nārpatu, altogether six.

3. Aram (Didactic Poetry)

Eleven works treat chiefly of ethics and social conventions, both of which are usually inseparable. They are: a) Nālaṭiyār b) Paḷamoli c) Inṇā Nārpatu d) Iniyavai Nārpatu e) Nāṇmaṇikkaṭikai f) Tirikaṭukam g) Ācārakkōvai h) Cirupaṇcamūlam i) Ēlāti j) Mutumoḷik-Kāñci, and k) Tirukkural.

As literature is the mirror of the age, these works throw ample light on the everyday life of the ancient Tamils. They are records of our past, for the Akam works talk at length of the Tamils' love life and the Puram works of their valour. And the Aram works simply speak of the glory of the Tamils who preached their lofty thoughts to the world and tried to live what they had preached. In short these great effusions from the great minds of yore are the real time-machines that catapult us to the past and make us see for ourselves the culture of our ancestors.

Four of these eighteen works – Inṇā Nārpatu, Iniyavai Nārpatu, Kār Nārpatu and Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu – are usually grouped together under a common title Nānārpatu, meaning Four Forties. There is nothing in common among these four works except that each of them contains forty venpā stanzas excluding the invocation. Written by different authors at different times, no two of these four speak of the same subject. As classified earlier Poykaiyar's Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu (Battlefield Forty) belongs to Puram poetry, while Madurai Kannan Koothanar's Kār Nārpatu (Monsoon Forty) belongs to Akam poetry. The rest, Pūtan Chenthanar's Iniyavai Nārpatu (Delectable Forty) and Kapilar's Inṇā Nārpatu (Unpleasant Forty) belong to didactic poetry, though the former means what is all pleasant in life and the latter what are all unpleasant.

The Forty verses of Kār Nārpatu talk of the rainy season. The heroine of these verses anxiously awaits the arrival of her hero who had gone away on business, but promised to return at the beginning of the rainy season. The appointed time came but there was no sign of the hero's coming. Through realistic and lovely similes, the arrival of the rainy season with the beauty of the seasonal fresh blooms of the pastoral lands is admirably portrayed. Love-sickness, misunderstanding of the lady-love, her friend's words of comfort, and the dutiful lover with his lady-love still on the back of his mind, with a pinch of eroticism all these make this work highly readable.

Kaḷavaḷi Nāṛpatu gives a graphic picture of a typical battlefield, with an accent on the ephemeral nature of the world in accordance with the tradition of the age. The Chōla King Kōcceaṅkaṇān, the proud possessor of the perennial river kāviri, a high resounding war drum, and a valiant army defeats his foe, a Chēra King, and emerges victorious at a place called kaḷumalam. Packed with similes, the poems describe the bloody field, the beasts, the drum and the soldiers. At times humorous, at times funny depending upon the situation, the poet raises a doubt in us, that is to say, if there is any other war poem in world literature wherein its poet reveals through comedy a revolting and horrible battlefield.

Iṇṇā Nāṛpatu and Iṇiyavai Nāṛpatu contain constantly quoted verses for both the works speak of the ways of the world and also give friendly advice. The first enumerates the things that cause pain and thereby disappointment and the second lists the things that are supposed to yield abiding pleasures to humanity.

In short, each of these works, is a conglomeration of life in all its aspects. Full of amiable and amicable suggestions with apt and lovely images, this work speaks of the grandeur of the Tamils and their lofty thoughts, creating in the mind of the reader, in a new way, pen pictures without his knowing that he is reading poetry.

The translators of these works are S. Raman (Verse translation No. 1), Poet Desini (Verse translation No. 2) and Nalladai R. Balakrishna Mudaliyar (Prose translation No. 3).

These four individual works are presented in a single volume for the purpose of making them appear impressive in a book with reasonable thickness and elegance in conformity with the other CICT publications of this series.

A SYSTEM OF TRANSLITERATION OF TAMIL

Vowels

Short

அ	a
இ	i
உ	u
எ	e
ஓ	o

Long

ஆ	ā
ஈ	ī
ஊ	ū
ஏ	ē
ஔ	ō

ஐ ai

ஔ au

Consonants

Hard

க	k
ச	c
ட	ṭ
த	t
ப	p
ற	r

Soft

ங	ṅ
ஞ	ñ
ண	ṇ
ந	n
ம்	m
ன்	ṇ

Medial

ய	y
ர	r
ல்	l
வ்	v
ழ்	ḷ
ள்	ḷ

Āytam

ஃ k

CONTENTS

Foreword	v
Preface	vii
Acknowledgement	ix
General Introduction	xi
A System of Transliteration of Tamil	xv

INNĀ NĀRPATU 1

Introduction	5
Text, transliteration and translations	7
Mutaṛkuṛippakarāti	41

INIYAVAI NĀRPATU 45

Introduction	49
Text, transliteration and translations	51
Mutaṛkuṛippakarāti	85

KĀR NĀRPATU 89

Introduction	93
Text, transliteration and translations	97
Mutaṛkuṛippakarāti	137

KALĀVALI NĀRPATU 141

Introduction	145
Text, transliteration and translations	147
Mutaṛkuṛippakarāti	193
Glossary of Culture-specific Terms	197

INNĀ NĀRPATU

In English Verse and Prose

INNĀ NĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English Verse and Prose

Compiled and Edited by
P. RAJA

Translators
S. Raman, Poet Desini
Nalladai R. Balakrishna Mudaliyar

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

2012

Ancient Tamil Classics in Translation Series

INNĀ NĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English

© Central Institute of Classical Tamil, Chennai

CICT Publication No. 17

First published 2012

Published by

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

ISBN: 978-93-81744-06-2

Typeset by

Central Institute of Classical Tamil

Printed by

Government of India Press, Coimbatore – 641 019
Tamil Nadu, India.

INTRODUCTION

The Tamil word Innā means woe. What are all the things that bring woe to humanity? The list stretches like the proverbial Hanuman's tail. But 164 instances causing suffering to human beings are chosen and put together by the poet in 41 venpā stanzas including the first stanza devoted to 'invocation'. As a result each stanza deals with four maxims and the word Innā getting repeated four times in all the verses of this work. Each of the first three maxims closes with the word Inna while the last maxim begins with the word Inna. And that is Kapilar's Innā Nārpatu.

Tamil literary historians and critics debate over the number of poets down the ages who wrote in the name of Kapilar and since they could not exactly fix the age in which Innā Nārpatu was written, everything was left to surmise. Kapilar of the Caṅkam period is not the one who wrote Innā Nārpatu.

Eating flesh was no taboo to the famous Kapilar of the Caṅkam period. But the latter hated eating flesh and also preached that it was sinful to kill and eat flesh for fattening one's own flesh.

Every venpā of Innā Nārpatu focuses on four different characteristic features that bring in woe from the moral point of view. While Pūtan Chentānar's Iniyavai Nārpatu tells what is good for men, Kapilar's Innā Nārpatu tells what is bad for men. In short, both the works are companion pieces and are so well balanced that they form a 'duo' in Tamil literature.

Woes to commoners apart, several kinds of woes are mentioned to the ruling class too. Woe betide the king who is not blessed with elephants. Woe to the king travelling on elephant without tinkling bells. Woe unto the king who tyrannizes the common people and woe unto the king, coward at heart, to wage war.

The selective list of woes hits the nail on the head and it is a great success to its author.

It must be mentioned in passing that there is no continuity of thought in these 41 innicai venpās. Written in an easy to understand style, which is rare to come across but a must in didactic poetry, a few ideas get repeated. This is not due to oversight but with the intention of stressing the point so that it gets easily stuck in our mind.

6 Inṇā Nāṛpatu

Lofty thoughts are given in a nutshell here. And a later work by name Vīra cōḷiyam reveals its indebtedness to Inṇā Nāṛpatu by profusely quoting from its text.

INNĀ NĀRPATU

கடவுள் வாழ்த்து

முக்கட் பகவ னடிதொழா தார்க்கின்னா
பொற்பனை வெள்ளையை யுள்ளா தொழுகின்னா
சக்கரத் தானை மறப்பின்னா வாங்கின்னா
சத்தியான றாடொழா தார்க்கு.

Kaṭavul Vālttu

mukkaṭ pakava naṭitolā tārkkinnā porpanai vellaiyai yullā tolukinnā cakkarat tānai marappinnā vāṅkinnā cattiyāṇ rāṭolā tārkkū.

INVOCATION

1. Grief unto those who worship not the feet of the three-eyed god (Lord Siva)
Grief unto those who live without thinking on the white god of the golden palm flag
(Lord Balarama)
Grief unto those who forget the god of the wheel
(Lord Vishnu), Likewise
Grief unto those who worship not the feet of the god of the spear (Lord Muruga).
2. It would cause misery to those who do not worship Lord Siva, the Destructor Who has three-eyes;
It would cause misery to those who do not think of Lord Balarama Who has the golden palmyra for His ensign;
Forgetting to pray to Lord Vishnu, the Preserver Who has the discus, would cause misery;

And it would cause misery to those who do not submit at the Sacred Feet of Lord Muruga Who has javelin.

3. It will bring misfortune to one who does not worship the feet of the three-eyed God Siva; it will spell grief to one who does not meditate on Balarama, the owner of the lovely palm flag; it will be disastrous to forget Vishnu, the God with the disc; so too, it will bring grief to those who worship not the feet of God Muruga of the deadly spear.

1. பந்தமில் லாத மனையின் வனப்பின்னா தந்தையில் லாத புதல்வ னழகின்னா
அந்தண ரில்லிருந் தூணின்னா வாங்கின்னா மந்திரம் வாயா விடின.

pantamil lāta maṇaiyiṇ vaṇappinnā tantaiyil lāta putalva ṇalakiṇṇā antaṇa rillirun tūṇiṇṇā vāṇkiṇṇā mantiram vāyā viṭiṇ.

1. Wretched is the beauty of a home without kith and kin.
Wretched the handsome virtues of a sireless son.
Wretched for an ascetic to stay and eat in one house.
Likewise,
Wretched the charm that yields no result.
2. Any elegance of domestic life without having the company of kindred, would cause misery;
The mere handsomeness sans any learning of a fatherless son, would cause misery;
Staying in a house and taking food, on the part of ascetics,
would cause misery;
And should the incantations not give the desired effect,
then it would cause misery.
3. The loneliness of the wife devoid of love from her husband is grievous; the beauty of the son who has lost his father brings grief; eating of food by ascetics staying at home is unpleasant; so too, if words of the wise bear no fruit, it is painful.

2. பார்ப்பாரிற் கோழியும் நாயும் புகலின்னா ஆர்த்த மனைவி யடங்காமை நன்கின்னா பாத்தில் புடவை யுடையின்னா வாங்கின்னா
காப்பாற்றா வேந்த னுலகு.

pārppārīr kōliyum nāyum pukalinnā ārtta manāivi yaṭaṅkāmai naṅkinṇā pāṭṭil puṭavai yuṭaiyiṇṇā vāṅkinṇā kāppārrā vēnta nūlaku.

1. Grief to fowl and dog entering a brahmin's house,
Great grief – the disobedience of one's wedded wife,
Grief, the wearing of sari with disproportionate pleats,
Likewise,
Grief to the land unprotected by a sovereign.
2. Entry of a nasty hen or dog into the house of Brahmins,
would cause misery;
The non-submissiveness of a termagant wife
to her husband, would cause misery;
Wearing garments which do not befit the couple,
would cause misery;
And the reign of a Ruler who does not protect his subjects,
would cause misery.
3. The entry of the cock or hen and the dog into a parppar's house is unpleasant; the disobedience to her husband of the woman taken to wife is greatly painful; the wearing of a single cloth, without any for a change is painful; so also living in the town of a king who protects not his subjects brings in grief.

3. கொடுங்கோல் மறமன்னர் கீழ்வாழ்த லின்னா
நெடுநீர் புணையின்றி நீந்துத லின்னா
கடுமொழி யாளர் தொடர்பின்னா வின்னா தடுமாறி வாழ்த லுயிர்க்கு.

koṭuṅkōl maramannar kīlvāṭta liṇṇā neṭunīr puṇaiyiṇṇi nīntuta liṇṇā kaṭumoli yālar toṭarpinṇā viṇṇā taṭumāri vāṭta luyirkku.

1. Wretched to live under tyrannous kings murderous.
Wretched to swim long waters without a floating raft.
Wretched the relationship with men of violent words.
And wretched,
For all alive, living in adversity.
2. Living under the Reign of Terror of a despot who fails in his justice, would cause misery;
Crossing the waters without using a vessel,
would cause misery;
Any connection with those who are accustomed to utter harsh words, would cause misery;
And living in a perplexed condition, would cause misery
to a human being.
3. Living under the rule of murderous tyrant kings is grievous;
to swim across rivers in floods without a float is painful;
friendship with those who utter harsh words is unpleasant;
for people to live in adversity is grievous.

4. எருதி லுழவர்க்குப் போகீர மின்னா கருவிகண் மாறிப் புறங்கொடுத்த லின்னா
திருவுடை யாரைச் செறலின்னா வின்னா பெருவலியார்க் கின்னா செயல்.

eruti luḷavarkkup pōkīra miṇṇā karuvikaṇ mārip puraṅkoṭutta liṇṇā tiruvuṭai yāraic ceraliṇṇā vinnā peruvaliyārk kinṇā ceyal.

1. For farmers without bulls, the wet soil is grief.
For regiments, to lose heart and run away is grief.
Grievous to antagonize the fortunate rich.
And grievous,
Doing harm to the mighty and strong.
2. The wetness of land not made use of, would cause misery to cultivators who don't have ploughing ox;
Any turning back of armed forces being discomfited,
would likewise cause misery;

Any open hatred towards those who are good and prosperous, would cause misery;
Any doing evil deed to those who are more powerful,
would cause misery.

3. For the tiller without bullocks (oxen) the drying up of the wet soil is painful; the turning and fleeing of an army routed is distressful; to show one's anger against the rich will land one in trouble; to do evil to the greatly valiant will prove disastrous.

5. சிறையில் கரும்பினைக் காத்தோம்ப வின்னா உறைசேர் பழங்கூரை சேர்ந்தொழுக வின்னா
முறையின்றி யானு மரசின்னா வின்னா மறையின்றிச் செய்யும் வினை.

ciraiyil karumpinaik kättōmpa linṇā uraicēr paḷaṅkūrai cērntoluka linṇā muraiyīnri yāḷu maraciṇṇā vinṇā maraiyīnric ceyyum viṇai.

1. Hard to guard and save a crop of sugarcane in a fenceless field.
Hard to dwell under an old roof leaking in the rain.
Hard the land governed by a lawless king.
And hard,
The action undertaken without forethought and consultation.
2. Guarding and taking care of sugar-cane crop which does not have any fence, would cause misery;
Staying and living in an old hut where rain-drops fall,
would cause misery;
Reign of a State which does not render justice to its subjects, would cause misery;
And any act done in secret without prior deliberation,
would cause misery.
3. To guard a crop of sugarcane in a fenceless field is painful; to reside in an old leaky-roofed hut is vilesome; the unrighteous rule of a king is grievous; to do a thing without due consideration will be courting trouble.

6. அறமனத்தார் கூறுங் கடுமொழியு மின்னா மறமனத்தார் ஞாட்பின் மடிந்தொழுக வின்னா
இடும்பை யுடையார் கொடையின்னா வின்னா
கொடும்பா டுடையார்வாய்ச் சொல்.

aramanattār kūruṅ kaṭumoliyu minṇā maramanattār ṇāṭṭiṇ maṭintoluka linṇā iṭumpai yuṭaiyār koṭaiyiṇṇā viṇṇā koṭumpā ṭuṭaiyārvāyc col.

1. Painful the words of anger from the righteous of heart.
Painful the abstinence from the field for the courageous of heart.
Painful the lavish gifts of the poor.
And painful,
The words from the mouth of the wicked-natured.
2. Any rare uttering of angry words by the virtuous,
would cause misery;
It would cause misery, should the men of military exploits
sloth in the battle-field;
If those who are in distress offer gifts to others,
it would cause misery;
And any word which comes from the mouth of those who have an evil heart, would cause misery.
3. Even the harsh words of those who are of a charitable disposition are painful; for the valourous, to keep idle in the field of battle is disastrous; the benevolence of the indigent is grievous; the words of the cruel are painful.

7. ஆற்ற மிலாதான் பிடித்த படையின்னா
நாற்ற மிலாத மலரி னழகின்னா
தேற்ற மிலாதான் றுணிவின்னா வாங்கின்னா மாற்ற மறியா னுரை.

ārṛa lilātāṇ piṭitta paṭaiyiṇṇā nārṛa milāta malari ṇalakiṇṇā tērṛa milātāṇ ruṇiviṇṇā vāṅkiṇṇā mārṛa maṛiyā nurai.

1. Wretched the weapon wielded by the weak.
Wretched the beauty of a flower of no fragrance.
Wretched the resolution of an undiscerning fool.
Wretched, likewise,
The commentaries of the unlearned.
2. Any weapon in the hands of one who is bereft of powers
would cause misery;
Mere elegance of a flower which does not have fragrance
would cause misery;
The temerity of one who is having no certainty over a thing
would cause misery;
And any word uttered by one who doesn't know its import
would cause misery.
3. The weapon held by a warrior who is not brave is a source of grief for him; the loveliness of a flower which has no fragrance is not sweet; the launching of a project by one who is not clearheaded brings grief in its fold; so too the words of a man who is ignorant of the manner in which he should talk cause grief.

8. பகல்போலு நெஞ்சத்தார் பண்பின்மை யின்னா
நகையாய நண்பினார் நாரின்மை யின்னா இகலி னெழுந்தவ ரோட்டின்னா வின்னா நயமின் மனத்தவர் நட்பு.

pakalpōlu neñcattār paṇpinmai yiṇṇā nakaiyāya naṇpiṇār nāriṇmai yiṇṇā ikali neluntava rōṭṭiṇṇā viṇṇā nayamiṇ maṇattavar naṭpu.

1. Painful the lack of culture in hearts open as day.
Painful the lack of affection in smiling friends.
Painful the running away of warriors in the field.
And painful,
The friendship of men of hypocritical heart.
2. It would cause misery, if one though being a man of equity like the Author of the Day, does not possess good quality; Any outward friendship of a giglet who does not have sincere love, would cause misery;

Turning the back when routed at the battle-field,
would cause misery;
And any amity with one who is devoid of rectitude,
would also cause misery.

3. It will be distressful if men of equity lack culture; smiling friends lacking love are a source of grief; it will be distressing to find warriors turning and fleeing from the field of battle; friendship with those who are not fair minded is grievous.

9. கள்ளில்லா மூதூர் களிகட்டு நன்கின்னா
வள்ளல்க ளின்மை பரிசிலர்க்கு முன்னின்னா
வண்மை யிலாளர் வனப்பின்னா வாங்கின்னா பண்ணில் புரவிப் பறிப்பு.

kaḷḷillā mūtūr kaḷikaṭku nankinnā vaḷḷalka ḷiṇmai paricilarkku munṇinṇā vaṇmai yilāḷar vaṇappinṇā vāṅkinṇā paṇṇil puravip parippu.

1. Doleful to the drunkard the hoary village toddyless.
Doleful to the beneficiary the absence of benefactors.
Doleful the comeliness of uncharitable misers.
Doleful, likewise,
To mount and ride on an unsaddled horse.
2. A toddy-free town would cause misery to the habitual drunkards of old town;
Non-existence of patrons would cause much hardship to the panegyrist-solicitors of bounty;
Any elegant appearance of those who don't have the quality of liberality, won't be appreciated;
And the bearing of persons by a saddle-less horse, would likewise cause misery.
3. It will be greatly painful for drunkards if the ancient town they live in lacks toddy; it will be highly distressing to donors if there be no munificent men; the beauty of those who lack benevolence is painful; so too the ride on a horse without bridle is a source of pain.

10. பொருளுணர்வா ரில்வழிப் பாட்டுரைத்த வின்னா இருள்கூர் சிறுநெறி தாந்தனிப்போக் கின்னா
அருளில்லார் தங்கட் செலவின்னா வின்னா
பொருளில்லார் வண்மை புரிவு.

poruḷuṇarvā rilvalip pāṭṭuraitta liṇṇā irulkūr ciruneri tāntanippōk kinṇā aruḷillār taṅkaṭ celaviṇṇā viṇṇā poruḷillār vaṇmai purivu.

1. Doleful to compose poems where there's none to appreciate.
Doleful to travel alone down narrow paths in darkness.
Doleful to seek help from the hard-hearted.
And doleful,
The display of lavish gifts by the indigent.
2. Where there are no learned to appreciate any recital of a poem composed by one, it would cause misery;
Travelling alone in a dark and narrow way,
would cause misery;
Proceeding to solicit bounty from the merciless people,
would only cause misery;
And any desire of the have-nots to bestow gifts to others,
would cause misery.
3. To compose songs and sing in a place where there is not any who can appreciate the beauty and meaning thereof is painful; to go all alone through narrow paths in pitch darkness is grievous; it will be painful for the needy to approach the unmunificent; it is painful for those lacking means to be liberal-minded.

11. உடம்பா டில்லாத மனைவிதோ ளின்னா இடனில் சிறியாரோ டியாத்தநண் பின்னா
இடங்கழி யாளர் தொடர்பின்னா வின்னா கடனுடையார் காணப் புகல்.

uṭampā ṭillāta manaivitō liṇṇā iṭaṇil ciriyārō ṭiyāttanaṇ pinṇā iṭaṅkaḷi yālar toṭarpinṇā viṇṇā kaṭanuṭaiyār kāṇap pukal.

1. Miserable the shoulders of an unconsenting wife.
Miserable the friendship forged with the narrow-minded.
Miserable the company of the excessively lustful.
And miserable,
To enter the eyes of a creditor.
2. Embracing the shoulders of the wife who is not concordial,
would cause misery;
Any friendship with the base people who have no broadmindedness, would cause misery;
Keeping company with the lascivious persons,
would cause misery;
And going before the creditor,
would cause misery to a debtor.
3. Embracing the shoulders of an unloving wife is distress-ful; the friendship contracted with the mean minded is a source of grief; association with libertines is grievous; for the debtor creditor is painful.

12. தலைதண்ட மாகச் சுரம்போத லின்னா வலைசுமந் துண்பான் பெருமித மின்னா
புலையுள்ளி வாழ்த லுயிர்க்கின்னா வின்னா
முலையில்லாள் பெண்மை விழைவு.

talaitaṇṭa mākaṣ curampōta linṇā valaicuman tuṇpāṇ perumita miṇṇā pulaiyulli vāṭa luyirkkiṇṇā vinṇā mulaiyillāḷ peṇmai vīḷaivu.

1. Miserable to sojourn in an impenetrably thick forest.
Miserable the pride of one who lives by carrying nets.
Miserable the life that lives on life, eating flesh.
And miserable,
For the breastless one to aspire for womanhood.
2. Going alone thro' a desert tract, would miserably cost one one's head at the hands of hunters;
The vanity of one who lives on the netting of birds and beasts, would only be a miserable and sinful act;

The beastly desire to live on animal food, would affect the life of such people miserably;
And any sexual yearning of a woman who does not have robust breast, would only result in misery!

3. It is grievous to go through the wilderness at the risk of one's life; the vain glory of the man who lives by carrying the net is painful; it is distressing for lives if people live hankering after flesh-eating; for a breastless woman to long for the pleasure of womanhood is painful.

13. மணியிலாக் குஞ்சரம் வேந்தூர்த லின்னா துணிவில்லார் சொல்லுந் தறுகண்மை யின்னா
பணியாத மன்னர்ப் பணிவின்னா வின்னா பிணியன்னார் வாழு மனை.

maṇiyilāk kuñcaram vēntūrta liṇṇā tuṇivillār collun tarukaṇmai yinṇā paṇiyāta maṇṇarp paṇivinnā vinṇā piṇiyaṇṇār vāḷu maṇai.

1. Miserable for a king to ride on an elephant without bells.
Miserable for the unvalorous to speak of bravery.
Miserable to worship kings unworthy of veneration.
And miserable,
The home with a pestilence-like wife.
2. It would cause misery to people, should the king ride on an elephant which doesn't carry ringing bells;
The words of bravery uttered by swaggerers who don't have boldness to conquer enemies, would cause misery; Submitting to an enemy-king who does not deserve to be respected, would definitely cause misery;
And the home of a termagant wife who is like a disease,
would cause misery.
3. For the king to ride on an elephant which has no bell (hanging on its sides to announce the royal ride) is painful; the valorous words of the coward are sources of pain; bowing before an unworthy king is distressing; the house where lives a wife who is a veritable disease to her husband is a place of grief.

14. வணரொலி யைம்பாலார் வஞ்சித்த லின்னா துணர்தூங்கு மாவின் படுபழமின்னா
புணர்பாவை யன்னார் பிரிவின்னா வின்னா உணர்வா ருணராக் கடை.

vaṇaroli yaimpālār vañcitta liṇṇā tuṇartūṅku māviṇ paṭupaḷaminṇā puṇarpāvai yaṇṇār pirivinnā viṇṇā uṇarvā ruṇarāk kaṭai.

1. Falsehood of women of hair done in five-fold style is miserable.
The rotten mango fallen from a tree with bunches of flowers is miserable.
Separation from the union of a sculpturesque maiden is miserable.
And miserable,
When people who should understand refuse to understand.
2. Deceiving her own husband by a woman who's having curling and shining hair, would cause misery;
Those over-ripe fruits that've fallen from the bunch of the mango tree, would cause misery;
The pang of separation from one's beloved lady who has mated and who's like a doll, would cause misery;
And if one who is normally expected to know, does not know it, then it would cause misery.
3. The unfaithfulness of ladies with luxuriant braided locks is a source of grief; the well ripened fruit dropped from the fruit cluster hanging on the bough of the mango tree distresses us; separation of loving statue-like woman is painful; when people who can show compassion to others in their difficulties and who can help fail to do so, it is grievous.

15. புல்லார் புரவி மணியின்றி யூர்வின்னா கல்லா ருரைக்குங் கருமப் பொருளின்னா
இல்லாதார் நல்ல விருப்பின்னா வாங்கின்னா பல்லாரு ணாணப் படல்.

pullār puravi maṇiyinri yūrvinnā kallā ruraikkun karumap poruḷinnā illātār nalla viruppinṇā vāṅkinṇā pallāru nāṇap paṭal.

1. Miserable to mount and ride a grazing horse
Unharnessed with bells.
Miserable the consequences of an action elaborated by the unlearned.
Miserable the desire for comforts of men without means.
Miserable, likewise,
The shameful disgrace in an assembly of the learned.
2. Riding a grass-eating horse sans tying a bell to it,
would cause misery;
The result of a deed suggested by an uneducated fool,
would cause misery;
Any desire of those who are in want, for good things,
would cause misery;
And likewise, one's feeling of shyness amidst many,
would cause misery to him.
3. To ride on the grass-eating horse without the string of little bells on its neck is painful; the consequences of things done as per words of the stupid is grievous; the craving of the intelligent for precious things is a source of grief; so too, to be put to shame in the midst of many is painful.

16. உண்ணாது வைக்கும் பெரும்பொருள் வைப்பின்னா நண்ணாப் பகைவர் புணர்ச்சி நனியின்னா
கண்ணி லொருவன் வனப்பின்னா வாங்கின்னா எண்ணிலான் செய்யுங் கணக்கு.

unnātu vaikkum perumporuḷ vaippinnā naṇṇāp pakaivar puṇarcci naṇiyinnā kaṇṇi loruvan vaṇappinnā vāṅkinṇā eṇṇilāṇ ceyyūṇ kaṇakku.

1. Miserable to leave inheritance without enjoying anything.
Very miserable the company of disagreeing foes.
Miserable the fairness of a visage with no eyes.

Miserable, likewise,
The telling of a man with no knowledge of numbers.

2. Keeping huge wealth without even spending on eating,
would cause misery;
Any association with foes who are not really adherents,
would cause misery;
The elegant appearance of one who is blind, would cause misery; and likewise
A sum worked out by one who hasn't learnt arithmetic,
would also cause misery.
3. Burying in the earth great treasure without enjoying it is distressing; associating with abhorrent enemies is greatly painful; the beauty of one who lacks compassion is painful;
so also the thing done by an unthinking man brings in grief.

17. ஆன்றவிந்த சான்றோருட் பேதை புகலின்னா
மான்றிருண்ட போழ்தின் வழங்கல் பெரிதின்னா
நோன்றவிந்து வாழாதார் நோன்பின்னா வாங்கின்னா ஈன்றாளை யோம்பா விடல்.

āṇravinta cāṇrōruṭ pētai pukaliṇṇā māṇriruṇṭa pōlṭin valaṅkal peritiṇṇā nōṇravintu vāḷātār nōṇpinṇā vāṅkiṇṇā īṇrālai yōmpā viṭal.

1. Miserable for a fool to enter the assembly of the experienced wise.
Very miserable the sojourn in an engrossing night-time.
Miserable the abstinence of those who can neither abstain nor abjure.
Miserable, likewise,
Not to take care of one's mother.
2. The entry of an ignorant amidst scholars who are possessing gravity of manners, would cause misery; Proceeding on an unknown way during darkness in a bewildered state,
would cause much misery;
Any observance of religious austerity by those who don't have endurance, would cause misery;

And likewise neglecting one's own mother without maintaining her, would also cause misery.

3. The entry of a fool into the midst of greatly learned men of humility is painful; to go out when it has become pitch dark is fraught with great danger; for those who are incapable of putting up with grief and living in humility it is painful to undertake penance. So also it is grievous to forsake one's mother.

18. உரனுடையா னுள்ள மடிந்திருத்த லின்னா மறனுடை யானுடையான் மாற்பார்த்த லின்னா
சுரமரிய கானஞ் செலவின்னா லின்னா மனவறி யாளர் தொடர்பு.

uranuṭaiyā nullā maṭintirutta liṇṇā maranuṭai yāluṭaiyān mārpārta liṇṇā curamariya kāṇaṅ celaviṇṇā viṇṇā maṇavarī yālar totarpu.

1. Miserable the mental depression of a man of determination.
Miserable the challenge of one with an army of valiant men.
Miserable the journey in a hard-to-cross thick forest.
And miserable,
The relationship of the poor of heart.
2. Should a man of strong mind remain an indolent,
it would cause misery;
If one who's having men of military exploits rises
clasping his breast, it would cause misery;
Proceeding to a forest thro' a narrow and difficult path,
would cause misery;
And likewise, keeping company with base people who are void of broad mind, would cause misery.
3. It will be a grievous thing if a greatly learned man gives room for despondency; if one having valorous warriors takes to aggression it is grievous; to pass through a dense temple (an inaccessible wilderness) is painful; association with the mean-hearted is a source of grief.

19. குலத்துப் பிறந்தவன் கல்லாமை யின்னா நிலத்திட்ட நல்வித்து நாறாமை யின்னா
நலத்தகையார் நாணாமை யின்னாவாங் கின்னா
கலத்தல் குலமில் வழி.

kulattup pirantavan kallāmai yinnā nilattiṭṭa nolvittu nārāmai yinnā nalattakaiyār nāṇāmai yinnāvāṇ kinṇā kalattal kulamil vali.

1. Wretched for a man of lineage to remain uneducated.
Wretched for the seeds sown in the field not to sprout.
Wretched for women of beauty not to be shy.
Wretched, likewise,
The marriage into an improper clan or family.
2. Should a person hailing from a good family remain uneducated,
it would cause misery;
If the good seeds sown in the field don't sprout,
it would cause misery;
Should the beautiful women so conduct themselves
as to give up their modesty, it would cause misery;
And likewise any inter-marriage with a new and incongruous family, would cause misery.
3. It will be painful if a man of noble birth lacks learning; it will be grievous if the good seeds sown in the soil do not sprout; it will be distressing if lovely ladies lack modesty;
so too, to marry into a household not in keeping with one's noble line is a source of unpleasantness.

20. மாரிநாட் கூவுங் குயிலின் குரலின்னா ஈர மிலாளர் கடுமொழிக் கூற்றின்னா
மாரி வளம்பொய்ப்பி னூர்க்கின்னா வாங்கின்னா மூரி யெருத்தா லுழவு.

mārināṭ kūvuṇ kuyilin kuralinnā īra milālar kaṭumolik kūrrinnā māri vaḷampoyppi nūrkkinnā vāṅkinṇā mūri yeruttā luḷavu.

1. Wretched the voice of a cuckoo in rainy days.
Wretched the wild words of the pitiless ones.
Wretched the world if the rains play truant.
Wretched, likewise,
Ploughing a field with an untamed bullock.
2. It would cause misery, should a cuckoo warble
during rainy season;
Any harsh word of those whose heart is void of love,
would cause misery;
Should the rain fail, it would cause
misery to the universe;
And likewise, ploughing the land
with an aged bullock, would cause misery.
3. The song of the Koel in winter is not sweet; the harsh words of the compassionless are painful; if it rains not adequately in the proper season it is grievous for the land (world); so also ploughing with an old bull is painful.

21. ஈத்த வகையா லுவவாதார்க் கீப்பின்னா பாத்துண லில்லா ருழைச்சென் றுணலின்னா
முத்த விடத்துப் பிணியின்னா வாங்கின்னா ஓத்திலாப் பார்ப்பா னுரை.

ītta vakaiyā luvavātārḥ kippinnā pāttuṇa lillā rulaiccen ruṇalinṇā mūtta viṭattup piṇiyinṇā vāṅkinṇā ōttilāp pārppā nurai.

1. Miserable to give to those who are not satisfied with what they receive.
Miserable to eat with those who do not share their food with others.
Miserable the old age with ailments.
Miserable, likewise,
The words of a Brahmin of no vedic lore.
2. Any liberality extended to those who measure its extent but are not pleased with it, would cause misery;

Calling on a person who doesn't share his food and taking food from him, would cause misery;
Any attack of disease in one's old age,
would cause misery;
And likewise, the utterance of a Brahmin who hasn't learnt the sacred texts, would also cause misery.

3. To give to those who do not feel happy at such benevolence is painful; to eat in the house of one who is not hospitable is unpleasant; to be affected with disease in old age is grievous; so also the words of a parppar not versed in Vedic lore are repulsive.

22. யானையின் மன்னரைக் காண்ட னனியின்னா ஊனைத்தின் றுரனைப் பெருக்குதல் முன்னின்னா
தேனெய் புளிப்பிற் சுவையின்னா வாங்கின்னா கான்யா றிடையிட்ட வூர்.

yānaiyiṇ manṇaraik kāṇṭa ṇaiyiṇṇā ūnaittiṇ rūṇaip perukkutal munninṇā tēney pulippir cuvaiyinnā vāṅkinṇā kānyā riṭaiyiṭṭa vūr.

1. Miserable to meet a king with no regiment of elephants.
Miserable to pamper one's flesh by eating flesh.
Miserable the taste of honey and ghee turned sour.
Miserable, likewise,
The village in between forest streams.
2. Witnessing a king's army which doesn't have an elephant-wing, would cause much misery;
Developing a human body by taking the meat of living beings,
would cause misery;
Should honey and ghee turn sour,
its taste would cause misery;
And likewise, it would cause misery to a town,
if it is in the middle of the sylvan tract of a river.
3. It is very painful to see a King who possesses not war elephants; it is very grievous to eat the flesh of other lives and grow; when honey and ghee get sour, their taste is unpalatable; so too the locations of a village with a jungle river flowing in its midst is a source of grief.

23. சிறையில்லா மூதூரின் வாயில்காப் பின்னா துறையிருந் தாடை கழுவுத லின்னா அறைபறை யன்னவர் சொல்லின்னா வின்னா நிறையில்லான் கொண்ட தவம்.

ciraĩyillā mūtūriṇ vāyilkāp pinṇā tuṛaiyirun tātai kaḷuvuta liṇṇā araiṇarai yannavar collinṇā vinṇā niraĩyillāṇ koṇṭa tavam.

1. Wretched to guard the gates of an unfortressed ancient city.
Wretched to remove and clean one's clothes in a source of drinking water.
Wretched the words violent as the drum beats of the vulgar.
Wretched the penance of one incapable of controlling his senses.
2. Guarding the portal of an old town which is not surrounded by a fortification, would cause misery;
Washing the clothes at the entrance of a tank, would cause misery;
Any word coming from the mouth of a person who spreads it like the beat of a drum, would cause misery;
And likewise, any penance of one who has lost command over his senses, would also cause misery.
3. Guarding the gate of an ancient city without a high walled fort is painful; to wash clothes at the ghat is unhealthful; the words of those who broadcast secrets like the loud beating of a drum are a source of grief; the exercises undertaken by one who cannot control his five senses is painful.

24. ஏமமில் மூதூ ரிருத்தன் மிகவின்னா தீமை யுடையா ரயலிருத்த னன்கின்னா
காமமுதிரி னுயிர்க்கின்னா வாங்கின்னா யாமென் பவரோடு நட்பு.

ēmamil mūtū riruttaṇ mikaviṇṇā tīmai yuṭaiyā rayalirutta naṅkinṇā kāmamutiri nuyirkkinṇā vāṅkinṇā yāmeṇ pavarōṭu naṭpu.

1. Very miserable to dwell in a dilapidated unfortressed city.
 Very miserable to have a wicked one for one's neighbour.
 Miserable for life if lust overgrows.
 Miserable, likewise,
 Friendship with men of self-conceit.
2. Having a domicile in an old town which does not have enough protection, would cause misery;
 Living by the side of those who're having vile conduct,
 would cause much misery;
 Going extremely concupiscent, would cause misery
 to one's very life; And likewise, Keeping friendship with those who boast with egotism,
 would cause misery.
3. To live in the ancient city without the guard of a fort and a ruler is very unsafe; it is very grievous to live as the neighbour of a wicked person; when lovesickness intensifies it is painful to the soul; so too, friendship with those who are self-conceited is painful.

25. நட்டா ரிடுக்கண் காண்டல் நனியின்னா ஒட்டார் பெருமிதங் காண்டல் பெரிதின்னா
 கட்டில்லா மூதூ ருறைவின்னா வாங்கின்னா நட்ட கவற்றினாற் குது.

naṭṭā riṭukkaṇ kāṇṭal naṇiyiṇṇā oṭṭār perumitaṇ kāṇṭal peritiṇṇā kaṭṭillā mūtū ruraiviṇṇā vāṅkinṇā naṭṭa kavarrinār cūtu.

1. Very miserable to witness the sufferings of one's friends.
 Vastly miserable to witness the proud arrogance of one's foes.
 Miserable to dwell in a wasted city with no kith and kin.
 Miserable, likewise,
 To gamble with friendly dice.

2. Witnessing the adversities suffered by the friends, would cause much misery;
Noticing the haughtiness of the enemies,
would cause much misery;
Living in an old town where there are no relatives, would cause misery;
And likewise, the gambling play of draughts with the accustomed dice, would cause misery.
3. To see friends in grief is very distressing; to witness enemies' pride is very painful; to live in an ancient city which is not properly guarded (where no kith and kin live) is very unpleasant; so also gambling with the befriended dice is grievous.

26. பெரியாரோ டியாத்த தொடர்விடுத லின்னா
அரியவை செய்து மெனவுரைத்த லின்னா பரியார்க்குத் தாமுற்ற கூற்றின்னா லின்னா
பெரியோர்க்குத் தீய செயல்.

periyārō ṭiyātta toṭarviṭuta liṇṇā ariyavai ceytu menavuraitta liṇṇā pariyārkkut tāmurra kūrrinnā vinṇā periyōrkkut tīya ceyal.

1. Miserable to delink one's relationship wrought with the great.
Miserable to boast of achieving the rarest.
Miserable to confide one's sorrows to the unloving and unsympathetic.
And miserable,
To do evil to the eminent and the great.
2. Leaving suddenly the connexion hitherto maintained with great people, would cause misery;
Telling about the accomplishment of difficult tasks
before doing them, would cause misery;
Narrating one's distress to those who don't have real love,
would cause misery;
And likewise, doing evil acts to the great people of fame,
would cause misery.

3. To give up the friendship of the noble is grievous; for one to brag that he would accomplish a great objective is not in good taste; to narrate our sufferings to those who bear no love to us is painful; to do harm to the virtuous is grievous.

27. பெருமை யுடையாரைப் பீடழித்த வின்னா கிழமை யுடையார்க் களைந்நிடுத வின்னா
வளமை யிலாளர் வனப்பின்னா வின்னா இளமையுண் மூப்புப் புகல்.

perumai yuṭaiyāraip pīṭaḷitta linṇā kiḷamai yuṭaiyārk kaḷaintiṭuta linṇā vaḷamai yilālar vanappinṇā vinṇā iḷamaiyuṇ mūppup pukal.

1. Miserable to talk disgracefully of the glorious renowned.
Miserable removing people who have a right of kinship.
Miserable the handsome virtues of one with no wealth.
And miserable,
Symptoms of old age in one's youth.
2. Talking about men of eminence, in derogation of their dignity, would cause misery;
Discarding the connection of kinsfolk,
would cause misery;
The grace of those who're not blessed with prosperity,
would cause misery; And likewise,
Any appearance of old-age signs during youth,
would cause misery.
3. To speak derogatively of people of renown is distressing; to relinquish intimate friendship is painful; the beauty of the indigent is grievous; the cropping up of the signs of old age in youth is distressing.

28. கல்லாதா னூருங் கலிமாப் பரிப்பின்னா
வல்லாதான் சொல்லு முரையின் பயனின்னா
இல்லாதார்வாய்ச் சொல்லி னயமின்னா வாங்கின்னா கல்லாதான் கோட்டி கொளல்.

kallātā nūruṇ kalimāp parippinṇā vallātāṇ collu muraiyiṇ payaṇinṇā illātārvāy collu nayaminṇā vāṇkinṇā kallātāṇ kōṭṭi koḷal.

1. Painful to ride an untamed horse not knowing the art of riding.
 Painful the expositions and interpretations of the unlearned.
 Painful the words of comfort from men of no means.
 Painful, likewise,
 The words of the unlearned to convince an assembly of the wise.
2. Carrying by a frenzied horse, by one who hasn't learnt horse-mastership, would cause misery; Uttering, by an uneducated, of anything without knowing its meaning, would cause misery;
 The civility of words that come from the mouth of have-nots, would cause misery; And likewise, Stating by one who's unlearned, in an assembly,
 would cause misery.
3. It is grievous for the proud horse to carry on its back an unskilled rider; the result of the exposition given by a man who has had no instruction is displeasing; the consequence of the words of a man who is incapable of achieving objects is unpleasant; painfully fruitless are the words falling from the lips of the indigent; so too the words of the uninstructed in an assembly of the learned are distressing.

29. குறியறியான் மாநாக மாட்டுவித்த லின்னா
 தறியறியா னீரின்கட் பாய்ந்தாட லின்னா
 அறிவறியா மக்கட் பெறலின்னா வின்னா
 செறிவிலான் கேட்ட மறை.

kuriyariyāṇ mānāka māṭṭuvitta linṇā tariyariyā nīrinṇaṭ pāyntāṭa linṇā aṇivariyā makkaṭ peralinnā vinṇā cerivilāṇ kēṭṭa marai.

1. Dolorous to charm a venomous snake not knowing the charm.
 Dolorous to dive and play in waters not knowing the depths and shoals.

Dolorous to bring up children who refuse to learn what is to be learnt.

Dolorous the secrets overheard for men who cannot keep secrets.

2. Causing a big cobra to dance, by one who's not conversant with the art of charm, would cause misery;
Jumping into the waters without knowing the existence of a stake therein and playing, would cause misery;
Having as offsprings those who are non-knowledgeable,
would cause misery; And likewise,
Hearing by one, who doesn't have self-restraint,
of any secret, would cause misery.
3. For the uninitiated to make the huge cobra dance is fraught with danger; to jump into the water and bathe without knowing his projecting stumps therein is grievous; giving birth to unintelligent children is painful; the secret learnt by a man who has no self-restraint leads to painful consequences.

30. நெடுமர நீள்கோட் டுயர்பாய்த லின்னா கடுஞ்சின வேழத் தெதிர்சேற லின்னா
ஒடுங்கி யரவுறையு மில்லின்னா வின்னா கடும்புலி வாழு மதர்.

neṭumara nīlkōṭ ṭuyarpāyta liṇṇā kaṭuñciṇa vēḷai tetircēra liṇṇā oṭuṅki yaravuraiyu millinṇā vinnā kaṭumpuli vālu matar.

1. Miserable to jump down from the long branches of a tall tree.
Miserable the confrontation of an enraged elephant.
Miserable the house haunted by serpents in hiding.
And miserable,
The nullahs frequented by wild tigers.
2. Jumping down from the stretching branch of a tall tree,
would cause misery;
Going before an elephant which is in violent anger,
would cause misery;

A home where a snake is hiding,
would cause misery;
And the jungle-way where ferocious tigers are roaming,
would cause misery.

3. To jump from the top of a lofty bough of a high grown tree is disastrous; to go in front of a greatly irate elephant is grievous; to live in a house where the snake lives hiding is dangerous; so too is the track infested with deadly tigers.

31. பண்ணமையா யாழின்கீழ்ப் பாடல் பெரிதின்னா எண்ணறியா மாந்தர் ஒழுக்குநாட் கூற்றின்னா
மண்ணின் முழவி னொலியின்னா வாங்கின்னா தண்மை யிலாளர் பகை.

paṇṇamaiyā yālinkīḷp pāṭal peritinnā eṇṇariyā māntar olukkunāṭ kūrrinnā maṇṇin mulavi noliyinnā vāṅkinnā taṇmai yilālar pakai.

1. Very painful to sing to the accompaniment of untuned instruments of music.
Painful the fixing up of auspicious days by people ignorant of astrology.
Painful the sound of a percussion instrument not properly tempered.
Painful, likewise,
The enmity of merciless men.
2. Playing on a lute which doesn't raise harmonious notes, would cause much misery;
Prescribing propitious days, by those who're not well-versed in astrology, would cause misery;
The sound raised by a drum, on the head of which no paste has been smeared, would cause misery;
And the enmity of those who're not having gentleness, would cause misery.
3. To sing to the accompaniment of a disharmonious tune of a lute is painful; the fixation of time for others for doing things by people not well versed in astrology leads to unpleasant results; the sound of a kettledrum which has not been smeared with the black substance to love it is painful; so too is the enmity of the ignoble.

32. தன்னைத்தான் போற்றா தொழுதுத னன்கின்னா முன்னை யுரையார் புறமொழிக் கூற்றின்னா
நன்மை யிலாளர் தொடர்பின்னா வாங்கின்னா தொன்மை யுடையார் கெடல்.

tannaittāṇ pōrrā toḷukuta naṅkinṇā munnai yuraiyār puramolik kūrrinṇā naṇmai yilālar toṭarpinṇā vāṅkinṇā tonmai yuṭaiyār keṭal.

1. Very miserable to live not caring for self-improvement.
Miserable the speaking behind one's back of those who never speak to one's face.
Miserable the relationship with the unrighteous.
Miserable, likewise,
The fall of men of ancient fame.
2. Should one conduct himself without maintaining self-restraint, it would cause misery;
Any back-biting without having boldness to utter it in front of one, would cause misery;
Friendship of those who're not having good attributes,
would cause misery; And likewise,
The calamity suffered by those who have a glorious ancestry, would cause misery.
3. To act in utter disregard of one's safety is intensely grievous;
without speaking face to face but to backbite is painful;
associations with the wicked is distressful; so too is the adversity of a once prosperous ancient line distressing.

33. கள்ளுண்பான் கூறுங் கருமப் பொருளின்னா
முள்ளுடைக் காட்டி னைத்த னனியின்னா
வெள்ளம் படுமாக் கொலையின்னா வாங்கின்னா கள்ள மனத்தார் தொடர்பு.

kaḷḷuṇpān kūruṇ karuṁa poruḷiṇṇā mulluṭaiḱ kāṭṭi naṭatta naṇiyiṇṇā vellam paṭumāk kolaṇiyiṇṇā vāṇkiṇṇā kaḷḷa maṇattār toṭarpu.

1. Miserable the consequences of an action enunciated by an inebriate.

Very miserable to walk in a forest full of thorns.

Miserable to kill a beast caught in a flood.

Miserable, likewise,

The contact with the dishonest.

2. The effect of a thing uttered by a tottering tosspot, would cause misery;

Walking along the forest way which is full of thorns, would cause much misery;

Allowing an animal which, being caught in flood, unable to get ashore, to die,

would cause misery; And likewise,

Any connection with those who are having deceitful mind, would cause misery.

3. The fruit of action advocated by a drunkard is painful; to pass through a brambly jungle is very distressing; to kill an animal caught in the floods is grievous; so too is the associations with the deceitful.

34. ஒழுக்க மிலாளர்க் குறவுரைத்த விண்ணா விழுத்தகு நூலும் விழையாதார்க் கின்னா
 இழித்த தொழிலவர் நட்பின்னா விண்ணா கழிப்புவாய் மண்டிலங் கொட்பு.

olukka milālark kuṛavuraitta liṇṇā viluttaku nūlum vilaiyātārk kiṇṇā iḷitta toḷilavar naṭpiṇṇā viṇṇā kalippuvāy maṇṭilaṇ koṭpu.

1. Miserable to claim relationship with characterless men.
 Miserable even the best book for those who desire not to learn.
 Miserable the company of men in infamous professions.
 And miserable,
 The sojourn in a land forsaken by the wise.

2. Telling about oneself as being the relative of those who're not having moral conduct, would cause misery;
It would cause misery to those who are not eager to learn even the works of real excellence;
Any friendship with those who pursue disgraceful pursuits, would cause misery;
And rambling in a region discarded by good people, would cause misery.
3. To claim relationship with those of evil conduct is grievous; even a renowned work is repulsive to those who are not eager to study it; friendship with those engaged in contemptible occupations is painful; to loaf in the track eschewed by the virtuous is grievous.

35. எழிலி யுறைநீங்கி னீண்டையார்க் கின்னா குழலி னினியமரத் தோசைநன் கின்னா குழவிக னுற்ற பிணியின்னா வின்னா அழகுடையான் பேதை யெனல்.

eḷili yurainīnki nīṇṭaiyārk kinṇā kuḷali nīṇiyamarat tōcainan kinṇā kuḷavika ḷurra piṇiyinnā vinṇā aḷakuṭaiyān pētai yeṇal.

1. Miserable for the people of this world if clouds do not rain.
Miserable for the trees if they make sweet flute-like notes.
Miserable the children stricken with disease.
And miserable,
For a handsome one to be called a fool.
2. It would cause misery to this universe, should the cloud not shower down drops of rain;
Though giving forth the sound like that of a flute,
the sound raised by the wind passing thro' trees,
would cause misery;
Any disease being suffered by the infants,
would cause misery;
And telling that one who is handsome is a dolt,
would cause misery.

3. If the clouds fail to send down showers it is grievous for people of this world; the lute-like music emanating from a tree makes one languish deeply; children's affliction by disease is painful; for a young man of beauty to be termed a stupid person is distressing.

36. பொருளிலான் வேளாண்மை காமுறுத லின்னா நெடுமாட நீணகர்க் கைத்தின்மை யின்னா
வருமனை பார்த்திருந் தூணின்னா வின்னா
கெடுமிடங் கைவிடுவார் நட்பு.

poruḷilāṇ vēḷāṇmai kāmuruṭa liṇṇā neṭumāṭa nīṇakark kaittiṇmai yiṇṇā varumaṇai pārttirun tūṇiṇṇā viṇṇā ketumiṭaṇ kaiviṭuvār naṭpu.

1. Miserable for men without the means to desire to help others.
Miserable to live in great cities of palatial buildings without money on hand.
Miserable to eat food waiting for it in the house of another
And miserable,
The friendship of those who disown one in times of misfortunes.
2. It would cause misery, should one who does not have riches, crave for beneficence;
Living in a town full of tall-storeyed buildings,
without having any wealth, would cause misery;
It would cause misery, should one await the opportune time of the host and eat
what the latter serves;
And the friendship of those who have forsaken one who's in strained circumstances, would cause misery.
3. For one without means to crave for liberality is painful; to live without money in big cities of lofty palatial buildings is distressing; the eating of food in a house (to which one has come as a guest) after waiting for the convenience of the host is painful; so is friendship with those who forsake in need.

37. நறிய மலர்பெரிது நாறாமை யின்னா துறையறியா னீரிழிந்து போகுத லின்னா
அறியான் வினாப்படுத லின்னாவாங் கின்னா
சிறியார்மேற் செற்றங் கொளல்.

nariya malarperitu nārāmai yinnā turaiyariyā nīrilintu pōkuta linnā ariyān viṇāppaṭuta linnāvān kinṇā cīriyārmēr cerraṇ koḷal.

1. Miserable for a beautiful flower to have no great fragrance.
Miserable to cross a river getting into the waters not knowing the shoal-marks.
Miserable for the unlearned to be questioned by a scholar.
Miserable, likewise,
The anger vented forth on small men.
2. Should a beautiful flower not give forth perfume,
it would cause misery;
Should one who doesn't know the nature of the course of the water, try to enter therein,
it would cause misery;
It would cause misery, should an ignorant person
be questioned; And likewise,
It would cause misery, if any anger be shown towards the younger ones.
3. It will be painful if a lovely bloom smells not richly sweet;
it is grievous for a man who knows not the ghat to cross the water; for the ignorant to be subjected to queries is painful; so also to get angry with children is grievous.

38. பிறன்மனையாள் பின்னோக்கும் பேதைமை யின்னா மறமிலா மன்னர் செருப்புகுத லின்னா
வெறும்புறம் வெம்புரவி யேற்றின்னா வின்னா
திறனிலான் செய்யும் வினை.

piranmanaiyāl pinṇōkkum pētaimai yinnā maramilā manṇar ceruppukuta linnā

verumpuram vempuravi yērrinnā vinṇā tiranilāṇ ceyyum viṇai.

1. Miserable the folly of love for another man's wife.
Miserable the entry to war by valourless kings.
Miserable to ride on an unsaddled and untamed horse.
And miserable,
The action of one without ability to accomplish.
2. Any folly of following the other man's wife with lasciviousness, would cause misery;
Entering the war-field by a king who doesn't possess better military exploits, would cause misery;
Riding on the saddleless back of a horrid horse,
would cause misery;
And any deed by one who doesn't possess capability,
would cause misery.
3. The foolishness of going after another's wife in lust is grievous; for a king without courage to go to the field of battle is painful; to ride on a fleet-footed horse without saddle is painful; the deed done by a man who knows not the proper way of doing things is a source of grief.

39. கொடுக்கும் பொருளில்லான் வள்ளன்மை யின்னா கடித்தமைந்த பாக்கினுட் கற்படுத லின்னா
கொடுத்து விடாமை கவிக்கின்னா வின்னா மடுத்துழிப் பாடா விடல்.

koṭukkum poruḷillāṇ vaḷḷanmai yinṇā kaṭittamainta pākkinuṭ karpaṭuta linṇā koṭuttu viṭāmai kavikkinnā vinṇā maṭuttulip pāṭā viṭal.

1. Miserable the charitable nature of one with nothing to give.
Miserable to bite a piece of stone while chewing betel nut.
Miserable for a poet not to be given presents.
And miserable,
Not to complete a poem interrupted.

2. Any munificence by one who doesn't have enough wealth to donate, would cause misery; Should there be any stone-like substance in a bitten arecanut, it would cause misery; It'd cause misery, should a poet be not bestowed with gifts and given a warm send-off; And it would cause misery if a patron is not sung in praise, out of gratitude, by a poet so patronized.
3. The liberality of the indigent is painful, a stone in the chewing nut is a painful thing; it is painful to send away a poet without gift; it will be distressful to break away from singing when some impediment intercedes; it will be painful to sing not where gifts are offered.

40. அடக்க முடையவன் மீளிமை யின்னா துடக்க மிலாதவன் தற்செருக் கின்னா
அடைக்கலம் வவ்வுத லின்னாவாங் கின்னா அடக்க வடங்காதார் சொல்.

aṭakka mutaiyavaṇṇ mīlimai yinnā tuṭakka milātavaṇṇ tarceruk kinṇā ataikkalam vavvuta linṇāvāṇ kinṇā aṭakka vaṭaṅkāṭār col.

1. Miserable the conceit of one who controls his senses.
Miserable the vanity of one who attempts nothing.
Miserable to covet things surrendered on trust.
Miserable, likewise,
The words of the uncontrolled even when controlled by the wise.
- 2 The fearlessness of one who practises continence,
would cause misery;
The haughtiness of one who doesn't even make a beginning, would cause misery;
Any misappropriation by one of a thing deposited for safety,
would cause misery; And likewise,
The word of one who doesn't even obey the directions of the elders, would cause misery.

3. The haughtiness of one of self restraint is painful; the brag of the unexerting is distressing; misappropriation of entrusted property is grievous; so too the words spoken to persons who submit not to attempts made even by well-meaning people to restrain them fail in their objective.

இன்னா நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

MUTARKURIPPAKARĀTI

இன்னா நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

Mutarkurippakarāti

அடக்க முடையவன்	40	aṭakka muṭaiyavaṇ
அறமனத்தார் கூறுங்	6	aramaṇattār kūruṅ
ஆற்ற விலாதான் பிடித்த	7	āṭṭa lilātāṇ piṭitta
ஆன்றவிந்த சான்றோருட்	17	āṇṇavinta cāṇṇōruṭ
ஈத்த வகையா	21	ītta vakaiyā
உடம்பா டில்லாத மனைவி	11	uṭampā ṭillāta maṇaivi
உண்ணாது வைக்கும்	16	uṇṇātu vaikkum
உரனுடையா னுள்ள	18	uraṇuṭaiyā ṇuḷla
எருதி லுழவர்க்குப்	4	eruti luḷavarkkup
எழிவி யுறைநீங்கி	35	eḷili yurainīṅki
ஏமமில் மூதூர்	24	ēmamil mūtūr
ஒழுக்க மிலாளர்க்	34	oḷukka milāḷark
கல்லாதா னூருங்	28	kallātā ṇūruṅ
களளில்லா மூதூர்	9	kaḷḷillā mūtūr
களஞ்சுப்பான் கூறுங்	33	kaḷḷuṇpāṇ kūruṅ
குலத்துப் பிறந்தவன்	19	kulattup piṇantavaṇ
குறியறியான் மாநாக	29	kuṛiyariyāṇ māṇāka
கொடுக்கும் பொருளில்லான்	39	koṭukkum poruḷillāṇ
கொடுங்கோல் மறமன்னர்	3	koṭuṅkōl maṇamaṇṇar
சிறையில் கரும்பினைக்	5	ciṛaiyil karumpiṇaik
சிறையில்லா மூதூரின்	23	ciṛaiyillā mūtūriṇ
தலைதண்ட மாகச் சுரம்	12	talaitaṇṭa mākaṭ curam
தன்னைத்தான் போற்றா	32	taṇṇaittāṇ pōṛṛā
நட்டா ரிடுக்கன்	25	naṭṭā riṭukkan
நறிய மலர்பெரிது	37	naṛiya malarperitu
நெடுமர நீள்கோட்	30	neṭumara nīḷkōṭ
பகல் போலு நெஞ்சத்தார்	8	pakal pōlu neṇcattār

பண்ணமையா யாழிங்கீழ்ப்
 பந்தமில் லாத மனையின்
 பார்ப்பாறிற் கோழியும்
 பிறன்மனையாள் பின்னோக்கும்
 புல்லார் புரவி
 பெரியாரோ டியாத்த
 பெருமை யுடையாரைப்
 பொருளிலான் வேளாண்மை
 பொருளுணர்வா ரில்வழிப்
 மணியிலாக் குஞ்சரம்
 மாரிநாட் கூவுங் குயிலின்
 யானையின் மன்னரைக் வணரொலி யைம்பாலார்

31 paṇṇamaiyā yāḷiṅkīḷp
 1 pantamil lāta maṇaiyiṇ
 2 pārppāriṇ kōḷiyum
 38 piṇṇamaṇaiyāḷ piṇṇōkkum 15 pullār puravi
 26 periyārō ṭiyātta
 27 perumai yuṭaiyāraip
 36 poruḷilāṇ vēḷāṇmai
 10 poruḷuṇarvā rilvaḷip
 13 maṇiyilāk kuṇcaram
 20 mārināṭ kūvuṇ kuyiliṇ
 22 yāṇaiyiṇ maṇṇaraik
 14 vaṇaroli yaimpālār

IN̐YAVAI NĀRPATU

In English Verse and Prose

IN̄IYAVAI NĀR̄PATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English Verse and Prose

Compiled and Edited by

P. RAJA

Translators

S. Raman, Poet Desini

Nalladai R. Balakrishna Mudaliyar

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

2012

Ancient Tamil Classics in Translation Series

INIVAVAI NĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English

© Central Institute of Classical Tamil, Chennai

CICT Publication No. 18

First published 2012

Published by

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

ISBN: 978-93-81744-07-9

Typeset by

Central Institute of Classical Tamil

Printed by

Government of India Press, Coimbatore – 641 019
Tamil Nadu, India.

INTRODUCTION

Quite classical in style, the forty quatrains of Iniyavai Nāṛpatu enumerate the things that are supposed to yield abiding pleasures to man. Since every stanza speaks for the good of man, they have become constantly quoted verses either in full or in parts.

Cētanār is the author of this excellent work. He was the son of Pūtan, who was a Tamil teacher in Madurai. Hence he is known by his full name – Madurai Tamil Asiriyar Maganar Pūtan Cētanār. Apart from this information, nothing is known about this author.

Iniyavai Nāṛpatu consists of 41 stanzas, the first one being 'invocation'. Written in veṇpā metre, all stanzas are in the form of quatrains known in Tamil as innicai veṇpā, the exception being the eighth verse running to five lines, known as Pakṛōtai veṇpā.

Quatrain nos 1, 3, 4 and 5 contain four messages while the others give only three each. Scholars are of the opinion that Iniyavai Nāṛpatu is not so closely packed with ideas as Innā Nāṛpatu.

Kapilar's Innā Nāṛpatu states four characteristic features which are not sweet from the moral point of view. Following the model provided by Kapilar, Pūtan Cētanār in his Iniyavai Nāṛpatu deals with themes that are sweet.

Oft-quoted and meticulously memorized by school children only to realize the great import of the stanzas at a later stage, Iniyavai Nāṛpatu speaks in fitting terms of the glory of education and of the importance of friendship.

Only those who have a complete control over their five senses will be able to lead a happy and contented life. It is always good to keep ourselves away from the uneducated even if their friendship is bound to bring us a fortune. And it is always good to avoid a companion devoid of sound common sense and courage. So goes yet another stanza.

The Tamils down the ages believed that one's mother is the real god and the word of one's father is law. But a stanza in Iniyavai Nāṛpatu prescribes a yardstick to understand the character of one's father and if he does not rise to the level, then it is advisable not to listen to his words.

In the very beginning of this work, the author stresses the need for educating oneself. He even goes to the extent of advising that it is good to have education even by stooping to beg. In another stanza he advises everyone to study everyday the great works in order to have a clear knowledge of them. That is the importance Pūtan Cētanār attaches to education.

The poems of the Caṅkam period never spoke ill of women. It was the Siddhas who practised mud-slinging as an art and portrayed women in their base forms. The Caṅkam poets considered women as the very incarnation of love and affection. With the advent of the Buddhists and the Jains women were looked down upon as 'evil'. Ṇiyavai Nāṛpatu advises the readers to consider women as 'venom' and thereby initiates the Tamil mind into thinking low of women. Perhaps this is the beginning of denigration of women.

Several ideas found in Kapilar's Ṇnā Nāṛpatu get repeated in Pūtan Cētanār's Ṇiyavai Nāṛpatu. What use is the beauty of a wife if she fails to fulfil the desires of her husband? says Ṇnā Nāṛpatu (11). It is good if the wife co-operates with her husband's wishes says Ṇiyavai Nāṛpatu (2). It is unwise to thrive on flesh (2) says Ṇnā (22). Ṇiyavai (4) repeats the same idea. Any number of examples can be culled from these two works to show that Ṇiyavai Nāṛpatu is only a second version of Ṇnā Nāṛpatu written by Kapilar.

Several ideas of Thiruvalluvar are also incorporated in Ṇiyavai Nāṛpatu. And so, scholars aver that Pūtan Cētanār, perhaps had lived after the time of Kapilar, say 5th century A.D.

In the invocation too, Pūtan Cētanār, like his predecessor Kapilar, invokes the gods. While the latter prays to Siva and Vishnu, the former includes Brahma too for invoking their blessings. 'Brahma' worship was only a later addition to the three great Trinity.

Ṇiyavai Nāṛpatu is quite interesting in the sense that though it provides a long list of things that are good, it does it in an alluring way.

INİYAVAI NĀRPATU

கடவுள் வாழ்த்து

கண்மூன் றுடையான்தாள் சேர்தல் கடிதினிகே
தொல்மாண் துழாய்மாலை யானைத் தொழினிகே
முந்துறப் பேணி முகநான் குடையானைச்
சென்றமர்ந் தேத்தல் இனிது.

Kaṭavuḷ Vālttu

kaṇmūṇ ruṭaiyāntāḷ cērtal kaṭitiniṭē tolmāṇ tuḷāymālai yānait tolalinīṭē munturap pēṇi mukanāṇ kuṭaiyāṇaic cenramarn tēttal inītu.

INVOCATION

1. Very blissful to abide at the feet
Of the three-eyed one (Lord Siva).
Blissful the devotion to the hoary
Thiru-thuzhai - garlanded one (Lord Vishnu).
Much more blissful
The willing devotion that seeks
And sits in front, and prays
To the four-faced one (Lord Brahma).
2. Very good it's to surrender at the sacred feet
Of the three-eyed Lord Siva, the Destroyer;
Good it's to adore Lord Vishnu, the Preserver, Who's wearing Sacred basil of ancient glory, as garland;
And good it is to precede and reach Lord Brahma,
The creator, who is having four faces,
Sit in front of him, worship
And extol the first of the Triad!

3. Greatly pleasing it is to attain the feet of the three eyed God (Siva); sweet it is to worship the God (Vishnu) of ancient glory wearing the Tulsi garland; it is sweet to go and sit before the four-faced god Brahma and worship with deep devotion.

1. பிச்சைபுக் காயினுங் கற்றல் மிகஇனிதே நற்சவையில் கைகொடுத்தல் சாலவும் முன்னினிதே
முத்தேர் முறுவலார் சொல்லினி தாங்கினிதே
தெற்றவும் மேலாயார்ச் சேர்வு.

piccaipuk kāyinuṅ karraḷ mikaiṇitē narcavaiyil kaikoṭuttal cālavum munniniṇitē muttēr muruvalār collini tāṅkiniṇitē terravum mēlāyārc cērvu.

1. Even if it were through begging,
Most delectable is learning.
Much more delectable, when learning
Lends her hand in an assembly of the wise.
Delectable the words of women
Of sparkling pearly smile;
And delectable, likewise, when considered,
The company of great souls.
2. So good it is to acquire learning, even by going in for alms;
Extending a helping hand in an august assembly,
Is good always;
So pleasant is the word from a smiling damsel
Who's having pearl-like teeth;
And likewise, keeping company with elders, will enable
One stand in good stead.
3. Greatly sweet it is to learn though by begging; highly pleasing it will be if such acquired learning readily comes to the help of one in an assembly of the learned; sweet are the words of lovely ladies of pearly teeth; so too verily sweet it is to seek the company of the noble.

2. உடையான் வழக்கினி தொப்ப முடிந்தால்
மனைவாழ்க்கை முன்னினிது மாணாதா மாயின்
நிலையாமை நோக்கி நெடியார் துறத்தல்
தலையாகத் தான்இனிது நன்கு.

uṭaiyāṇ valakkiṇi toppa muṭintāl maṇaivāḷkkai muninītu māṇātā māyiṇ nilaiyāmai nōkki neṭiyār turattal talaiyākat tāṇinītu naṅku.

1. The rich, if munificent, are delectable.
 Much more delectable, the home,
 When husband and wife
 Have similar views.
 When the home lacks lustre,
 The most delectable of all
 Is to think of transitoriness
 And renounce without any delay.
2. So good is the willing munificence by rich ones and likewise
 Eminently good would be the home-life,
 Should the couple be homologous;
 If it doesn't come that way worthy, realizing then
 The truth of uncertainty of life,
 The excellent thing would be the renunciation
 Of mundane life, by one without any delay.
3. The benevolence of the affluent is sweet; conjugal life is greatly pleasing if there be perfect concord between the husband and the wife; if there be not such praiseworthy harmony (in their household life) greatly sweet it is to investigate with care the transitoriness of things worldly and to take to asceticism without delay.

3. ஏவது மாறா இளங்கிளைமை முன்னினிதே
 நாளும் நவைபோகான் கற்றல் மிகஇனிதே ஏருடையான் வேளாண்மை தானினிது ஆங்கினிதே
 தேறிற்கோள் நட்புத் திகைக்கு.

ēvatu māṛā iḷaṅkilaimai muninīte nāḷum navaipōkāṇ karral mikainīte ēruṭaiyāṇ vēḷāṇmai tāṇinītu āṅkinīte tēriṅkōḷ naṭput ticaikku.

1. Most delectable, young sons who do One's biddings without forgetting.
Learning without any blemish -
Every day - is delectable.
Cultivation by one who owns
His ploughshare is delectable.
Delectable, likewise, when considered,
Friendly planets in all directions.
2. So good it is, if the relative youths do not disobey
What is directed;
And it is eminently good to learn daily,
By discarding the evils;
It's only the ploughman's cultivation
That is really superb;
And if considered, keeping friendship in all directions
Would be best forever.
3. Greatly pleasing it is to have scions who do, without opposing, what they are asked to; greatly sweet it will be if one keeping away from evil daily learns; the husbandry of the tiller who possesses bullocks is prosperous, so too, if we consider, it is sweet to pick up friendship in a strange place we go to.

4. யானை யுடைய படைகாண்டல் முன்னினிதே
ஊனைத்தின் றானைப் பெருக்காமை முன்னினிதே
கான்யாற் றடைகரை யூர்இனி தாங்கினிதே மான முடையார் மதிப்பு.

yānai yutaiya paṭaikāṇṭal muninītē ūnaittin rūṇaip perukkāmai muninītē kānyār ṛaṭaikarai yūriṇi tāṅkinītē māna muṭaiyār matippu.

1. Most delectable (for kings) the establishment Of a regiment of elephants.
Most delectable not to pamper Flesh by eating flesh.
Delectable, the township
On the buttressed banks of a river.

And delectable, likewise,
The esteem of honourable men.

2. So good is it for the ruler to have a force of elephants;
And it is eminently good for one,
Not to become bulky by taking meat;
A village situated on the banks of sylvan tract
Of a river, would be fine;
And the regard of men of respect
Is superbly good.

3. Greatly sweet it is for the king to equip himself with an army possessed of elephants; highly pleasing it is to refrain from eating flesh and rearing the body; the village situated on the bank of a sylvan river with perennial flow of water is sweet.

5. கொல்லாமை முன்இனிது கோல்கோடி மாராயஞ்
செய்யாமை முன்இனிது செங்கோலன் ஆகுதல்
எய்துந் திறத்தால் இனிதென்ப யார்மாட்டும்
பொல்லாங் குரையாமை நன்கு.

kollāmai muṇiṇitu kōlkōṭi mārāyañ ceyyāmai muṇiṇitu ceṅkōlaṇ ākutaḷ eytun tiṟattāl iṇiteṇpa yārmāṭṭum pollāṇ kuraiyāmai naṅku.

1. Most delectable, abstinence from killing;
Not to bend one's sceptre
And commit flagrant injustice
But to become a righteous monarch
Is most delectable. And delectable, Not to spread ill-will Against anyone as far as Within one's power.
2. Eminently good is the abstinence from killing a living being;
And so good it is, to desist
From bestowing honour with a bias;
It's said to be good to be a righteous ruler

By achieving quality in administration;
And it is always well
Not to find fault with others.

3. Not to kill lives is highly pleasing; to refrain from honouring people who deviate from the path of equity is greatly pleasing; to become a righteous ruler is most welcome; to avoid, as far as possible, speaking ill of others to anyone is, it is said, most sweet.

6. ஆற்றுந் துணையால் அறஞ்செய்கை முன்னினிதே பாற்பட்டார் கூறும் பயமொழி மாண்பினிதே
வாய்ப்புடைய ராகி வலவைகள் அல்லாரைக்
காப்படையக் கோடல் இனிது.

ārrun tuṇaiyāl arañceykai muninīṭe pārpaṭṭār kūrum payamoli māṇpinīṭe vāyppuṭaiya rāki valavaikaḷ allāraik kāppaṭaiyak kōṭal initu.

1. Most delectable to be righteous
To the extent possible for one;
Most delectable, the worth of wise counsel
Uttered by men of good conduct;
Delectable to be blessed
With opportunities and be protected
By men of grace who Never indulge in acts of disgrace.
2. Eminently good is doing virtuous acts
To the extent possible;
Par-excellence is the useful word of advice
Uttered by men of virtue;
And good it is to seek the protection from those Who're having all means
Of wealth, power and intrepidity
And who are not immodest.
3. Doing charity to the best of one's ability is greatly pleasing; the glory of fruitful words by men of virtue is sweet; securing the patronage of people possessed of learning, wealth, power and valour, and who are not devoid of modesty is sweet.

7. அந்தண ரோத்துடைமை ஆற்ற மிகஇனிதே பந்தம் உடையான் படையாண்மை முன்இனிதே
தந்தையே ஆயினுந் தானடங்கான் ஆகுமேல் கொண்டடையா னாகல் இனிது.

antaṇa rōttuṭaimai ārra mikaiṇitē pantam uṭaiyān paṭaiyāṇmai munṇitē tantaiyē āyiṇun tāṇaṭaṅkāṇ ākumēl koṇṭaṭaiyā nākal iṇitu.

1. Most delectable for Brahmins
To live up to vedic lore.
For men of kingship most delectable
The sway over an army.
Though he were one's father
Better not to follow his counsel
If he happens to be Devoid of self-control.
2. Very good it's for savants not to forget the scriptures;
It is eminently good, if one who is attached
To his family, leads the forces;
And good it is for one not to accept and follow
The ways of even his own father,
If the latter doesn't control himself
From indulging in evil acts.
3. Greatly sweet it will be if authors maintain their knowledge of vedic books; it will be most welcome if one who loves his kith and kin commands the army; it is desirable that the words of a libertine, even if he be one's own parent are not followed.

8. ஊருங் கலிமா உரனுடைமை முன்இனிதே
தார்புனை மன்னர் தமக்குற்ற வெஞ்சமத்துக்
கார்வரை யானைக் கதங்காண்டல் முன்இனிதே
ஆர்வ முடையவர் ஆற்றவும் நல்லவை
பேதுறார் கேட்டல் இனிது.

ūruṇ kalimā uranuṭaimai muninītē tārpuṇai maṇṇar tamakkurra veñcamattuk kārvārai yāṇaik kataṅkāṇṭal muninītē ārva mutaiyavar ārravum nallavai pētūrār kēṭṭal initu.

1. Most delectable if the horse
Be strong, on which one rides.
Most delectable for garlanded kings,
In battles they are engaged in,
To witness the havoc of dark
Hill-like enraged elephants.
Delectable to listen
And understand rightly
The good counsels given
By men of concern and good will.
2. It is eminently good, should the horse one rides
Be of enduring strength;
And it is equally so, for the king who is putting on garland,
To witness the elephants' fight in the battle-field;
Likewise, good it is for those Who do evince interest in good things,
To hear them, unbewildered.
3. It will be highly pleasing if the steed a king rides on be strong and fleet-footed; it will be a greatly pleasing sight for garlanded kings to witness in the field of battle, the warring of irate elephants resembling black mountains; it will be sweet if one who is greatly enthusiastic about acquiring knowledge, listens without illusion, to good teachings.

9. தங்க ணமர்புடையார் தாம்வாழ்தல் முன்னினிதே
அங்கண் விசம்பின் அகல்நிலாக் காண்பினிதே
பங்கமில் செய்கைய ராகிப் பரிந்துயார்க்கும் அன்புடைய ராதல் இனிது.

taṅka ṇamarpuṭaiyār tāmvaṭtal muṇiṇitē aṅkaṇ vicumpiṇ akalṇilāk kāṇpiṇitē paṅkamil ceykaiya rākip parintuyārkkum aṇpuṭaiya rātal iṇitu.

1. Most delectable, if men
 Who befriend us are wealthy.
 Delectable to witness the expanding
 Full-moon in the beautifully vast skies.
 Delectable to grow into Men of blemishless conduct Capable of bestowing
 A loving concern for all.
2. Good it's for one to see that those Who keep friendship with one live in prosperity;
 Good it's to look at the moon with a large halo around it,
 In the beautiful wide sky;
 And good it's to be one who is doing faultless deeds
 And condescending and kind towards all.
3. It will be greatly pleasing if those under one's patronage thrive; it will be pleasing to see the full moon in the lovely far-flung sky; it will be sweet if one free from evil acts is sympathetic to all and fills them with love.

10. கடமுண்டு வாழாமை காண்டல் இனிதே நிறைமாண்பில் பெண்டிரை நீக்கல் இனிதே
 மனமாண்பி லாதவரை யஞ்சி யகறல் எனைமாண்புந் தான்றினிது நன்கு.

kaṭamuṇṭu vāḷāmai kāṇṭal iṇitē niṇaimāṇpil peṇṭirai nikkal iṇitē maṇamāṇpi lātavarai yañci yakaral eṇaimāṇpun tāṇiṇitu nan̄ku.

1. Delectable to see men not subsist
 By eating borrowed food;
 Delectable to desert one's wife
 Who has not the fullness of virtue.

More delectable than any other virtue,
And the best of all,
To cast off in dreadful fear
The company of the mean-minded.

2. Good it's to find one who's living in a state sans debts,
And good it is to expel women
Who are not adhering to chastity;
Superbly good it's rather than any other grace,
To keep away in fear from those Who don't have noble mind.

3. It is pleasing to see one living free from debt; it is sweet to discard an unchaste wife; it is most desirable to draw and keep aloof from people who are not virtuous.

11. அதர்சென்று வாழாமை ஆற்ற இனிதே
குதர்சென்று கொள்ளாத கூர்மை இனிதே
உயிர்சென்று தான்படினும் உண்ணார்கைத் துண்ணாப் பெருமைபோற் பிடுடையது இல்.

atarcenru vālāmai ārra initē kutarcenru kollāta kūrmai initē uyircenru tānpaṭinum unṇārkait tunṇāp perumaipōr piṭuṭaiyatu il.

1. Delectable, not to wander
In search of one's livelihood;
Delectable, the subtlety that grasps
Without faulty reasoning;
Nothing more honourable
Than the glory of refusing To eat from the hands
That are unfit to feed us,
Even if we were
To die of starvation.

2. Very good it is, not to resort to live by moving to places;
It is that sharp brain that doesn't construe
Sophistically, is so good;

And nothing is so dignified as not taking food
From the non-hospitable unworthy,
Even if starvation would culminate in death.

3. It is sweet not to go a-begging; it is sweet to have the sharpness of intellect that avoids misinterpretation; there is nothing as honourable as the avoidance of eating at the hands of the unworthy.

12. குழவி பிணியின்றி வாழ்தல் இனிதே கழறும் அவையஞ்சான் கல்வி இனிதே
மயரிக ளல்லராய் மாண்புடையார்ச் சேரும்
திருவுந்திர் வின்றேல் இனிது.

kulavi piṇiyinri vāṭtal initē kalarum avaiyañcāṇ kalvi initē mayarika ḷallarāy māṇpuṭaiyārc cērum tiruvuntir vinṇēl initu.

1. Delectable for children
To live without any ailment.
Delectable, the learning of the fearless one
Who says the right things in the right place.
Delectable, the wealth
If it reaches the hands
Of the justly great
And stays without diminution.
2. Good it is, should the children be free from diseases all;
And so good is the learning of one who's not afraid
To exhort before the appropriate assembly
Of learned men; and likewise
Eminently good it's, not to be ignorant
But to be dignified by possessing wealth
And that too if it does not exhaust at all.
3. It will be sweet if children live free from disease; the learning of one who shrinks not to speak in an assembly of the learned is sweet; if the wealth accruing to noble people who are free from illusion be perpetual, it is sweet.

13. மான மழிந்தபின் வாழாமை முன்னினிதே
தான மழியாமைத் தானடங்கி வாழ்வினிதே
ஊனமொன் றின்றி உயர்ந்த பொருளுடைமை
மானிடவர்க் கெல்லாம் இனிது.

māṇa malintapin vālāmai muninītē tāṇa maliyāmaīt tāṇataṅki vālviniītē ūnamon rinri uyarnta poruḷuṭaimai māṇiṭavark kellām initu.

1. Delectable not to live
After the loss of one's honour,
Delectable, a life of self-humility
Without losing one's means of livelihood.
Delectable to all human beings
The possession of immense fortunes Acquired through employing
Not a single faulty means.
2. Good it is, not to live for a moment
After one's honour is lost;
So good is the life of one who doesn't lose
What he got as gift
And yet keeping up self-restraint;
And likewise, it would be so good for human beings all,
To possess great things without any flaw.
3. It will be highly desirable not to keep alive after losing one's honour; it is sweet to live in modesty without endangering one's position; it is good for all mankind if one acquires great wealth of knowledge free from any flaw.

14. குழவி தளர்நடை காண்டல் இனிதே அவர்மழலை கேட்டல் அமிழ்தின் இனிதே
வினையுடையான் வந்தடைந்து வெய்துறும் போழ்து மனனஞ்சான் ஆகல் இனிது.

kulavi taḷarnaṭai kāṇṭal inītē avarmaḷalai kēṭṭal amilṭin inītē vinaiyuṭaiyāṇ vantataintu veyturum pōḷtu maṇanañcāṇ ākal initu.

1. Delectable to witness the babes -
 Their tender swaying steps,
 More delectable than the elixir of gods
 To listen to their prattling.
 Delectable to grow fearless of heart
 When consequences
 Of one's past deeds smite one
 In sorrowful times
2. Pleasing it would be, to look at the tottering walk of a babe;
 Hearing their prattling is sweeter
 Than ambrosial nectar;
 And good it's for one becoming not dreadful at heart
 At all, while he has to suffer from anguish
 That comes upon him as a consequence
 Of his evil deeds.
3. To witness the toddling of children is sweet; to hear the lips of children is sweeter than ambrosia; it will be sweet if one who had committed sins in a former birth where he suffers the evil effects thereof boldly puts up with them.

15. பிறன்மனைப் பின்னோக்காப் பிடினி தாற்ற
 வறனுழக்கும் பைங்கூழ்க்கு வான்சோர் வினிதே
 மறமன்னர் தங்கடையுள் மாமலைபோல் யானை மதமுழக்கங் கேட்டல் இனிது.

piranmanaip pinṇōkkāp piṭṭini tārra varaṇuḷakkum painṇūḷkku vāncōr viṇitē maramanṇar taṅkaṭaiyuḷ māmalaiṭōl yāṇai matamuḷakkaṅ kēṭṭal initu.

1. Delectable the manliness
 That ogles not after other men's wives;
 Delectable a shower of rain
 To pining crops in drought.
 At the threshold of courageous kings
 Delectable to listen
 To the enraged hootings
 Of huge hill-like elephants.

2. Good and great it is, not to look back lustily
At another man's wife;
So good is the falling of rain, to the tender crops
Which are withering for want of rain;
And very good it's to hear the trumpeting
Of berserk elephant which is huge like a mountain,
At the outer-gate of the fortress Of brave king.
3. The greatness of casting not a lustful glance at another's wife is sweet; the downpour of rain for green crops that wither for want of it is sweet; it is sweet for valorous kings to hear at their gates the trumpeting of great mountain like rutting elephants.

16. கற்றார்முன் கல்வி உரைத்தல் மிகஇனிதே
மிக்காரைச் சேர்தல் மிகமாண முன்இனிதே
என்துணை யானும் இரவாது தான்ஈதல்
எத்துணையும் ஆற்ற இனிது.

karrārmuṇ kalvi uraittal mikaiṇitē mikkāraic cērtal mikamāṇa muṇiṇitē eṭṭunai yāṇum iravātu tāṇital ettunaiyum ārra iṇitu.

1. Most delectable the exposition
Of one's learning before scholars;
Most delectable and most worthy Befriending of men greater than us;
Most delectable in every respect
Is to make gifts to others
While receiving nothing
Even as little as a seed of sesame.
2. Good it is to submit one's learning attainment
Before the learned,
Very good it's to be in contact with great persons
Who are reputed for their deeds;
And excellent it is by all means to give a gift
By oneself to others,

Instead of begging for alms, yes, not even a little
As the size of a sesame seed.

3. It is greatly sweet to show one's learning to scholars; it is highly pleasing and honourable to seek the company of learned superiors; it is most pleasing in all ways to give without in the least begging from others.

17. நட்டார்க்கு நல்ல செயலினி தெத்துணையும் ஒட்டாரை ஒட்டிக் கொளல்அதனின் முன்னினிதே
பற்பல தானியத்தது ஆகிப் பலருடையும்
மெய்த்துணையுஞ் சேரல் இனிது.

naṭṭārkkku nalla ceyalini tettunaiyum oṭṭārai oṭṭik koḷalatanin muninīṭē parpala tāṇiyattatu ākip palaruṭaiyum meyttunaiyuñ cēral inītu.

1. Delectable to do good
To those who love us;
More delectable than that,
To make them our friends
Who have no truck with our foes.
Delectable to reside
Stored with grains of various kinds
And guarded by warriors many and true.
2. Nice it's for one to do good things to his sincere chums;
And better than that would be, to befriend with those Who won't join at all with foes;
And good it's for one who is possessing Cereals of many kinds,
To have for self, a bodyguard who would be able To discomfit many.
3. It is sweet to do good to those who are on friendly terms with one; sweeter still it is to befriend those who are not on friendly terms with one's enemy; it is sweet to have a kingdom where varied grains do grow in plenty; sweet it is to have for one's bodyguard one who can successfully withstand the onslaught of a number of enemies.

18. மன்றின் முதுமக்கள் வாழும் பதிஇனிதே தந்திரத்தின் வாழும் தவசிகள் மாண்பினிதே
எஞ்சா விழுச்சீர் இருமுது மக்களைக் கண்டெழுதல் காலை இனிது.

maṇṇiṇ mutumakkal vālum patiiniṭē tantirattiṇ vālum tavacikaḷ māṇpiṇiṭē eñcā viḷuccīr irumutu makkalaik kaṇṭelutal kālai iṇitu.

1. Delectable the town where dwell
The wise men of the world.
Delectable the virtue of the mystic
Who lives as per the sacred code;
Delectable the morning – the rising from bed –
Greeting the faces
Of one's two aged parents
Of lasting and full glory.
2. Best is the town where the learned do render justice
From the court-hall;
Good is the greatness of ascetics who live up to the tenets
Of the treatise on rites;
And so good at morn is to reach the parents
Of undiminished distinction
Prostrate at their feet,
Pay respects to them and rise.
3. The place in the village common where people assemble is sweet; the glory of the ascetics who live as enjoined in the Sastras is sweet; to prostrate before one's greatly worthy parents each morning and rise worshipping them is sweet.

19. நட்டார்ப் புறங்கூறான் வாழ்தல் நனிஇனிதே பட்டாங்கு பேணிப் பணிந்தொழுகல் முன்இனிதே
முட்டில் பெரும்பொருள் ஆக்கியக்கால் மற்றது தக்குழி ஈதல் இனிது.

naṭṭārp puraṅkūrāṇ vāṭtal naṇiiniṭē paṭṭāṅku pēṇip paṇintolukal muṇiniṭē muṭṭil perumporuḷ ākkiyakkāl marṛatu takkuli ītal iṇitu.

1. Delectable to live without Talking behind the back of one's friends.
Most delectable, a humble conduct Fostering truth.
If one earns wealth
Vast and limitless
Delectable to bestow it
On appropriate hands.
2. So good it is, not to backbite about one who's friendly;
Eminently good it's to stick on to truth
And to be humble to all;
And when huge wealth is made sans any want,
Good it's to give in charity where the case
Is a deserving one.
3. To live without backbiting our friends is most pleasing; to live in humility suffering truth is sweet beyond measure;
when one earns flawless wealth in plenty, it is sweet to help the deserving with such riches

20. சலவரைச் சாரா விடுதல் இனிதே
புலவர்தம் வாய்மொழி போற்றல் இனிதே மலர்தலை ஞாலத்து மன்னுயிர்க் கெல்லாம்
தகுதியால் வாழ்தல் இனிது.

calavaraic cārā viṭutal initē pulavartam vāymoli pōrral initē malartalai ṇālattu manṇuyirk kellām takutiyāl vāṭtal initu.

1. Delectable to desert the company
Of the wicked and the cheat.
Delectable the appreciation
Of words from a poet's mouth.
Delectable for all the living creatures
In this vast space of earth
To live according to
And by their merits.
2. Good it is to keep off from joining deceitful persons;
Good it is to hold fast to the true utterances of poets;

And very good it is to live in congruity with humanity
Of this wide universe,
Treating all living beings alike.

3. To keep away from the deceitful is sweet; to venerate the words of the learned is sweet; it is sweet to live showing compassion to the innumerable lives on this far-flung earth.

21. பிறன்கைப் பொருள்வெளவான் வாழ்தல் இனிதே அறம்புரிந் தல்லவை நீக்கல் இனிதே
மறந்தேயும் மாணா மயரிகள் சேராத்
திறந்தெரிந்து வாழ்தல் இனிது.

pirankaip poruḷvauvāṇ vāḷtal iṇitē aṛampurin tallavai nīkkal iṇitē marantēyum māṇā mayarikaḷ cērāt tiraṇterintu vāḷtal iṇitu.

1. Delectable to live without coveting
The wealth in others' hands.
Delectable to do what is righteous
And shun what is unrighteous.
Delectable to live discerning Always, and even
In forgetfulness, how to avoid
The company of unworthy fools.
2. Good it is to live without seizing the property
From others' hands;
Good it's to perform virtuous deeds,
Duly abandoning the evil acts;
And very good it's to live, knowing well the strategic means
As how not to join the ignorant persons,
Even out of forgetfulness.
3. To live without appropriating what belongs to another is sweet; to do charity and avoid sin is sweet; to know the ways by which one could avoid association with unworthy stupid persons is sweet.

22. வருவா யறிந்து வழங்கல் இனிதே ஒருவர்பங் காகாத ஊக்கம் இனிதே பெருவகைத் தாயினும் பெட்டவை செய்பார்
திரிபின்றி வாழ்தல் இனிது.

varuvā yarintu valaṅkal initē oruvarpaṅ kākāta ūkkam initē peruvakait tāyīṇum peṭṭavai ceyyār
tiripinri vāltal initu.

1. Delectable to know one's income
And dole out accordingly.
Delectable to be energetic in action
Without being partial to anyone.
Delectable to live without Deviating from one's native virtues,
Without doing what pleases one,
Even if manifold profits thereby ensue.
2. Good it is to give commensurately
With one's level of income;
Good it's the self-impelling stimulus
That's not attributable to someone;
And very good it's to be one who doesn't act
As per his own liking even if it fetches big gains,
And to live sans throwing aside
His own good nature.
3. To do charity with a full knowledge of the extent of one's income is sweet; to have the courage to avoid partiality to any is sweet; to avoid doing things to one's liking however beneficial without deep thought and live true to one's real nature is sweet.

23. காவோ டறக்குளம் தொட்டல் மிகஇனிதே ஆவோடு பொன்னீதல் அந்தணர்க்கு முன்னிதே
பாவமும் அஞ்சாராய்ப் பற்றுந் தொழில்மொழிச்
சூதரைச் சோர்தல் இனிது.

kāvō ṭarakuḷam toṭṭal mikainitē āvōṭu poṇṇītal antaṇarkku muṇinīṭē pāvamum aṅcārāyp parrun toḷilmolic cūtaraic cōrtal initu.

1. Delectable the digging of tanks
With shady trees on the bank;
Delectable making gifts
Of cow and gold to Brahmins.
Delectable to cast off
The company of gamblers
Who grab in deeds and words
Fearless of ensuing evil.
2. Eminently good it is to grow a grove
And dig a charity tank;
So good it is to give cow and gold away
To those savants of virtue;
And good it is to keep off from the artful
Who, even sans dreading of sin,
Do carry on a trade and employ the words
Which again hold fast the sin.
3. It will be greatly pleasing if one digs up tanks for charity and rears a grove; it will be most pleasing if one gives as gift to brahmins gold; to avoid association with gamblers who without dreading even sin, indulge in sinful acts brings delight.

24. வெல்வது வேண்டி வெகுளாதா னோன்பினிதே
ஒல்லுந் துணையும்ஒன்று உய்ப்பான் பொறை இனிதே
இல்லது காமுந் நிரங்கி இடர்ப்படார்
செய்வது செய்தல் இனிது.

velvatu vēṇṭi vekulātā nōṇpinītē ollun tuṇaiyumonru uyppān porai inītē illatu kāmur riraṅki iṭarppaṭār ceyvatu ceytal inītu.

1. Delectable the penance of one
Who espousing victory is not angered.
Delectable the patient endeavour of one
Who keeps to his job to the best of his ability.
Delectable to accomplish what one can
Rather than aspire for abilities

Absent, and feel depressed
For not possessing them and suffer.

2. Good it is the penance of one who is non-irascible
In his desire to excel;
Good it is the tolerance of one who goes ahead,
As far as he can, with what he undertakes;
And good it is for one to do what should be done,
Without suffering afflictions
By longing for anything
Which does not exist at all.
3. The asceticism of a person who with a view to perform tapas successfully avoids anger is sweet; the forbearance to the extent possible of one who performs an act is sweet;
without longing for a thing which is not attained and then sorrowing for not attaining it is sweet; to do that which has to be done with diligence is sweet.

15. ஐவாய வேட்கை யவாவடக்கல் முன்னினிதே
கைவாய்ப் பொருள்பெறினுங் கல்லார்கண் தீர்வினிதே
நில்லாத காட்சி நிறையில் மனிதரைப் புல்லா விடுதல் இனிது.

aivāya vēṭkai yavāvaṭakkal muninīṭe kaivāyp porulperinunḥ kallārkaṇ tīrvinīṭe nillāta kāṭci niraīyil manitaraiṭ pullā viṭutal inītu.

1. Most delectable the control of desire
The thirst of the five senses.
Delectable to forsake the company
Of the unlearned even if it means
The immediate achievement of an object.
Delectable to relinquish men
Of wavering minds and infirm hearts
And to shun their association.
2. Good it is to extirpate the desires
Which are arising from the quinary senses;
Good it is not to join with those who are uneducated,

Even if such joining would fetch the riches
That may remain on hand;
And good it is to keep off from the men
Who don't hold their wavering mind firmly.

3. It is sweet to control the desire born of the five senses and avoid hankering after such enjoyments; even if one were to get rich treasure it is better to avoid association with the unlearned; it is sweet to associate not with those whose knowledge is not deep-rooted and whose mind is wavering.

26. நச்சித்தற் சென்றார் நசைகொல்லா மாண்பினிதே உட்கில் வழிவாழா ஊக்கம் மிகஇனிதே
எத்திறத் தானும் இயைவ கரவாத பற்றினின் பாங்கினியது இல்.

naccittar cenṇār nacaikollā māṇṇinītē uṭkil valivāḷā ūkkam mikaiṇitē ettirāt tāṇum iyaiva karavāta parrinṇin pāṅkiṇiyatu il.

1. Delectable not to kill men's aspirations
When they seek guidance for achieving them.
Delectable patient perseverance
In the absence of an honourable living.
There is nothing more delectable
Than the friendly attitude
Which does not conceal
What help it can render.
2. Good it is not to kill one's desire
Who approaches with his longing;
And eminently good is the impulse of living
Not at the cost of dignity;
Nothing else is better than the goodness
Of one who does not hide from him,
What he would be able to offer to others,
By any means.

3. The greatness of one who does not disappoint a person who comes seeking help is sweet; the glory of ceasing to live when one loses his honour is sweet; there is nothing so sweet as a person's kindness that knows not to hide a thing and refuse to give when it is somehow possible to give.

27. தானங் கொடுப்பான் தகையாண்மை முன்னினிதே மானம் படவரின் வாழாமை முன்னினிதே ஊனங்கொண் டாடார்உறுதி உடையவை
 கோள்முறையாற் கோடல் இனிது.

tānaṅ koṭuppan takaiyāṇmai munṇiṇitē māṇam paṭavarin vālāmai munṇiṇitē ūṇaṅkoṇ ṭāṭāruruti utaiyavai kōḷmuraiyār kōṭal iṇitu.

1. Most delectable the manliness
 That protects those who surrender;
 Most delectable not to live
 When shorn of one's honour.
 Delectable to accept duties
 In which no fault can be found –
 In proper ways of acceptance –
 If they are grounded in firm virtues.
2. Eminently good is the proudful intrepidity of one Who's giving sanctuary to those who seek;
 And more so it is, not to live, should one uphold
 His honour only on his death;
 Good it is to take only good things without finding fault
 With others' acts,
 And that too in a manner that befits to receive Such lasting facts.
3. The great heroism of the man who gives protection to one seeking it is most sweet; to court death when one is confronted with disgrace is highly desirable; to learn firm truths of life in the way one should, without finding fault with others is sweet.

28. ஆற்றாணை யாற்றென் றலையாமை முன்இனிதே
கூற்றம் வரவுண்மை சிந்தித்து வாழ்வினிதே
ஆக்க மழியினும் அல்லவை கூறாத தேர்ச்சியின் தேர்வினியது இல்.

ārrānai yārren ralaiyāmai muninīṭē kūrram varavuṇmai cintittu vālviniṭē ākka maliyinum allavai kūṛāta tērcchiyṇ tērviniyatu il.

1. Delectable not to harass one
To do something that he cannot do.
Delectable to live bearing in mind
The certainty of approaching death.
There is no discernment more delectable
Than the discernment
That utters not words of evil
Even when one's wealth is lost.
2. Good it is not to harass one to do a work
Which he is incapable of doing;
And good it is to live keeping in mind
That the arrival of death is certain one day;
And there is no other perspicuity
Than the discernment of one
That makes him not to utter sinful words,
Even if it costs his whole wealth.
3. Vexing not one to do a thing which is beyond his competence is very desirable; it is sweet to live one's life bestowing thought on the certainty of death; there is nothing so sweet as the discernment of the man who indulges not in sinful words even if he were to lose his all.

29. கயவரைக் கைகழிந்து வாழ்தல் இனிதே உயர்வுள்ளி ஊக்கம் பிறத்தல் இனிதே எளியர் இவரென் றிகழ்ந்துரையா ராகி ஒளிபட வாழ்தல் இனிது.

kayavaraik kaikaḷintu vāṭtal inītē uyarvuḷḷi ūkkam pirattal inītē eḷiyar ivaren rikaḷinturaiyā rāki oḷipaṭa vāṭtal initu.

1. Delectable to live washing off
 The company of the wicked.
 Delectable the birth of zeal
 In pursuit of upliftment.
 Delectable to live in the limelight
 Without ever disgracing
 Anyone because he is Indigent and weak.
2. Good it is to live keeping apart from the base fellows;
 Getting the impulse to reach the lofty height
 By thinking high, is good;
 And good it is to live in celebrity without despising one
 As pitiable and poor, without knowing
 His merit or talent.
3. It is sweet to live keeping aloof from the wicked; it is sweet for one to fill with energy with a view to his advancement;
 to live in glory without uttering words of derision against the poor is sweet.

30. நன்றிப் பயன்தூக்கி வாழ்தல் நனிஇனிதே
 மன்றக் கொடும்பா டுரையாத மாண்பினிதே
 அன்றறிவார் யாரென் றடைக்கலம் வெளவாத
 நன்றியின் நன்கினியது இல்.

nanrip payantūkki vāṭtal naniinītē maṇrak koṭumpā ṭuraiyāta māṇpinītē aṇṇarivār yāren rataikkalam vauvāta nanriyin nanḱiniyatu il.

1. Very delectable weighing still in gratitude
 The worth of goodness shown.
 Delectable the honesty that stands not as False witness in a court of justice.

There is nothing more delectable
 Than the honest goodness
 Which covets not things left in trust,
 Saying "Who knows the day or the deed?"

2. Good it is to live, keeping in mind forever
 The benefits of one's help;
 Speaking not partially in a court,
 Is a great thing indeed;
 And nothing else is so good as the pious act
 Of not taking away for self,
 Those things deposited by others for custody,
 Thinking who'd know about the past deed.
3. It is sweet to think of the fruit of the good done to us by others and so live; the glory of bearing not false witness at court is sweet; there is nothing so good as the nature of one who does not appropriate the thing entrusted to his care thinking,
 "Whoever was a witness to this when it was entrusted to me?"

31. அடைந்தார் துயர்கூரா ஆற்ற இனிதே கடன்கொண்டுஞ் செய்வன செய்தல் இனிதே
 சிறந்தமைந்த கேள்விய ராயினும் ஆராய்ந்து
 அறிந்துரைத்தல் ஆற்ற இனிது.

aṭaintār tuyarkūrā ārra initē kaṭaṅkoṇṭuñ ceyvaṇa ceytal initē ciraṇtamainta kēlviya rāyiṇum ārāyntu aṛinturaittal ārra initu.

1. Delectable to so order things
 That those who surrender do not suffer.
 Delectable to get things done that are to be done
 Even incurring debts.
 Even if one were well-versed
 In learning and listening Delectable to offer his opinion
 After proper enquiry and understanding.
2. Good it's for one to see that those who took refuge in him
 Do not suffer much,

Good it is to do what is to be done,
 Albeit it may cost incurring a debt;
 And good it is even for those renowned for sound wisdom
 Of learning by hearing,
 To ruminate and then utter their considered opinion
 Over a thing.

3. It will give delight if the grief of one who has sought one's protection is assuaged; it will be a source of delight if one, even if it be by running into debt, does things that have to be done; it is most desirable that however learned one may be, he examines things deeply and then expresses himself.

32. கற்றறிந்தார் கூறும் கருமப் பொருள்இனிதே பற்றமையா வேந்தன்கீழ் வாழாமை முன்இனிதே
 தெற்றென வின்றித் தெளிந்தாரைத் தீங்குக்காப் பத்திமையிற் பாங்கினியது இல்.

karrarintār kūrum karumap poruḷinītē parramaiyā vēntaṅkīḷ vāḷāmai muṇinītē terreṇa viṇṛit teḷintārait tīṅkūkkāp pattimaiyir pāṅkiṇiyatu il.

1. Delectable the consequences of one's deeds Explained by the learned-wise.
 Delectable not to live as the subject
 Of a loveless monarch.
 There is nothing more delectable
 Than the forgiving attitude of love
 That injures not those, who,
 With no forethought have harmed us.
2. What the erudite scholars indicate as the Outcome of a deed, would be good;
 Good it is not to live under a ruler,
 Who hath no love towards his citizens;
 And nothing is so good as one's gentility of trying
 Not to do harm to those Who, without any thought, hath done to him
 All evil deeds with speed.

3. The fruit of words of the learned is sweet; it is greatly desirable that one lives not under a king who has no love towards his subjects; there is nothing so great as the kindness of the man who does not harm those who without forethought have done him harm.

33. ஊர்முனியா செய்தொழுகும் ஊக்கம் மிகஇனிதே தானே மடிந்திராத் தாளாண்மை முன்இனிதே
வாள்மயங்கு மண்டமருள் மாறாத மாமன்னர் தானை தடுத்தல் இனிது.

ūrmuniyā ceytolukum ūkkam mikaiṇitē
tāṇē maṇtīrāt tālāṇmai muṇiṇitē vālmayaṅku maṇṭamaruḷ māṛāta māmaṇṇar tāṇai taṭuttal iṇitu.

1. Very delectable the zeal
In pursuits not faulted by the wise.
Most delectable the enterprising nature
That guards one from self-lethargy.
Delectable the prevention of wars
Between armies of mighty kings
Who accept not defeat
And swords smite thick against swords.
2. Very good is the conviction of doing a thing
Which the society does not censure;
Eminently good it is for one as the chief to persevere,
Without himself remaining indolent;
And good it is to avert waging a war
With the army of a great king
Who won't retreat in the warfare,
Where sword-fight will be dominant.
3. The glory of one who does things not hated by the people of the place is very pleasing; greatly sweet it is if one who is himself the chief without keeping idle exerts himself to the utmost; it is sweet if one prevents a clash between the unflinching armies of kings of great renown ranged close in the battle field with flashing swords against each other.

34. எல்லிப் பொழுது வழங்காமை முன்இனிதே
சொல்லுங்கால் சோர்வின்றிச் சொல்லுதல் மாண்பினிதே
புல்லிச் கொளினும் பொருளல்லார் தங்கேண்மை கொள்ளா விடுதல் இனிது.

ellip polutu valāṅkāmai muninīṭē colluṅkāḷ cōrvinric collutal māṇṇinīṭē pullik koḷinum poruḷallār taṅkēṇmai koḷḷā viṭutal initu.

1. Most delectable is it
Not to travel by night-time.
Delectable when explaining, the power
To explain without forgetfulness.
Delectable to give up the company
Of worthless ones
Even if their friendship
Is freely volunteered.
2. Very good it is not to proceed on an unknown way
During night time;
Eminently good it is to tell without forgetting anything
While telling so;
And good it is to abandon without entertaining
The friendship of those unworthy fellows,
Even if they voluntarily come forward
To cling.
3. It is greatly desirable to avoid travelling by night; the glory of speaking without blemish when one talks is sweet; it is sweet to eschew friendship with the unworthy though they come of their own accord seeking such association.

35. ஒற்றினான் ஒற்றிப் பொருள்தெரிதல் முன்இனிதே முற்றான் தெரிந்து முறைசெய்தல் முன்இனிதே
பற்றிலனாய்ப் பல்லுயிர்க்கும் பாத்துற்றுப் பாங்கறிதல்
வெற்றிவேல் வேந்தர்க்கு இனிது.

orriṇāṇ orrip poruḷterital muninīṭē murrāṇ terintu muraiceyṭal muninīṭē parrilanāyp palluyirkkum pātturruṇ pāṅkarital verrivēḷ vēntarkku initu.

1. Most delectable to set spies on spies
And understand the true import.
Most delectable to render justice
After making clear the nature of offence.
Delectable for kings of victorious spear
To be without partiality,
To favour all and be accessible
And to understand the nature of offence.
2. Eminently good it is for a king
Who is a conquering lance-bearer,
To discern the truth by espionage, duly employing Skilful spies;
Eminently good it is for him to do justice,
After enquiring into the offence himself, first;
And good it is for him to share with all living-beings
Treating them alike and to monitor where they err.
3. To the king of the victorious spear, the excellence of understanding the significance of secrets culled from one's enemy country by means of spies gives joy; to conduct a proper investigation and then mete out punishment is greatly pleasing; without partiality to anybody, with equal love at heart towards all, to investigate and find out the truth of a crime is sweet.

36. அவ்வித் தழுக்கா றுரையாமை முன்னினிதே
செவ்வியனாய்ச் செற்றுச் சினங்கடிந்து வாழ்வினிதே
கவ்வித்தாங் கொண்டுதாங் கண்டது காமுற்று
வவ்வார் விடுதல் இனிது.

avvit talukkā ruraiyāmai muninīṭē cevviyanāyc cerruc ciṇaṅkaṭintu vāḷviṇiṭē kavvittāṅ koṇṭutāṅ kaṇṭatu kāmurru vavvār viṭutal iṇitu.

1. Most delectable not to utter Through crookedness words of envy.
Delectable to live free from anger
With an open mind.
Delectable to relinquish things

Rather than grasp at them
With a mind lusting for them –
What one has and what one sees.

2. Eminently good it is not to utter words
In envy, out of perversity;
Good it is to live as a guileless gentleman,
Duly discarding and killing the fury;
And good it is for one to leave without taking hold
Of other's things for himself at opportune time,
Out of unjust desire of getting at it
By keeping an evil mind over it.
3. It is greatly sweet to avoid uttering with perversion at heart words of jealousy; with uprightness at heart to passionately put down wrath and so live is sweet; to refrain from appropriating at an opportune moment a thing seen, coveting it with the heart greatly set on it is sweet.

37. இளமையை மூப்பென் றுணர்தல் இனிதே
கிளைஞர்மாட் டச்சின்மை கேட்டல் இனிதே தடமென் பணைத்தோள் தளிரிய லாரை
விடமென் றுணர்தல் இனிது.

iḷamaiyai mūppen ruṇartal initē kiḷaiñarmāṭ ṭaccinmai kēṭṭal initē taṭamen panaittōḷ taḷiriya lārai viṭamen ruṇartal initu.

1. Delectable the realization
That one's youth is but old age.
Delectable the fearless conversation
Among one's kith and kin.
Delectable to consider as poison
Women of shoulders
Tender and smooth as bamboos
And soft as tender leaves.
2. Good it is to consider youth
As ripe old age and act likewise;
Good it is to hear of the kinsfolk,

Those words which do not cause fear;
 And good it is to realize that all other women
 Who are tender as sprout
 And who are having soft shoulders like bamboo,
 Are nothing else than poison
 (and keep off from them).

3. To discern age in youth is sweet; to enquire the welfare of kith and kin is sweet; to deem tender sprout-like women with big soft bamboo like shoulders as venom is sweet.

38. சிற்றா ளுடையான் படைக்கல மாண்பினிதே
 நட்டா ருடையான் பகையாண்மை முன்னினிதே
 எத்துணையும் ஆற்ற இனிதென்ப பால்படுங் கற்றா உடையான் விருந்து.

cirraṭ ḷuṭaiyāṇ paṭaikkala māṇpinitē naṭṭā ruṭaiyāṇ pakaiyāṇmai muninītē ettuṇaiyum ārra initenpa pālpaṭuṇ karrā uṭaiyāṇ viruntu.

1. Delectable the possession of weapons
 For one surrounded with young warriors.
 Most delectable the overpowering of enemies
 For one surrounded with kith and kin.
 The feast given by one Owning a milch cow and her calf —
 They call it delectable
 In every respect.
2. The eminence of the arms of one Who's having his own hirelings, is good;
 Great is the strategy of one Who's having relatives to deal with enmity;
 And good in all respects is the banquet
 Feasted by one
 Who possesses milk-giving milch cows
 Along with calves.

3. The possession of war weapons by a king who has young and energetic soldiers is greatly pleasing; the capabilities of the man possessed of kith and kin to manage the enemies are sweet beyond measure; the feast given by a householder raising a cow and a calf yielding plenteous milk is highly delightful, they say, in all ways.

39. பிச்சைபுக் குண்பான் பிளிறாமை முன்னினிதே துச்சி லிருந்து துயர்கூரா மாண்பினிதே
ஏற்றபே ராசை கருதி அறனொருஉம் ஒற்கம் இலாமை இனிது.

piccaipuk kuṇpāṇ piḷirāmai muninīṭē tucci liruntu tuyarkūrā māṇṇinīṭē ērrapē rācai karuti araṇorūm orkam ilāmai inītu.

1. Good for him who eats by begging
Not to shout in anger.
Good not to live in the lone corner
Of a house and suffer.
Good the absence of mental depression
Caused by greed dwelling
In the minds inducing one
To swerve from righteousness.
2. Eminently good it is for one who lives on alms,
Not to burst in anger;
Great is the avoidance of suffering on account of living
In a place of retreat;
And good it is, not to fall in a droop
Which causes deviation from the path of virtue, Having developed in mind
An unjustified avarice.
3. It will be highly pleasing if one who begs does not get angry; to fill not with grievous thought dwelling in a mean hovel is gloriously sweet; to be without the weakness of heart that out of greed tends to deviate from the path of virtue is sweet.

40. பத்துக் கொடுத்தும் பதியிருந்து வாழ்வினிதே வித்துக்குற் றுண்ணா விழுப்பம் மிகஇனிதே
பற்பல நாளும் பழுதின்றிப் பாங்குடைய
கற்றலிற் காழினியது இல்.

pattuk koṭuttum patiyiruntu vālvinitē vittukkur runṇā viḷuppam mikainitē parpala nālum paḷutinrip pārṇkuṭaiya karryaliṛ kāḷiṇiyatu il.

1. Delectable to dwell in one's native town
Even by spending in tens.
Most delectable the sufficiency
That eats not what is kept for seed.
There is nothing more delectable
Than to keep on learning
Day after day, in a faultless way
Things of useful value.
2. Good it is to live in one's own locality, even at the cost Of presenting ten kinds of things;
Very good it is the eminence of living not on the income
Derived by selling the seed grain of paddy;
And there's no other good act
Like that of learning such books
Which do good without any fault,
For days and days together.
3. It is desirable to live in one's native place even by paying the penalty imposed; the easy condition that makes it possible for one to avoid pestling and eating the seed set apart for sowing is highly pleasing; there is nothing so sweet as the flawless study each day of good words.

இனியவை நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

MUTARKURIPPAKARĀTĪ

இனியவை நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

Mutarkurippakarāti

அடைந்தார் துயர்கூரா	31	aṭaintār tuyarkūrā
அதர்சென்று வாழாமை	11	atarceṇṇu vāḷāmai
அந்தண ரோத்துடைமை	7	antaṇa rōttuṭaimai
அவ்வித் தழுக்கா	36	avvit taḷukkā
ஆற்றானை யாற்றென்	28	ārrānai yārren
ஆற்றுந் துணையால்	6	ārrun tuṇaiyāl
இளமையை மூப்பென்	37	iḷamaiyai mūppen
உடையான் வழக்கினி	2	uṭaiyān vaḷakkini
ஊர்முனியா செய்தொழுகும்	33	ūrmuṇiyā ceytolukum
ஊருங் கவிமா	8	ūruṇ kalimā
எல்விப் பொழுது வழங்காமை	34	ellip poḷutu vaḷaṅkāmai
ஏவது மாறா	3	ēvatu māṛā
ஐவாய வேட்கை	25	aivāya vēṭkai
ஒற்றினான் ஒற்றிப்	35	orriṇāṇ orrip
கடமுண்டு வாழாமை	10	kaṭamuṇṭu vāḷāmai
கயவரைக் கைகழிந்து	29	kayavaraik kaikaḷintu
கற்றறிந்தார் கூறும்	32	karrarintār kūrum
கற்றார்முன் கல்வி உரைத்தல்	16	karrārmun kalvi uraittal
காவோ டறக்குளம்	23	kāvō ṭarakkulaṁ
குழவி தளர்நடை	14	kuḷavi taḷarnaṭai
குழவி பிணியின்றி	12	kuḷavi piṇiyiṇri
கொல்லாமை முன்னினிது	5	kollāmai muṇiṇitu
சலவரைச் சாரா	20	calavaraic cārā
சிற்பா ஞடையான்	38	cirṛā ḷuṭaiyān
தங்க ணமர்புடையார்	9	taṅka ṇamarpuṭaiyār
தானங் கொடுப்பான்	27	tāṇaṅ koṭuppān
நச்சித்தற் சென்றார்	26	naccittar ceṇṛār

நட்டார்க்கு நல்ல
 நட்டார்ப் புறங்கூறான்
 நன்றிப் பயன்தூக்கி
 பத்துக் கொடுத்தும்
 பிச்சைபுக் காயினுங் கற்றல்
 பிச்சைபுக் குண்பான்
 பிறன் கைப்பொருள்
 பிறன்மனை பின்னோக்காப்
 மன்றின் முதுமக்கள்
 மான மழிந்தபின்
 யானை யுடைய படைகாண்டல்
 வருவா யறிந்து
 வெல்வது வேண்டி.

17 naṭṭārkku nalla
 19 naṭṭārp puṛaṅkūrāṇ
 30 nanrip payaṇtūkki
 40 pattuk koṭuttum
 1 piccaipuk kāyinun karraḷ
 39 piccaipuk kuṇpāṇ
 21 piraṇ kaipporuḷ
 15 piraṇmaṇai piṇṇōkkāp
 18 maṇṇiṇ mutumakkaḷ
 13 māṇa maḷintapiṇ
 4 yānai yuṭaiya paṭaikāṇṭal
 22 varuvā yaṛintu
 24 velvatu vēṇṭi

KĀR NĀRPATU

In English Verse and Prose

KĀR NĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English Verse and Prose

Compiled and Edited by
P. RAJA

Translators
S. Raman, Poet Desini
Nalladai R. Balakrishna Mudaliyar

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

2012

Ancient Tamil Classics in Translation Series

KĀR NĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English

© Central Institute of Classical Tamil, Chennai

CICT Publication No. 19

First published 2012

Published by

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

ISBN: 978-93-81744-08-6

Typeset by

Central Institute of Classical Tamil

Printed by

Government of India Press, Coimbatore – 641 019
Tamil Nadu, India.

INTRODUCTION

Forty stanzas in Veṇpā metre constitute Kār Nārpatu. Kār means black. The rain bearing clouds black in color make their appearance in the rainy season, that is, from October to December. The arrival of the monsoon is something special to the Mullait tiṇai and so the work comprises an enchanting description of the cloudy weather and of nature's bounty during this season.

Kār Nārpatu speaks of the life and times of the young couple who belong to the forest region. According to conventions, the hero of this land has no way but to leave his beloved and go out of his region for one reason or the other – perhaps on official duty obeying the commands of his king or in search of wealth for the betterment of his future or to station himself in the frontier to safeguard his land from alien invasion.

The hero promises his wife that he would come back during the monsoon. But owing to overpressure of work he delays his return, though the plight of his wife is very much in his mind. Kār Nārpatu depicts the state of the heroine expecting the return of the hero at the appointed time of the season. All these days of tedious waiting are bound to vanish like a dream at the very sight of the hero. But there is no sign of the hero's coming home.

The readers cannot but admire the patience with which the heroine awaits the arrival of her lord. Her confidante is a real consolation to her. It is she who instils lots of hope into her. In fact, she serves as the best example for the definition of a true friend – “One who comforts and supports at the time of need”. And the hero too, somewhere far away from home, prepares for his return journey and informs his charioteer to hurry up so that they cover the long distance in a short time. The conduct of these four characters – hero, heroine, friend and charioteer – is typical of Mullait tiṇai and is admirably depicted in Kār Nārpatu.

Every stanza in Kār Nārpatu is a feast to the mind's eye, for it depicts the beauty of Nature in all its glory. The different kinds of blooms typical of the forest region with their shapes and colours are painted in words. Through realistic similes, the whole work simply translates the beautiful ideas of the earlier Caṅkam poetry in the new idiom and rhythm of the age.

The hungry clouds after sucking deep the ocean climb over hills and mountains to reach the skies. These rain-bearing clouds make the skies look black. There appears the rainbow that looks like the garland strung with multicoloured flowers that adorn the neck and chest of Lord Thirumal. Lightning strikes like the dazzling blade of the king's sword used to behead elephants at one go. Thunder rolls and roars like a reverberating war drum, thereby making the oxen cry and the hissing cobras too shiver in fear.

It rains like cats and dogs. Rain water reaches the earth like a lady with her unbundled long hair floating. Rain drops, both big and small, reach the land driving out the heat waves and making the region cool. And the forest that resembled the body of an uncared for poor, now puts on a new rich garb. Its beauty is akin to that of the enticing beauty of girls in their teens. All the trees laugh through their blooms and a fine scent emanates throughout the forest.

Cenkāntaḷ flowers look like lamps lit during kārttikai festival. A bunch of Kāntaḷ flowers resembles the hood of a snake. And like the lovely milk-white teeth of beautiful girls are the jasmine buds. Oh! What alluring images!

If there are flowers and flowers all over the forest, then what do we expect the honeybees to do? They all swarm around the flowers and suck their nectar. They hover over flowers and hum around them. They look as if they were blowing trumpets and enjoying their action like a rich man achieving an everlasting fame.

Kār Nārpatu is a work of metrical beauties and treats of love. This work is a good example of the saying: "Absence makes love grow fonder!"

It is said by the Tamils that "No married man is incomplete" implying that marriage with all its responsibilities makes a man complete. Hence it is the duty of the married man to go out in search of wealth for the future of his family. It is not that his ancestors have left nothing for him. But society demands that he makes his own path and adds to his ancestral property. And to earn this wealth he has no way but to be separated from his wife for sometime at least till his dreams are fulfilled. The poor wife bereft of her man's love longs for it. When he is unable to keep his promise of returning during the monsoon she is very much worried. Will he ever come? Will he ever keep his promise? She is cross with him for she fears the society. Her friend comes to her rescue by pointing at the different flowers and speaking of the seasonal changes and also promising her that the time is ripe for the hero's arrival. But it is a long wait.

On the other side, the hero too is reminded of his wife because of the chill-cool weather, the season he promised for his return. He urges the charioteer to drive faster. This again is only waiting while driving.

Will they ever meet?

Maturai Kannankuttanar is the author of this work. He was christened kuttanar and was the son of Kannan. The Tamils even in days of yore wrote their names preceded by their fathers' names. The author was either born in Maturai or he came there to make a living. Hence he was called Maturai Kannankuttanar. He is not credited with any other work.

KĀR NĀRPATU

1. பொருகடல் வண்ணன் புனைமார்பிற் றார்போல்
திருவில் விலங்கூன்றித் தீம்பெயல் தாழ்
வருதும் எனமொழிந்தார் வாரார்கொல் வானங் கருவிருந் தாலிக்கும் போழ்து.

porukaṭal vaṇṇaṇ puṇaimārpīr rārpōl tiruvil vilankūṇṇit tīmpeyal tāla varutum eṇamolintār vārārkoḷ vāṇaṅ karuvirun tālikkum pōltu.

1. "We would be back,"—
So promised our lord,—
"When like unto
The garland across the chest
Of the deep-blue Wave-tossed
Sea-complexioned one,
The rainbow Shines athwart
In the sky,
And the clouds
Fall down
In a drizzle".
Won't he be back,
Now that
The sky and the impregnated cloud
Have begun to drizzle?
2. The pleasant rain falls, placing the beautiful rainbow
athwart the sky,
Like the garland put on His bosom by the Lord Vishnu,
the Preserver;
And the black cloud which is laden with water,
drops its opening showers;

Behold, O my lady, it's sure our hero who gave word,
will now return this season.

3. Our lord told us that he would return home when, like the garland worn on the bosom of Thirumal, who is of the colour of the sea that breaks on the shore, bending the rainbow in high heaven, sweet showers of rain are poured down. Now that pregnant clouds send down drops of rain, would he not return?

2. கடுங்கதிர் நல்கூரக் கார்செல்வ மெய்த
நெடுங்காடு நேர்சினை யினக்-கொடுங்குழாய்
இன்னே வருவர் நமரென் றெழில்வானம்
மின்னு மவர்தா துரைத்து.

kaṭuṅkatir nalkūrak kārcelva meyta neṭuṅkāṭu nērcinai yīnak-koṭuṅkulāy innē varuvar namareṇ relilvāṇam minṇu mavartū turaittu.

1. Lady of curved ear ornaments;
Impoverishing the hot rays of the sun,
And enriching the monsoon
And enabling the extended forests
All their rich flora to bloom
The beautifully clouded sky
Betokens through these harbingers
That our lord will be back,
Even now.
Look: the sky lightens.
2. Behold, O my lady wearing golden ear-rings,
the fire-rays of the Sun have become less hot;
The rainy season has brought prosperity;
Flower-buds are budding in plenty throughout the forest way;
And the rising cloud is emitting lightning, yes, conveying a message, as our hero's messenger,
That he would arrive now, at this moment,
since the season has approached.

3. O maid with a bent hollow pendant in the ear! The heat of the sun subsiding, the winter season mellowing in richness, the extensive jungles putting forth buds galore, the potent clouds as the envoy of our lover, announce by means of lightning, his return home at this very hour.

3. வரிநிறப் பாதிரி வாட வளிபோழ்ந் தயிர்மணற் றண்டறவி னாலி - புரள
உருமிடி வான மிழிய வெழுமே
நெருந் லொருத்தி திறத்து.

varinirap pātiri vāṭa vaḷipōḷn tayirmanar raṇpuravi nāli - puraḷa urumīti vāṇa mīliya veḷumē neruna lorutti tirattu.

1. Padiri flowers of lined hues

Droop;

Through the groves cool

Of soft sands

Winds sway;

And little icicles of rain

Drop;

From yester morn

The low rumbling clouds

Lower;

Leaving this lady alone

To pine.

2. The purple-coloured flowers of fragrant trumpet-flower tree do wither;

In the chill forest of fine sand, the hail-stones, having been cut thro' by the wind, pour down and roll;

And the thundering cloud has since yesterday
risen to fall as rain,

To afflict this love-lorn lady who's pining in solitude
for the arrival of her lover.

3. The trumpet flower with coloured streaks fading, the hail-stones in the small soft sanded cool forest rent asunder by the winds, rolling up the thunder clouds have gathered (en masse) from yesterday with a view to rain and put a lovely maid to grief!

4. ஆடு மகளிரின் மஞ்ஞை யணிகொளக்
காடுங் கடுக்கை கவின்பெறப் பூத்தன
பாடுவண் டுதும் பருவம் பணைத்தோளி வாடும் பசலை மருந்து.

āṭu maṇalirīṇ maññai yaṇikoḷak kāṭuṇ kaṭukkai kavinperap pūttana pāṭuvaṇ ṭūtum paruvam paṇaittōḷi vāṭum pacalai maruntu.

1. Of shoulders smooth as bamboo!
Like unto well-decorated danseuses
The peacocks spread their wings,
And are beautiful;
Beautiful are the forests
With Konrai flowers all in bloom;
And the intoning bees
Blow and pipe their ditties;
This season of monsoon
Is the medicine
For the sickness of separation
That turns you pale.
2. The peacocks have got elegant looks like those of dancing damsels;
The forests have also cast a charming grace with the blooming of Indian Laburnum;
And the humming bees are getting honey out of those flowers;
Yes, O, my lady, having bamboo-like shoulders;
This is the season which is a sure cure for the paleness of complexion of thy afflicting love-sickness.
3. Like dancing maid the peacocks appear lovely in the jungle, the cassia becomes lovely too with blooms; the droning beetles probe the flowers (for honey); so O lady with shoulders bamboo
-like! This season is the curative for thy lovesick sallowness.

5. இகழுநர் சொல்லஞ்சிச் சென்றார் வருதல்
பகழிபோ லுண்கண்ணாய் பொய்யன்மை யீண்டைப்
பவழஞ் சிதறி யவைபோலக் கோபந்
தவழுந் தகைய புறவு.

ikaḷunar collaṇcic ceṇṇār varutal pakaḷipō luṇkaṇṇāy poyyaṇmai yīṇṇṭaiḥ pavaḷaṇ citari yavaipōlak kōpan tavaḷun takaiya puravu.

1. Lady of collyrium-fed eyes
Sharp as arrows!
Like unto these coral beads
Scattered here,
The groves are strewn
With Indragopa buds.
Our lord who had gone abroad,
Fearing ridicule of those who jest,
Will certainly be back;
This is no lie.
2. O, my lady having arrow-like eyes, which are painted black on their lower lids,
The forests are seen with the sight of the cochineal insects which have spread on all sides,
Like the spill of red corals from thy red coral bracelet here;
and so it's no falsity that our hero,
Who proceeded in pursuit of wealth, would now return,
dreading the words of blame of the scorers.
3. O lady with arrow-like collyrium painted eyes! Look in the jungle here, like corals sprinkled, the silky red worms abound; so that thy lord who fearing the evil tongue of slander went away (to acquire wealth) will return home is not untrue.

6. தொடியிட வாற்றா தொலைந்ததோ ணோக்கி
வடுவிடைப் போழ்ந்தகன்ற கண்ணாய் வருந்தல்
கடிதிடி வான முரறு நெடுவிடைச்
சென்றாரை நீடன்மி னென்று.

toṭiyiṭa vārrā tolaintatō nōkki vaṭuvīṭaip pōlntakanra kaṇṇāy varuntal kaṭitiṭi vāna muraru netuvīṭaic cenrārai nītanmi nenru.

1. Of eyes

Resembling a mango
Of unhardened seed
Hewn in the middle!
The thundering clouds
Rumble to our lord,
Gone to distant lands
Not to tarry long.
Look not so mournfully
At your shoulders and arms
Grown weak Incapable of wearing
Even the bangles.

2. O, my lady having broad eyes which look like the tender unripe mango cut in the middle,
The cloud which thunders loudly roars, yes, suggesting to our hero who hath gone to a distant place,
Not to delay his return; so don't be distressed over it,
by looking at thy shoulders
Which have become so lean out of love-sickness,
as not to bear the armlets with grip.

3. O lady with eyes wide like the cut up middle of a tender mango, the thundering clouds will peal forth to our lord who ventured into the distant road, that he should hasten back home. So pine not looking at thy shoulders that have weakened, making thy shoulder bracelets loose.

7. நச்சியார்க் கீதலு நண்ணார்த் தெறுதலுந்
தற்செய்வான் சென்றார்த் தருஉந் தளரியலாய்
பொச்சாப் பிலாத புகழ்வேள்வித் தீப்போல எச்சாரு மின்னு மழை.

nacciyārk kīṭalu naṇṇārt teṟutaluṇ tarceyvān cenṇārt tarūun taḷariyalāy pocčāp pilāta pukaḷvēḷvit tippōla eccāru minṇu maḷai.

1. Dejected damsel;
Look! On all sides
The rain-clouds lighten
Like unto
The hoary sacrificial fires
Unforgettingly observed.
Our lord,
Gone abroad to bestow
Good on those who befriend,
And punish those who oppose,
Thus to confirm his fame,
Will be brought back
And given to us.
2. O, damsel so tender as a sprout, look at the sky where lightning is seen on all sides,
Like the sacrificial fire of faultless celebrity! Yes,
this season would bring our hero back here,
Who proceeded in pursuit of wealth, after deciding that bestowing munificence to those who approach
And destroying the foes who don't approach in friendship, would make his position strong.
3. O lady with a tender heart! Our lord thinking that giving gifts to those who approach us asking for them, and wiping out these enemies who do not do so are acts that stand us in good stead went in search of wealth. Such a one the clouds lightning on all sides like the unforgettable renowned altar fire, will bring back.

8. மண்ணியன் ஞாலத்து மன்னும் புகழ்வேண்டிப் பெண்ணிய னல்லாய் பிரிந்தார் வரல்கூறும்
கண்ணிய லஞ்சனந் தோய்ந்தபோற் காயாவும்
நுண்ணரும் பூழ்த்த புறவு.

maṇṇiyaṇ ṇālattu maṇṇum pukaḷvēṇṭip peṇṇiya ṇallāy pirintār varalkūrum kaṇṇiya lañcaṇan tōyṉtapōr kāyāvum nuṇṇarum pūḷtta puravu.

1. Lady of endearing virtues;
In forests and groves,
The weebuds of Kaya flowers,
Looking as if
They have been drenched
In collyrium salve
With which
Eyes are washed and fed,
Are now in bloom.
They speak
Of our lord's return,
Who left our company
Seeking to perpetuate his fame
In this earthly world.
2. O, damsel having full feminine grace, look at the forests where doth bloom
The slender buds of purple-coloured 'Kaya' plants like the collyrium painted o'er eye-lids;
Yes, they do suggest the return of our hero who parted thee earlier
And proceeded in pursuit of wealth, in order to maintain enduring fame on this earth.
3. O lady with good womanly characteristics; the jungles that with little Kaya buds ablooming resemble maids with collyrium painted eyes foretell the return home of our lord, who aspiring for lasting fame on this sand-made world departed.

9. கருவிளை கண்மலர்போற் பூத்தன கார்க்கேற்
 றெரிவனப் புற்றன தோன்றி - வரிவளை
 முன்கை யிறப்பத் துறந்தார் வரல்கூறும்
 இன்சொற் பலவு முரைத்து.

karuvilai kaṇmalarpōr pūttana kārkkēr rerivanap purrana tōnri - varivalai munkai yirappat turantār varalkūrum in̄cor palavu muraittu.

1. The cool buds of Karuvilai
 Have blossomed;
 Against the season of rain
 The thonri flowers
 Set the forest aflame,
 Fair flame of the forest.
 They speak
 Of our lord's return.
 Consoling us
 With sweet comforting words
 He left us,
 Causing the lined bangles
 To loosen and slide
 Down the forearms.
2. The dark-blue flowers of the winding wild creeper which have bloomed like the eye-flowers
 And the red species of the November flower which have got the elegance of fire, are receiving the rainy season;
 And they foretell the return of our hero who parted
 consoling thee with so many sweet words
 And yet has caused thy ornamental bangles loosen from thy forearm, on account of separation.
3. The Karuvilai that has bloomed like flowing eyes, the thondri blooms lush with the wintry season, taking on the beauty of fire, foretell the home-return of the lord who spoke a sweet word and departed, making the streaked bangles, on thy wrist loose.

10. வானேறு வானத் துற வயமுரண்
ஆனேற் றெருத்த லதனோ டெதிர்செறுப்பக்
கான்யாற் றொலியிற் கடுமான்றே ரென்றோழி மேனி தளிர்ப்ப வரும்.

vāṇēru vānat turara vayamuran āṇēr rerutta latanō ṭetirceruppak kānyār roliyir kaṭumāṇrē renrōli mēni taḷirppa varum.

1. My bosom friend!
As the sky-spread clouds
Rattle and thunder
The strong contending buck
Is startled,
And runs against
The imagined rival.
The chariot of our lord
Drawn by horses swift
Hurtles along like forest streams
Making your beautiful mien
Spring to life again.
 2. O, my lady, the thunder-bolt raises thunder at the cloud
And the mighty and valiant he-buffalo is getting furious and roaring against the thunderbolt;
The fast-moving horse-attached chariot of our hero is arriving fast raising the sound like that of a river flowing in sylvan tract, so that thy body may regain its wanting charm.
 3. My mistress! Peals of thunder rolling from the clouds and the mighty furious ox bellowing in wrath in return, our lord's chariot drawn by fleet-footed horses, making noise like a jungle stream is coming, making thy body attractive (with joy).
11. புணர்தரு செல்வந் தருபாக்குச் சென்றார் வணரொலி யைம்பாலாய் வல்வருதல் கூறும்
அணர்த்தெழு பாம்பின் றலைபோற் புணர்கோடல்
பூங்குலை யின்ற புறவு.

puṇartaru celvan tarupākkuc ceṇṇār vaṇaroli yaimpālāy valvarutal kūrum aṇartteḷu pāmpiṇ ralaipōr puṇarkōṭal pūṇkulaḷi yīṇra puravu.

1. Damsel of curled tresses
 Of hair done in five different ways!
 Like unto a Cobra's lifted hood
 The white attractive Kanthal
 Has blossomed in the forest,
 Flowers in bunches.
 They tell us
 That our lord,
 Gone abroad
 To secure well-won wealth
 Will be back,
 Even now.
2. O, my lady having luxuriant tresses dressed in five modes, look at the forest
 Which has brought forth the crowded white species of the Gloria flower, which look like the hood of a cobra;
 It does tell us about the speedy return of our hero
 Who proceeded far away,
 To bring the required wealth for the enjoyments
 Of the parents and future life.
3. O lady with luxurious tresses made into knots! The forests where the white gloriosa superba, like the lifting hooded head of the cobra, blooms in clusters foretell the speedy return home of our lord who went with a view to earning wealth so very necessary for life on earth and after.

12. மையெழி லுண்கண் மயிலன்ன சாயலாய்
 ஐயந்தீர் காட்சி யவர்வருதல் திண்ணிதாம்
 நெய்யணி குஞ்சரம் போல விருங்கொண்மூ வைகலு மேரும் வலம்.

maiyeḷi luṇkaṇ mayilanna cāyalāy aiyaṇtīr kāṭci yavarvarutal tiṇṇitām

neyyaṇi kuñcaram pōla viruṅkoṇmū vaikalu mērum valam.

1. Of dazzling eyes collyrium washed
And of peacock mien!
Like unto Elephants smeared with oil
Two enormous clouds
Circle clock-wise
Dawn after dawn.
Our lord
Of discerning insight
Will be back.
It is certain.
2. O, my lady having eyes painted with collyrium, which are black and beautiful And having the resemblance in features like that of a peacock,
The dark clouds which look like the smeared elephants, are rising up daily towards right;
It's certain that our hero known for his knowledge of certainty, would return this season and now.
3. O lady with lovely black eyes painted with collyrium and charming like the peacock, like elephants smeared with oil the black clouds rise each day in the sky on the night, so our lord who is wise without being assailed by any doubts, will, to be sure, return home.

13. ஏந்தெழி லல்குலா யேமார்ந்த காதலர்
கூந்தல் வனப்பிற் பெயறாழ – வேந்தர்
களிறெறி வாளரவம் போலக்கண் வெளவி ஒளிறுபு மின்னு மழை.

ēnteli lalkulā yēmārnta kātalar kūntal vaṇappir peyarāḷa – vēntar kaḷireri vālaravam pōlakkaṇ vauvi olirupu minṇu maḷai.

1. Damsel callipygian!

Like unto the tresses of women
Loosened and beautiful
In love-bout with their beloved ones,
The rain-clouds
Lower and fall.
Like unto the sheen
Of swords for kings
To encounter elephants,
The lightning flashes —
Dazzling the eyes —
And it rains.

2. O, my lady having the holding-waist of surpassing beauty, the rain is falling like the sliding tresses of women who have enjoyed the company of their heroes;
And the cloud is stealing the eyes and is flashing emitting the lightning like the sound of the sword Which cuts the king's elephant and causes it to fall.
(Yes, our hero will arrive now!)

3. O lovely-waisted lady! To pour down rain like the lovely flowing tresses of women after their engagement with their lord, resounding like the swords of thugs that cut down the elephants and flashes with lightning blinding the eyes
(So be sure that our lord will return home now).

14. செல்வந் தரல்வேண்டிச் சென்றநங் காதலர்
வல்லே வருத றெளிந்தாம் வயங்கிழாய்
முல்லை யிலங்கெயி ரீன நறுந்தண்கார் மெல்ல வினிய நகும்.

celvan taralvēṇṭic cenṛanan kātalar vallē varuta ṛelintām vayankilāy mullai yilankeyi rīṇa naruntanṅkār mella viṇiya nakum.

1. The mullai has yielded
 Its beads
 Glistening like white teeth;
 The intensely chilled cloud
 Lightens in sporadic smiles;
 Making clear to us
 That our lord,
 Gone in quest of wealth,
 Will be back,
 Soon.
2. O, my lady wearing glittering ornaments, the chill cloud is flashing gently and sweetly,
 So that the wild jasmine creepers may bear buds
 like the teeth of ladies;
 We clearly know that our hero, who parted us
 in his willing pursuit of wealth,
 Would return speedily now, since this is the season
 he promised to arrive.
3. O lady with lustrous ornaments with a view to make the mullai (jasmine) creepers give birth to buds that look like the bright teeth of maids; the good cool clouds lightening softly and sweetly smile; so the speedy return home of our lord who went to acquire wealth is inferred (by me).

15. திருந்திழாய் காதலர் தீர்குவ ரல்லர்
 குருந்தின் குவியினை ருள்ளுறை யாகத்
 திருந்தி னிளிவண்டு பாட விருந்தும்பி இன்குழ லாதும் பொழுது.

tiruntīḷāy kātalar tīrkuva rallar kuruntin kuviyaṇa ruḷḷurai yākat tirunti ṇiḷivaṇṭu pāṭa viruntumpi in̄kula lūtum polutu.

1. Damsel of discerning decor!
 Our lord
 Will not long remain
 In separation.

For the wasps
 Making their home
 In the curved insides
 Of the dangling shoots
 Of kurunthai palm
 Are intoning in clarity;
 The hovering insects
 Are piping melodiously.

2. O, my lady adorned with jewels, the beetles are raising the melody of the fifth cerebral tone of the gamut,
 By occupying the inside area of the closed cluster of Kurunthai tree of fragrant foliage, as safe resting-place;
 And the black dragon-flies are humming,
 on getting honey from the flowers;
 At such a time, our hero won't stay there leaving thee here,
 to suffer from impatience of separation further.
3. O lady with attractive jewels! The beetles taking up their abode in the curved clusters of blooms of the Kurunthai tree hums the rich, sweet tune, while the black beetles sing a sweet tune;
 at a time such as this, our lord will not stay away from us.

16. கருங்குயில் கையற மாமயி லாலப்
 பெருங்கலி வான முறறும் – பெருந்தோள்
 செயலை யிளந்தளி ரன்னநின் மேனிப் பசலை பழங்கண் கொள.

karuṅkuyil kaiyara māmayi lālap peruṅkali vāṇa murarum – peruntōl ceyalai yilantaḷi raṇṇanin mēnip pacalai paḷaṅkaṇ koḷa.

1. The black cuckoo
 Has become silent;
 The proud peacock
 Is in ecstatic dance;
 The clattering clouds
 Rumble in the sky;
 Broad-shouldered lady,
 The paleness of your complexion.

Pale as the Asoka tendril,
Will become a thing of the past.

2. O, my lady having large shoulders, the black cuckoos are in distress without knowing what to do;
The peafowls keep raising a screech;
and the clouds are making a loud noise with rolling of thunder;
And it's just to make sallowness of the body which was like the tender sprout of the Asoka tree, to wane;
Yes it's the very same time, our hero would return to delight thee now.
3. O mistress with big shoulders! The sallowness on thy body lovely like the tender shoots of the Asoka (Peepul) tree will fade out; the black koel will plunge into grief helplessly; the huge peacocks filled with joy will dance, because the vast thunderclouds have begun to peal.

17. அறைக்க லிறுவரைமேற் பாம்பு சவட்டிப்
பறைக்குர லேறொடு பௌவம் பருகி
உறைத்திருள் கூர்ந்தன்று வானம் பிறைத்தகை
கொண்டன்று பேதை நுதல்.

aṛaikka liruvaraimēr pāmpu cavaṭṭip paraikkura lēroṭu pauvam paruki uṛaittiruḷ kūṛntanru vānam piraittakai koṇṭanru pētai nutal.

1. Fond Maiden!
The clouds
Drunk with sea-brine
Persecute the serpents
With thunder
Beating like drums
Of musicians,
On neighbouring roofs
And buttressing stones.
Your forehead

Shines beautiful
As the crescent-moon
In the darkening sky.

2. O, simple-minded damsel, the clouds which had drunk the waters from the sea, are afflicting the snakes
With the sound of thunder, as the beat of drums;
and they are pouring forth rain o'er the high mountains Which are full of rocky stones and thus everywhere it's dark and dark now, with the arrival of rainy season;
And it's also quite natural that your forehead is regaining the grace of the crescent moon
(as our hero will arrive now).
3. O fond lady! The clouds having drunk the sea water with their peals of thunder like the beat of the drum, putting the snakes to grief, pouring down rain on the bouldered slopes of the hill have become greatly dark. So thy forehead has acquired the beauty of the crescent.

18. கல்பயில் கானங் கடந்தார் வரவாங்கே நல்லிசை யேறொடு வான நடுநிற்பச்
செல்வர் மனம்போற் கவினீன்ற நல்கூர்ந்தார்
மேனிபோற் புல்லென்ற காடு.

kalpayil kāṇaṅ kaṭantār varavāṅkē nallicai yēroṭu vāṇa naṭunirpac celvar maṇampōr kaviṇīṇra nalkūrntār mēṇipōr pullēṇra kāṭu.

1. The clouds
Bellowing like a bull
Have spread all over the sky;
And pour down in rain.
The forests
That had lost their sheen Looking lean
As the poor and the impoverished
Have turned lush and green
As the hearts of the rich.

The season has come
 For our lord's return
 Who left us
 Traversing the hill terrain.

2. Our hero who had traversed forests covered with mounts, is returning home;
 Along with his arrival, the forests which lost their splendour like the body of an indigent person,
 Are now presenting an elegant look like the mind of the wealthy people,
 As the clouds with the growling thunderbolt are pouring rain impartially.
3. At this very hour which is ripe for the return of our lord, who traversed the jungles studded with crowded hills, the clouds overhead with deafening thunder pour down rain all round, the jungles that formerly had faded like the body of the poverty-stricken, now, like the heart of the rich, have yielded charm.

19. நாஞ்சில் வலவ னிறம்போலப் பூஞ்சினைச்
 செங்கான் மராஅந் தகைந்தன – பைங்கோற்
 றொடிபொலி முன்கையாள் தோடுணையா வேண்டி
 நெடுவிடைச் சென்றதென் னெஞ்சு.

nāñcil valava nīrampōlap pūñciṇaic cenkāṇ marāan takaintana – painkōṛ roṭipoli muṇkaiyāl tōṭuṇaiyā vēṇṭi neṭuvīṭaic cenṇraten neñcu.

1. The Kadamba flowers
 With stalks,
 White as Balarama,
 The conquering hero of the ploughshare,
 And red petals
 Have bloomed.
 My heart
 Journeying across

The long forest Seeks already
 The company of her shoulders
 Her forearms Bangled green.

2. The 'Ma-raa-am' tree, which is having red-trunk with flower-buds, gives a lovely appearance like the complexion of the God Balarama, Who uses plough for His weapon;
 My thought hence is traversing the long forest way and it's just to make the shoulders of my lady Who's having the elbow adorned with beautiful golden bracelets, to be of help to me.
3. The Kadamba trees with lovely boughs white like the complexion of him who obtained victory with the plough as his weapon of war and with their tree trunks red in colour have bloomed; so my heart, with a view to secure for my embrace the shoulders of her on whose wrists shine rich (round) gold bangles, has already crossed the long jungly 'tract of land'.

20. வீறுசால் வேந்தன் வினையு முடிந்தன
 ஆறும் பதமினிய வாயின - ஏறோ
 டருமணி நாக மனுங்கச் செருமன்னர்
 சேனைபோற் செல்லு மழை.

vīrucāl vēntaṇ vinaiyu muṭintana
ārum patamiṇiya vāyiṇa - ēro ṣarumaṇi nāka maṇuṅkac cerumannar cēṇaipōr cellu maḷai.

1. The king heroic -
 His task has ended.
 The path is clear, sweet,
 Inviting and ready.
 The rain-laden clouds
 Are torturing
 The crown-jewelled serpents

Like unto armies
Pouring arrows in the field
Of watering chieftains.

2. The war activities of the king of greatness have come to an end;
The path has become firm and smooth for travel;
And the clouds are moving, like the army of the king who wages war,
With the noise of the thunderbolt causing affliction to cobras which are having gems on their heads
(so, let us start for our home!).

3. The duties relating to the war of the renowned king are ended; the roads have become agreeably sweet to traverse;
the clouds sending forth peals of thunder grieving the snakes with rare gems in their heads move along like a warring army (on the march). So it is time for us to return home.

21. பொறிமாண் புனைதிண்டேர் போந்த வழியே
சிறுமுல்லைப் போதெல்லாஞ் செவ்வி - நறுநுதற்
செல்வ மழைத்தடங்கட் சின்மொழிப் பேதைவாய்
முள்ளெயி றேய்ப்ப வடிந்து.

porimāṇ punaitiṇṭēr pōnta valiyē cirumullaip pōtellāñ cevvi - narunutar celva maḷaittaṇkaṭ cinmolip pētaivāy mulḷeyi rēyppa vaṭintu.

1. The strong chariot Carved magnificently
And set with contrivances Traversed
By this very same route.
Look at the little mullai buds
Glistening sharp as the teeth
Of the fond maiden
Sparse in speech,
Of handsomely fair forehead,

Of cool, wide eyes –
Cool as fertilizing rains.

2. Throughout the route of the decorated and strong chariot fitted with excellent mechanism, which is on its return journey,
The buds of little 'mullai' flowers are getting sharp points and they look like the sharp teeth in the mouth of the damsel
Who's having a graceful perfumed forehead, and large cold eyes like copious rain and who speaks not much but a few words!
(Yes, this is the season we should return home!)
3. All along the road by which the chariot came, the chariot well decorated and strong with many a unique mechanical device the little jasmine buds (about to bloom) with sharp ends resemble the sharp teeth in the mouth of the simple lady with a lovely fragrant forehead, with eyes wide and cool like copious showers who breathes out soft words.

22. இளையரு மீர்ங்கட் டயர வுளையணிந்து
புல்லுண் கலிமாவும் பூட்டிய – நல்லார்
இளநலம் போலக் கவினி வளமுடையார்
ஆக்கம்போற் பூத்தன காடு.

ilaiyaru mīrṅkaṭ ṭayara vulaiyaṇintu pulluṇ kalimāvum pūṭṭiya – nallār iḷanalam pōlak kavini vaḷamuṭaiyār ākkampōr pūttana kāṭu.

1. The attendants
Have put on Winter garments.
Shaking their heads
The steeds proud,
Fed on grass,
Are harnessed
To the chariot.
The forests

Have grown lush
 As the glow of youth
 Of virtuous maidens,
 And are filled with flowers
 Plentiful as the riches
 Of the opulent.

2. The attendants, after wearing their winter-robe are attached to the chariot;
 The sprightly horse which eats grass is now wearing the hair-plume on its head;
 It's at this time the forest tract, by getting the elegance of the youthful gracefulness of ladies of excellent qualities, Gives a bright look like the wealth of those who have regular income.
3. The servants put on the dress of the winter season; the proud horse with head-gear is yoked to the chariot; the forests getting beautiful like the youthful loveliness of good natured maids and like the prosperity of those with a good income put forth blooms.

23. கண்டிரண் முத்தங் கடுப்பப் புறவெல்லாந் தண்டுளி யாலி புரளப் புயல்கான்று கொண்டெழில் வானமுங் கொண்டன் றெவன்கொலோ
 ஒண்டொடி யூடு நிலை.

kaṇṭiraṇ muttan kaṭuppap puravellān taṇṭuḷi yāli puraḷap puyalkāṇru koṇṭelil vānamuṇ koṇṭan revaṅkolō oṇṭoṭi yūtu nilai.

1. Damsel
 Decked with bangles brilliant!
 All along the forest
 Like unto scattered pearls
 The chilled water-drops,
 Little icicles – Roll.
 The clouds,

Drizzling rain,
Have spread
All over the sky-space.
Wherefore, then, this playful anger?

2. O, my damsel adorned with shining bracelets, just behold there!
The cloud is covering the entire space of the sky
by its rain-fall,
And the cold water-drops which look like pearls
are getting collected at the spot;
And the hailstones are rolling o'er throughout the forest;
yes it's the promised time of our hero's return;
Why thou art in huffish mood, out of thy sulks!
3. O lady wearing lustrous bangles! Cool drops of water and hailstones like well developed pearls roll over in the entire forest; the clouds raining encompass the lovely sky in full;
so where is the need to go into sulks?

24. எல்லா வினையுங் கிடப்ப வெழுநெஞ்சே
கல்லோங்கு கானங் களிற்றின் மதநாளும்
பல்லிருங் கூந்தல் பணிநோனாள் கார்வானம்
மெல்லவுந் தோன்றும் பெயல்.

ellā vinaiyuṅ kiṭappa veluneñcē kallōṅku kāṇaṅ kaḷirriṅ matanārum pallirun kūṅtal paṇinōṇāl kārvānam mellavun tōṇrum peyal.

1. The forests
Of ranged rocks and hills
Waft with fragrance
Of elephants in heat.
Athwart the dark monsoon sky
The falling rain-clouds Drizzle lightly.
My lady of black tresses
Of hair manifoldly done
Will no longer brook,

Despite my consoling words.
 My heart!
 Let all other tasks remain.
 Come and let us go.

2. The must of rutting elephants is smelling throughout the forests having high mountains;
 And the rain has begun to shower slowly
 from the dark clouds;
 So, my lady who's having thick dark tresses would no longer bear patiently my word of return,
 O, my heart, start right now (to return home), leaving all other acts as they are.
3. The forests with lofty mountains fill with the smell of ruttish elephants; in the dark sky the rains slowly make their appearance; so my lady love with variously dressed black locks will no more patiently wait according to my word; O heart!
 Leave aside all the work on hand and arise (we will go).

25. கருங்கால் வரகின் பொரிப்போ லரும்பவிழ்ந்
 தீர்ந்தண் புறவிற் றெறுழ்வி மலர்ந்தன
 சேர்ந்தன செய்குறி வாரா ரவரென்று கூர்ந்த பசலை யவட்டு.

karuṅkāḷ varakiṇ porippō larumpaviḷn tīrtan puraviṇ reruḷvī malarntana cērtana ceykuṇi vārā ravarenru kūrnta pacalai yavaṭku.

1. All along the forest,
 Wet and cool,
 Like unto the flakes
 Of Varagu corn
 Of black husk
 The theruzh buds
 Have opened and bloomed.
 All tokens
 Of the lord's return
 Have occurred.

Won't he be back home yet?
The damsel grows pale.

2. The buds of theruzh, have opened and bloomed in the cold forest,
Like the parched grain of millet which is having black-coloured foot;
Yes, the indications foretold by our hero have come true and the sallowness has spread o'er the body of this heroine, Since she has come to the conclusion that he won't return now as promised – what to do?
3. In the cool, cool jungle, the therezhvee buds open their petals and so bloom resembling the fried grain of the black stalked varagu plant; the signs specified by the hero have all appeared; so concluding that the hero will not return, the lady-love's sallowness has thickened in her.

26. நலமிகு கார்த்திகை நாட்டவ ரிட்ட தலைநாள் விளக்கிற் றகையுடைய வாகிப்
புலமெலாம் பூத்தன தோன்றி சிலமொழி தூதொடு வந்த மழை.

nalamiku kārttikai nāṭṭava riṭṭa talaināl viḷakkir rakaiyutaiya vākip pulamelām pūttana tōṇri cilamoli tūtoṭu vanta maḷai.

1. Lady of sparse words sweet;
The thonri flowers,
Like unto the lamps
Lit on the first day
Of auspicious Karthigai month
By every citizen,
Have blossomed
Beautifully
All over the place.
The rains
Have also accompanied
As harbingers.

2. O, damsel having soft speech, the glory lily* flowers have got the elegance of the first day lamp
Which is lighted serially by the natives to mark the beginning of prosperous 'Karthigai' festival
(of the land of Tamils)
And have bloomed throughout the tract and the rain has come with the errand;
So, O, my lady, please bear for a while
(He will definitely return now).
3. O lady of few words! Lovely like the lamps lit by the people on the first day of the greatly welcome karthigai festival;
the thondri blooms have blossomed everywhere; the rains have come as envoy (from our lord)!

27. முருகியம்போல் வான முழங்கி யிரங்கக்
குருகிலை பூத்தன கானம் - பிரிவெண்ணி
உள்ளா தகன்றாரென் றுரடியாம் பாராட்டப், பள்ளியுட் பாயும் பசப்பு.

murukiyampōl vāṇa muraṅki yiraṅkak kurukilai pūttana kāṇam - pirivenṇi uḷḷā takanrāren rūṭiyām pārāṭṭap paḷḷiyuṭ pāyumu pacappu.

1. The clouds
Rattle like the tabors
Of forests and tribesmen.
The Kurukathi tendrils
Have unfurled into leaves
All along the forest.
If we continue to cherish
Our anger and sorrow
At our lord
That he had left us
Without considering
The suffering it causes,
Then
This paly sickness
Will sleep through the sheets.

2. The clouds are roaring like the sound raised by the beat of drum by mountaineers;
 And the leaves of 'kurukkathi'*
 have bloomed throughout the forest;
 Should thou resort to sulks assuming that our hero had proceeded as if separation is better Without considering thy distress, only the sallowness would swell and make thee lie on bed.
3. The clouds thundering like the beating of the Kurinchi drums, the leaves of the Karukathi trees have opened out;
 if we indulge excessively in sulks thinking that our lord deemed it beneficial to go away from us (in search of wealth) without bestowing any thought on our sad plight at his separation, then, verily, sallowness will creep into our bed (confine us to bed).

28. இமிழிசை வானம் முழங்கக் குமிழின்பூப்
 பொன்செய் குழையிற் றுணர்தூங்கத் தண்பதஞ்
 செவ்வி யுடைய சுரநெஞ்சே காதலியூர்
 கவ்வை யழுங்கச் செலற்கு.

imilicai vāṇam muḷaṅkak kuṁilinpūp poṇṇey kuḷaiyir ruṇartūṅkat taṇṇpataṇ cevvi yuṭaiya curaneñcē kātaliyūr kavvai yaḷuṅkac celarku.

1. Resounding clouds
 Clap musical tunes.
 The Kumizh blossoms
 Like unto golden ear-ornaments
 Hang in bunches.
 My heart!
 Cool are the forests,
 Propitious and inviting.
 It's time for us to return
 To the hearth of our beloved Healing her suffering loneliness.
2. The roaring sound of the clouds is resounding and the flowers of 'Kumizh' are hanging in cluster like the ear-jewels made of gold;

 O, my heart, these forests are witnessing chill weather and are wearing a graceful look To enable us start returning to the town of my beloved and our return would put an end to the unwarranted rumour and idle talk in the town.

3. O heart! The sweet-turned clouds rumbling, the Kumizh blooms, blowing in hanging clusters like golden tresses, the forest paths with a view to facilitate our passage home to put an end to scandal in the heroine's village, have become cool and pleasant.

29. பொங்கரு ஞாங்கர் மலர்ந்தன தங்காத்
 தகைவண்டு பாண்முரலுங் காணம் - பகைகொண்ட
 லெவ்வெத் திசைகளும் வந்தன்று சேறுநாஞ்
 செவ்வி யுடைய சுரம்.

poṅkaru ṇāṅkar malarntaṇa taṅkāṭ takaivaṇṭu pāṇmuraluṅ kāṇam - pakaikoṇṭa levvet ticaikaḷum vantaṇru cērunāñ cevvī yuṭaiya curam.

1. The groves
 Have blossomed
 In all directions.
 The beautiful bees
 Restless
 Flit in the forest-bower
 Humming a tune.
 The contending clouds Throng
 From every side.
 And the forests are cool.
2. All the groves are now full of blooming flowers of all kinds;
 In the forest, the beautiful beetles which roam
 here and there are singing;
 The clouds rising in enmity have spread in all the directions;
 And the forests are getting the graceful elegance of the season.

So I must start right now,
for my home.

3. The groves have blossomed on all sides; the ever-moving lovely beetles sweetly hum; the clouds in fury uprising have spread over the entire sky; the jungles have become cool; so it is time for us to start (back home).

30. வரைமல்க வானஞ் சிறப்ப வுறைபோழ்ந் திருநிலந் தீம்பெய றாழ – விரைநாற ஊதை யுளரு நறுந்தன்கா பேதை
பெருமட நம்மாட் டுரைத்து.

varaimalka vāṇaṇ ciṛappa vuraipōḷn tirunilan tīmpeya rāḷa – viraināra ūtai yuḷaru narunīṅkā pētai perumaṭa nammāṭ ṭuraittu.

1. Fertilizing the hilly tracts,
Cleansing the skies,
And penetrating the rich soil
The sweet showers have fallen – Fragrance everywhere,
The chill breeze babbles
Of the fond waiting
Of a fond woman.
2. The mountain region is flowering with fertility and the cloud is being abundant;
The pleasant rain is falling and cutting the vast expanse
of earth, with its drops;
The sweet fragrance is spreading everywhere;
And the cold wind waffles in the sweet-scented
cold pleasure-grove;
It reminds me of the artlessness of my beloved (O, my heart, I should return right now!).
3. The sweet rains enriching the hills and endowing the skies, pouring down in torrents and cutting across the vast earth, sweet odour emanates, the winter wind apprising us of the great simplicity of the lady love will stop without moving at the cool fragrant grove (So drive the chariot home fast).

31. கார்ச்சே ணிகந்த கரைமருங்கி னீர்ச்சேர்ந்
தெருமை யெழிலே றெறிபவர் குடிச்
செருமிகு மள்ளரிற் செம்மாக்குஞ் செவ்வி
திருநுதற் கியாஞ்செய் குறி.

kārccē ṇikanta karaimaruṅki nīrccērn terumai yelilē reripavar cūṭic cerumiku maḷḷarir cemmākkun ceyvi tirunutar kiyāñcey kuṛi.

1. The handsome buffalo Grown taller than
The bounds of the clouded sky,
Entwined in flowers and creepers
That flowing waters Collect in neighbouring pools
Looks up arrogantly
As victorious wrestlers in war.
The season of my return
The token against which I asked the maiden
Of fair forehead
To wait, has come.
2. Passing the limit of the sky having clouds and reaching the waters adjourning the bund,
The bull with the effort of the buffalo wears on its head,
the dense creepers flung therein
And gets intoxicated with joy, like the warrior at the battle;
Yes, this is the season, indicated by me to my beloved who has elegant forehead, for my return!
(O, Charioteer, impel please the chariot with celerity.)
3. The energetic male buffalo getting into the pool with bank higher than the cloud-spread sky, wearing the flowery creepers on its body proudly looks like the greatly valorous warriors; such an hour is the time fixed by me to my lady love with lovely forehead as the hour of my return to her (So speed up the chariot, O charioteer!).

32. கடாஅவுக பாகதேர் காரோடக் கண்டே
கெடாஅப் புகழ்வேட்கைச் செல்வர் மனம்போற்
படாஅ மகிழ்வண்டு பாண்முரலுங் கானம்
பிடாஅப் பெருந்தகை நற்கு.

kaṭāavuka pākatēr kārōṭak kaṇṭē keṭāap pukaḷvēṭkaic celvar maṇampōr paṭāa makilvaṇṭu pāṇmuraluṇ kāṇam piṭāap peruntakai narku.

1. Charioteer!
Speed up the Chariot
After the speeding clouds;
The bees in unimpeded joy,
Like unto the happiness
Filling the hearts of the wealthy Who work and will
For enduring fame,
Keep humming their ditties
To Pitava blossoms,
Magnificent in the forest.
2. Like the noble mind of the wealthy who do only desire for undamaged fame,
The bees which are having undisturbed joy are humming gaily before the 'pidava' plant which is having majestic look in the forest;
O, charioteer, look at the cloud which is running fast and impel please thy chariot with celerity
(So that I can see my love-lorn lady without delay!).
3. Like the heart of the rich desirous of faultless fame, the beetles of unadulterated happiness hum their tune before the munificent Pidava Plant (bush); O charioteer! Looking at the fleeting clouds, speed up the chariot.

33. கடனீர் முகந்த கமஞ்சு லெழிலி
குடமலை யாகத்துக் கொள்ளப் பிறைக்கும்
இடமென வாங்கே குறிசெய்தேம் பேதை மடமொழி யெவ்வங் கெட.

kaṇṇīr mukanta kamañcū leḷili kuṭamalai yākattuk koḷlap pīraikkum iṭameṇa vāṅkē kuṛiceytēm pētai maṭamoli yevvaṅ keṭa.

1. Speed up
To redress and end
The foolish blabbering
Of the fond maiden;
For I have promised to her
And asked her to wait for my return
Against the season
When pregnant clouds
Scooping sea-brine in her womb
Pour down in rain
Along the western hills.
2. The teeming clouds which drew sea-water are now pouring out O'er the body of western mountain, the rain-water which they're having;
Yes, this is the time which I had specified then itself
on my departure,
As the time of my return, to cure the affliction of my soft-speaking lady (Hence, O Charioteer, please impel the chariot with celerity)!
3. To waft away her grief, I told my fond lady of simple words that when the pregnant clouds that had drunk their fill at the sea disgorge the waters over the western hills, that was the time of my return to her (So speed up the chariot).

34. விரிதிரை வெள்ளம் வெறுப்பப் பருகிப்
பெருவிறல் வானம் பெருவரை சேருங் கருவணி காலங் குறித்தார் திருவணிந்த ஒண்ணுதல் மாதர் திறத்து.

virittirai vēllam vēruppapa parukip peruvīral vāṇam peruvārai cēruṇ karuvaṇi kālaṇi kurittār tiruvaṇinta oṇṇutal mātar tīraṭṭu.

1. Our lord has asked our lady Of ornamental head-gear
And of shinning forehead
To wait against
The season of his return
When clouds of great glory
Having drunk to their fill
The brine of wave-tossed ocean
Reach and rest
On the tall mountains.
2. The clouds which are known for their high greatness, are reaching the high mountains
After taking the water in abundance from the sea which is having spread-out waves;
This is the time when the clouds are seen filled with water, which was specified by our hero to his beloved Who's having bright forehead and wearing head ornament
as the time of his return
(yes, he will return now).
3. The greatly mighty clouds, drinking the waters of the sea with lengthy waves, floating towards the high hills getting impregnated, such an hour was signified by the lord to the lady with bright forehead wearing the ornament of the head as the hour of his return home.

35. சென்றநங் காதலர் சேணிகந்தா ரென்றெண்ணி
ஒன்றிய நோயோ டிடும்பை பலகூர
வென்றி முரசி னிரங்கி யெழில்வானம்
நின்று மிரங்கு மிவட்கு.

cenṇanaṇ kātalar cēṇikantā reṇṇeṇṇi oṇṇiya nōyō ṭiṭumpai palakūra veṇṇi muraci niraṇki yeḷilvāṇam niṇṇu miraṇku mivaṭṭku.

1. She pines at the thought That her lord
Has left her
And gone to distant climes.
She grows thin and pale
And suffers inwardly.
Pitying her lot,
The clouds that have risen —
Rumbling like drums Victorious — Stand,
And fall in showers.
2. This heroine has developed many afflictions starting with the natural sallowness O'er her thoughts that her lover had to traverse a long distance
under orders of his Ruler to fight the enemy.
So, taking pity on her, the ascending clouds are roaring like the triumph-drum and pouring down rain (Yes, our hero will definitely return now, on seeing the season's arrival).
3. Since the lady love thinking that her lord had traversed long distances is plunged in grief, the colour of her body getting sallow, the massive clouds, like the murasu proclaiming victory, thunders from on high (thus foretelling the hero's return) and shows its sympathy for the lady.

36. சிரல்வாய் வனப்பின வாகி நிரலொப்ப
ஈர்ந்தண் தளவந் தகைந்தன — சீர்த்தக்க
செல்வ மழைமதர்க்கட் சின்மொழிப் பேதையூர்
நல்விருந் தாக நமக்கு.

ciralvāy vaṇappina vāki niraloppa īrtanṭ taḷavan takaintaṇa — cīrttakka celva maḷaimatarkkaṭ ciṇmolip pētaiyūr nalvirun tāka namakku.

1. The wet and cool

Alava blossoms
Looking red
Like the beak
Of a kingfisher
Glow beautifully
Row after row.
The home town
Of our fond beloved
Of few words
And of cool wholesome eyes
Rich like rain
Shall be our destination.

2. The chilly golden jasmines are budding in captivating an array by each resembling the beauty of kingfisher's beak;

Oh, it's time to reach the town of my wealthy lady,
Who speaks not much but is pining for my arrival,
with rain-like tearful lascivious eyes;
A superb feast would be awaiting there,
yes, I mean both my beloved and her delicacies!
(yes, my charioteer, drive fast please.)

3. The greatly cool red jasmines like the beak of the halcyon bird, getting lovely have budded in rows; so let the greatly prosperous village of the lady love of sparing words with dignified eyes, cool like the rains become the place where we are to be given a grand feast.

37. கருங்கடல் மேய்ந்த கமஞ்சு லெழிலி
இருங்க லிறுவரை யேறி யுயிர்க்கும் பெரும்பதக் காலையும் வாரார்கொல் வேந்தன்
அருந்தொழில் வாய்த்த நமர்.

karuṅkaṭal mēynta kamañcū leḷili iruṅka liṟuvarai yēri yuyirkkum perumpatak kālaiyum vārārkol vēntaṇ aruntoḷil vāytta namar.

1. Pasturing on black sea brine
Comely clouds pregnant
Have strayed up
The neighbouring ranges
Of rocks and hills
To unburden.
These are days
Of wealth and comfort.
Our lord,
Destined to serve the king,—
Won't he be back?
2. The teeming cloud, full of moisture, which had drunk
the waters of the black sea,
Had ascended to the top of high mountain and now showers down as rain;
So would not our hero, who proceeded on royal orders to the war-field, be returning now, Even at this opportune time,
on accomplishing his act?
(Yes, he will return now!)
3. Even when the greatly impregnated clouds, drunk deep at the black sea, climbing up the great bouldered slopes of the hill pour down rain, even at such greatly opportune hour, would not our lord, who went on a royal expedition return home?

38. புகர்முகம் பூழிப் புரள வுயர்நிலைய
வெஞ்சின வேழம் பிடியோ டிசைந்தாடுந்
தண்பதக் காலையும் வாரா ரெவன்கொலோ
ஒண்டொடி யூடு நிலை.

pukarmukam pūlip puraḷa vuyarnilaiya veñcina vēlam piṭiyō ṭicaintāṭun taṇpatak kālaiyum vārā revaṅkolō oṇṭoṭi yūṭu nilai.

1. The tall elephant
Of lasting anger
With his cow embraced

Rolls on mud,
His spotted front
All besmeared.
Even in this season,
Inviting and cool,
The lord has not cared to return.
Oh, Lady of shinning ornaments!
Of what avail,
This, your anger in dejection?

2. The high-ranking rutting elephants with their spotted face welting in the dust
Are joining with the female ones and playing in the cool freshet;
This is the time promised by our hero,
but he has not yet returned,
even after the starting of winter;
O, my lady adorned with shining bracelets,
of what avail, shouldst at thou resort to sulk?
(Please bear with this, he will soon return!)

3. Even at the cool and opportune hour when the mighty furious male-elephants play with the female elephants, with their pock-marked faces wallowing in the sand (mud), our lord has failed to return; so, O lady wearing lustrous bracelets! Of what avail is thy going into sulks?

39. அவவன்க ணைய்ப்ப வரும்பின் றவிழ்ந்த கருங்குர னொச்சிப் பகந்தழை சூடி
இரும்புன மேர்க்கடி கொண்டார் பெருங்கௌவை ஆகின்று நம்மு ரவர்க்கு.
alavaṅka ṇēyppa varumpīṇ ṛaviḷnta karuṅkura ṇoccip pacuntaḷai cūṭi irumpuṇa mērkkaṭi koṇṭār peruṅkauvai ākiṇṇu nammū ravarkku.

1. The farm hands
Wearing the green foliage

Of Nochi on their heads,
 Which yield buds
 Like unto
 The eyes of a crab,
 That blossom later
 Into bunches of black,
 Have brought
 The extending lands
 Under the plough-staff.
 Our lord, his non-return,
 Has become
 The talk of our town.

2. The cultivators have commenced their ploughing of vast land suitable for dry grain, Duly wearing the strung leaves of 'nocci'
 which is having black-flower cluster,
 Which have bloomed after bearing the bud,
 like the eye of a crab;
 And so the high calumny of countryside talk has arisen in our village about our hero
 (Since he has not returned yet, as promised).

3. The nochi plant has put forth buds, very like the eyes of the crab, and yielded clusters of blooms; wearing the green nochi leaves, the tillers have begun to plough the vast fields;
 so our village is filled with slander against our lord.

40. வந்தன செய்குறி வாரா ரவரென்று
 நொந்த வொருத்திக்கு நோய்தீர் மருந்தாகி
 இந்தின் கருவண்ணங் கொண்டன் நெழில்வானம் நந்துமென் பேதை நுதல்.

vantaṇa ceykuri vārā ravarenru
nonta voruttikku nōytīr maruntāki intin karuvaṇṇaṇ koṇṭaṇ relilvāṇam nantumen pētai nutal.

1. "The given signs
Have come.
But the lord –
He hasn't come"
To one pining thus,
Suffering inwardly,
As a medicine
To cure her dejection,
The beauteous skies
Have turned Black -
As the fruits of Eechai palm.
The forehead
On the fond maiden Revives still,
As before.
2. O, my grumbling lady, thou hast suffered that our hero has not yet returned,
Despite the appearance of signs indicated by him;
Now, behold the teeming cloud!
It's getting the black colour like that of the dwarf wild date palm
And it has come as a cure-drug for thy suffering;
Thy forehead would also get its radiance back
(Our hero would now return, since the season has arrived)!
3. O tender-hearted lady! The day and hour fixed by our lord for his return to us have arrived; you have been grieving at the fact that he returns not as a cure for such a malady the lovely clouds have become dark in colour like the eechai fruits; your forehead will henceforth brighten up.

கார் நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

MUTARKURIPPAKARĀTI

கார் நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி

(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

Mutarkurippakarāti

அலவன்க ணைப்ப	39	alavaṅka ṇēyppa
அறைக்க விறுவரைமேற்	17	araikka liṟuvaramēṟ
ஆடு மகளிரின் மஞ்சை	4	āṟu makaḷiriṇ maṇṇai
இகழுநர் சொல்லஞ்சிச்	5	ikaḷunar collaṇci
இமிழிசை வானம்	28	imilicai vāṇam
இளைபரு மீர்ங்கட் டயர்	22	iḷaiyaru mīrṇkaṭ ṭayara
எல்லா வினையுங்	24	ellā viṇaiyuṅ
ஏந்தெழி லங்குவா	13	ēntēḷi laḷkulā
கடனீர் முகந்த	33	kaṣaṇṭr mukanta
கடாஅவுக பாகதேர்	32	kaṭāavuka pākaṭēr
கடுங்கதிர் நல்குரக்	2	kaṭuṅkatir nalkūrak
கண்டிரண் முத்தங்	23	kaṇṭiraṇ muttaṅ
கருங்கடல் மேய்ந்த	37	karuṅkaṭal mēynta
கருங்கால் வரகின்	25	karuṅkāḷ varakiṇ
கருங்குயில் கையற	16	karuṅkuyil kaiyara
கருவினை கண்மலர்	9	karuviḷai kaṇmalar
கல்பயில் கானங்	18	kalpayil kāṇaṅ
கார்ச்சே னிகந்த	31	kārccē ṇikanta
சிரல்வாய் வனப்பின	36	ciralvāy vanappiṇa
செல்வந் தரல்வேண்டிச்	14	celvan taralvēṇṇic
சென்றதங் காதலர்	35	ceṇṇanaṅ kātalar
திருந்திழாய் காதலர்	15	tiruntiḷāy kātalar
தொடியிட வாற்றா	6	toṭiyiṭa vāṟṟā
நச்சியார்க் தேலு	7	nacciyārḱ kīṭalu
நலமிகு கார்த்திகை	26	naḷamiku kārttikai
நாஞ்சில் வலவ னிறம்போலப்	19	nāñcil valava ṇiṟampōlap
புகர்முகம் பூமிப்	38	pukarmukam pūmip

புணர்தரு செல்வந்
 பொங்கரு ஞாங்கர்
 பொருகடல் வண்ணன்
 பொறிமாண் புனைதிண்டேர்
 மண்ணியன் ஞாலத்து
 முருகியம்போல் வான
 மையெழி லுண்கண்
 வந்தன செய்குறி
 வரிநிறப் பாதிரி
 வரைமல்க வானஞ்
 வானேறு வானத்
 விரிதிரை வெள்ளம்
 விறுசால் வேந்தன்

11 puṇartaru celvan
 29 poṅkaru ṇāṅkar
 1 porukaṭal vaṇṇan
 21 porimāṇ puṇaitiṇṭēr
 8 maṇṇiyaṇ ṇālattu
 27 murukiyampōl vāṇa
 12 maiyeḷi luṅkaṇ
 40 vantaṇa ceykuri
 3 variniṟap pātiri
 30 varaimalka vāṇaṇ
 10 vāṇēru vāṇat
 34 viritirai veḷḷam
 20 vīrucāl vēntaṇ

KALĀVALI NĀRPATU

In English Verse and Prose

KALAVALI NĀR̥PATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English Verse and Prose

Compiled and Edited by
P. RAJA

Translators
S. Raman, Poet Desini
Nalladai R. Balakrishna Mudaliyar

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

2012

Ancient Tamil Classics in Translation Series

KALĀVALI NĀRPATU

Text, Transliteration and Translations in English

© Central Institute of Classical Tamil, Chennai

CICT Publication No. 20

First published 2012

Published by

CENTRAL INSTITUTE OF CLASSICAL TAMIL
CHENNAI

ISBN: 978-93-81744-09-3

Typeset by

Central Institute of Classical Tamil

Printed by

Government of India Press, Coimbatore – 641 019
Tamil Nadu, India.

INTRODUCTION

Legend has it that an eminent Chōla King by name Chengannan (the red-eyed or the furious by nature) waged war against Kanaikkal Irumporai, a Chēra king and defeated him at Kaḷumalam. The victorious king had the vanquished ruler thrown behind bars. A poet named Poykaiyar of the Chēra kingdom, who was a well-wisher of the imprisoned Chēra king, ruminated over a ruse to have his friend released from Kuṭavāyil prison. As a social thinker, Poykaiyar was not unaware of the fact that even a cat or a dog loves a pat on its back and poor human beings will be flat after listening to a few words of praise. Perhaps he had the same wavelength of Plutarch who declared in public: "Those who are greedy of praise prove that they are poor in merit". The poet made an attempt at singing the glory of the Chōla king whose lands were perennially blessed with the ever-flowing river kāviri, a war drum that reverberated like thunder, and a chariot with all amenities and conveniences. The jewel-adorned broad-chested valorous and undaunted king Chōla too gave ear to everyone of the forty poems of Poet Poykaiyar. He was so carried away by the enchanting similes employed by the poet that the magnanimous king granted the poet's wish. Thus the court poet had his king released from prison.

The poems that paved the way for the release of the Chēra King are grouped under the title Kaḷavaḷi Nāṛpatu. The word kaḷavaḷi is a combination of two words: kaḷam + vaḷi. Two different meanings are attributed to the word kaḷam: 1 battlefield and 2 threshing ground. Vaḷi is the ground or path or way. Thus kaḷavaḷi poems deal either with weapons of war and the havocs they are capable of causing in the battlefield or with the ploughshare that tills the ground and proves its yield on a little elevated place from the ground in the countryside.

Kaḷavaḷi Nāṛpatu is a series of pen portraits, each one studded with an unusual image of the battlefield. Written in Veṇpā form, the work contains 41 poems and no scholar is ever able to pull out the intruder for as the title suggests, there can only be forty. And this is the only one among the 18 Kīlkkanaḱku works that belongs to puram (war) poetry.

Streams and streams of blood forming a river of blood, the elephants of the Chēra king slaughtered by the mighty warriors of the Chōla king, the fallen elephants appearing like uprooted hills and their cut off trunks wriggling like fish while blood from the other part of the trunk dripping like precious red stones from a bag make lovely scenes. There is no sense of sorrow in the poet's voice but only joy brimming over as he describes the battlefield. He is all praise for the Chōḷa king and his mighty warriors. He speaks highly of their horses that are as good as tigers springing on the hills.

The severed trunks lying under the fallen white royal umbrellas appear like the black snake endeavouring to swallow the full moon. Kites soaring to the sky with the cut off hands of the soldiers appear as though the giant birds were seen with a five headed cobra in their beaks. Elephants drifted by the blood current resembled vessels tossed by waves in an ocean. And falling elephants touching the ground with their tusks appeared like a tiller turning the soil with silver ploughs.

Literary historians aver that Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu belongs to the second phase of Tamil War Poetry. The war poems of the Caṅkam period are individual pieces that sang of different kings. The poets of that period never sang so many poems in praise of a single king. But Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu is different. It sings of the glories of a single king in 41 Veṇpās. The work is in fact the harbinger of a later genre called Paraṇi.

Poykaiyar gives a gruesome picture of the atrocities of war and the havoc it is capable of causing. Mutilated corpses and carcasses, jet black crows turning red in colour after having gamboled on the flesh of the torn enemy soldiers, the elephants turning completely red – huh! Horrible. Yet through his similes the poet makes our heart light.

Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu is the best illustration of the adage – “Pen is mightier than the sword.” It was through his poems Poykaiyar melted the stony heart of King Chōḷa and paved way for the release of King Chēra. Two mangoes in one shot – that was the result of the poem.

Nothing is known about the poet Poykaiyar. The Tamil Plutarch, Simon Casie Chetty (1859) remains absolutely silent about the poet who wrote Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu. Some scholars identify him as one of the first three Alwars and credits him as the author of pāṭṭu-lyal.

KALAVALI NĀRPATU

1. நாண்ஞாயி றுற்ற செருவிற்கு வீழ்ந்தவர்
வாண்மாய் குருதி களிறுழக்கத் – தாண்மாய்ந்து
முன்பக லெல்லாங் குழம்பாகிப் பின்பகல்
துப்புத் துகளிற் கெழுமம் புனனாடன்
தப்பியா ரட்ட களத்து.

*nāññāyi rurar ceruvirku vīlntavar vāñmāy kuruti kaḷirulakkat – tāñmāyntu munpaka lellāṅ kuḷampākip pinpakal tupput tukaḷiṛ keḷūm punanāṭan
tappiyā raṭṭa kaḷattu.*

1. In the field of battle
Where the monarch of the land
Of vitalizing waters
Slaughtered his escaping foes,
The gushing gore
From the gaping wounds opened with swords
Of those
Who thronged in the morn
Only to fall in the fight
Slushed under the feet of elephants
All through the forenoon
Coagulated into red crystalline dust
And rose up to the sky
In the afternoon.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom watered by River
Cauviri, has killed his enemies,
The blood which was bleeding by pressing of the swords of the warriors who having reached at sunrise,
had died at the Warfield,

On being stirred up by the male elephants with their feet had turned like macerated slime during the forenoon;
 And in the afternoon, it looks like the particles of red-coral, spreading through out the sky.

3. The Chozha king Senganan of the riverine plains killed the erring enemies who had come to the field of battle in the morning; the war elephants ploughed with their feet the ground whereon gushed the blood from the sword wounds of the bodies of the enemy army. The ground became blood-miry in the morning sun; and in the evening the soil-soaked blood now becoming dry and broken was blown by the wind into the sky like coral dust.

2. ஞாட்பினு னெஞ்சிய ஞாலஞ்சேர் யானைக்கீழ்ப்
 போர்ப்பி விடிமுரசி னூடுபோ மொண்கருதி
 கார்ப்பெயல் பெய்தபிற் செங்குளக் கோட்டுக்கீழ்
 நீர்த்தாம்பு நீருமிழ்வ போன்ற புனனாடன்
 ஆர்த்தம ரட்ட களத்து.

ñāṭpiṇu leñciya ñālañcēr yānaikkīḷp pōrppi liṭimuraci nūṭupō moṇkuruti kārppeyal peytapir cenkulak kōṭṭukkīḷ nīrttūmpu nīrumiḷva pōṇra puṇanāṭan
ārttama raṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the monarch of the land
 Of irrigating waters
 Slaughtered his opponents,
 In the space available in between Lay the thundering battle drums
 All uncovered
 And crushed
 Under the weight of elephants
 And the blood collected therein
 Oozed out
 Like the spouting waterways Discharging water
 Into a crimson lake

In the rainy season
After the rainfall.

2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
watered by River Cauviri,
has roared and killed his enemies,
The shining blood is flowering thro the wrappage-less drum which roars like thunderbolt and lies under the remaining male elephants of the army which have fallen on the ground;
It looks as if the sluices at the bottom of the banks of a tank, the water of which gets reddish colour
After the fall of rain in the rainy season, are discharging that reddish water.

3. In the battlefield where the king of the riverine regions waged uproarious war and killed his enemies, the elephants (of the enemy king) fell dead and beneath them, through the thundering drums (of victory) with torn and broken sides, shining blood flowed out like water gushing out of the aqueduct beneath the bund of a red-soiled tank (full with water) after the winter rains.

3. ஒழுக்குங் குருதி யுழக்கித் தளர்வார்
இழுக்குங் களிற்றுக் கோடுன்றி யெழுவர்
மழைக்குரன் மாமுரசின் மல்குநீர் நாடன்
பிழைத்தாரை யட்ட களத்து.

olukkun kuruti yulakkit taḷarvār ilukkun kaḷirruk kōṭūnri yeluvar maḷaikkuraṇ māmuraciṇ malkunīr nāṭaṇ piḷaittārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the monarch of the land
Of copious waters,
Of mammoth drums of war
Rattling like rain-laden clouds,
Slaughtered his vanquished foes,

Warriors weary
 Wading through the spouting blood Fell down
 And struggled to their feet Resting on
 The horns of elephants
 While in-swept drew
 The whirling blood tide.

2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King who possesses the royal drums which roar like thunder and the river-watered Chola kingdom, has killed his enemies, The warriors who are stirring up the blood which is flowing from the bodies of enemies and getting collected there And who are reeling being unable to cross the same, Are seen catching the tusks of the deceased elephants, as supporting staff and rising up.
3. In the field of battle where the Chozha king of well watered riverine region with the huge drum (of victory) which sounded like the thunder of the clouds killed his erring opponents, the warriors who got tired by ploughing with their feet the blood flowing out of enemies invariably wounded and killed, propped themselves up with the broken tusks of elephants lying on the blood-miry ground.

4. உருவக் கடுந்தேர் முருக்கிமற் றத்தேர்ப்
 பரிதி சுமந்தெழுந்த யானை - யிருவிசும்பிற்
 செல்குடர் சேர்ந்த மலைபோன்ற செங்கண்மால் புல்லாரை யட்ட களத்து.

uruvak kaṭuntēr murukkimaṛ rattēṛp pariti cumantelunta yānai - yiruvicumpir celcuṭar cērnta malaipōṇra ceṇkaṇmāl pullārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Slaughtered the vanquished enemies,
Smashing the chariots of frightful speed
And lifting their wheels aloft
The elephants stood Resembling the mountains
Where the hastening sun retires
In the lofty skies.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom,
has killed his enemies,
The elephants which destroyed the dreadful chariot,
have risen up thereafter, carrying its wheel above;
And it looks like the scene of the mountain reached by the Sun, after traversing the vast sky.
3. In the battlefield where the king Senganmal killed his enemies, the elephants smashing the dreadful, fleet wheeled chariots, rose with the chariot wheel, on the bodies. This looked like the western mountains whereon the setting sun showed itself.

5. தெரிகணை யெஃகந் திறந்தவா யெல்லாம்
குருதி படிந்துண்ட காகம் - உருவிழந்து
குக்கிற் புறத்த சிரல்வாய் செங்கண்மால்
தப்பியா ரட்ட களத்து.

terikanai yekkan tirantavā yellām kuruti paṭintuṇṭa kākam - uruviḷantu kukkīr puratta ciralvāy ceṇkaṇmāl
tappiyā raṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Slaughtered his escaping foes,
From out of the wounds
All opened through Piercing arrows and spears of steel Gushed gore,

Feeding on which The crow
 Lost its hue and shape
 Turned scarlet Resembling Kukkil's exterior
 And the inside of a Siral's beak.

2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola Kingdom, has killed his enemies, The crows which are bathing in the blood which is flowing out from the mouths of all wounds opened by choice arrows and lances, Have drunk it and thus lost their original black complexion and got the colour of the nape of crow-pheasant And their beaks have also become like those of the kingfisher.
3. In the field of battle when King Senganmal killed his erring enemies, blood gushed out from the many wounds inflicted in their bodies by choice arrows and spears. The crows dipping in and drinking the blood lost their identity and emerged with their outer form turned into red-feathered crow-pheasants with their beaks turned blood-red like those of the kingfisher.

6. நானாற் றிசையும் பிணம்பிறங்க யானை யடுக்குப் பெற்றிக் கிடந்த - இடித்துரறி
 யங்கண் விசும்பி னுருமெறிந் தெங்கும்
 பெருமலைத் தூறெறிந் தற்றே யருமணிப்
 பூணைத் தெழின்மார் பியறிண்டேர்ச் செம்பியன்
 வேந்தரை யட்ட களத்து.

nānār ricaiyum piṇampiraṅka yānai yatukkupu perrik kiṭanta - iṭitturari yaṅkaṇ vicumpi nurumerin teṅkum perumalait tūrerin tarrē yarumanip pūṇēn telinmār piyaṛiṇṭērc cempiyaṇ
vēntarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of handsome chest
Buckled in plated armour
Pressed with precious gems,
Of strong and speeding chariot,
Slaughtered the rival kings,
Here, there and in all directions fourfold
Fell to the ground numberless corpses
Hurled by the elephants
In heaps and mounds
As the clear sky space
When lightning strikes
And thunders roll Hurled by winds
Is strewn with Mountains of clouds.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
Who's having an imposing breast, wearing ornaments with precious gems inlaid
And who's having a fast moving and strong chariot,
has killed his enemies,
The corpses abounding in all the directions and the carcasses of the elephants are getting piled up one upon another;
It looks as if the thunderbolt which has fallen from the sky has displaced the mountains and has thrown them away everywhere.
3. The Chozha king Senganan of the mighty chest addressed with diamond-studded jewels and a fast wheeled mighty chariot killed his enemy king in the field of battle. There on all sides carcasses abounded and elephants killed were found fallen one over the other. The whole scene looked as if the clouds thundering from the lovely far-flung sky sent down a thunderbolt and broke down high mountains and scattered them all round.

7. அஞ்சனக் குன்றேய்க்கும் யானை யமருழக்கி
இங்கு லிகக்குன்றே போற்றோன்றுஞ் –செங்கண்
வரிவரான் மீன்பிறமுங் காவிரி நாடன் பொருநரை யட்ட களத்து.

añcanak kunrēykkum yānai yamaruḷakki in̄ku likakkunrē pōrrōnruñ – cenkaṇ varivarān mīnpiraḷuñ kāviri nāṭan porunarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the monarch of the land
Of Cauvery,
Where the red-eyed fish
Of frilled fin frisk and play,
Slaughtered his opponents,
Elephants
Smeared in the battle gore
Resembled blue hillocks Turned crimson
By flamboyant jathilinga buds.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
Who's ruling the land having River Cauviri, where red-eyed murels with streaks therein are flopping and leaping,
has killed his enemies,
The elephants which were looking like blue mountains,
after ravaging at war,
Are now appearing like the vermilion hills,
with their reddish colour.
3. The Chozha king Sengannan of the Cauvery region where red-eyed and striped Varal fish shining roll killed his enemies in the battle field. These elephants resembling dark hills fighting a bloody war looked like vermilion hillocks.

8. யானைமேல் யானை நெறிதர வானாது
கண்ணேர் கடுங்கணை மெய்ம்மாய்ப்ப - எவ்வாயும்
எண்ணருங் குன்றிற் குரீஇயினம் போன்றவே
பண்ணா ரிடிமுரசிற் பாய்புன னீர்நாடன்
நண்ணாரை யட்ட களத்து.

yāṇaimēl yānai neritara vāṇātu kaṇṇēr kaṭuṅkaṇai meymmayppa - evvāyum eṇṇaruṅ kunṇir kurīyiṇam pōṇṇavē paṇṇā riṭimuracir pāypuna nīrṇāṭan naṇṇārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the monarch of the land
Of fertilizing waters
That thundered
Like wardrums in décor
Slaughtered his opponents,
Elephants rushed against elephants
Every pore of their skin
Pierced through and through
By arrows
Leaving wounds
Resembling the eyes of women.
The elephants
Resembled hillocks
With swarms of little birds.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom
Who's possessing the decorated thundering drum and the land where water of River Cauviri is flowing,
The deadly arrows which look like the eyes of ladies are darting in all directions Making the elephants fall one upon another and covering their bodies fully It looks as if the small birds are flocking together on innumerable mountains.
3. The king of the region of the Cauvery in which water flowed sounding like well-tuned drum, killed his enemies

in the battle ground. There were elephants struck down, fell one over another and with the fast flying (lovely ladies') eye-like arrows unintermittently piercing their bodies all over and so covering them looked like numberless hillocks whereon perched flocks of sparrows (little birds).

9. மேலோரைக் கீழோர் குறுகிக் குறைத்திட்ட
காலார் சோடற்ற கழற்கா லிருங்கடல்
ஊணில் சுறாபிறழ்வ போன்ற புனனாடன்
நேராரை யட்ட களத்து.

mēlōraik kīlōr kurukik kuraittitta kālār cōṭarra kalarkā liruṅkaṭal ūṇil curāpīraḷva pōṇra punanāṭan nērārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of flowing waters
Slaughtered the unrighteous,
The warriors on foot
From below Rushed against The horsemen
High above
And hacked off the plated legs.
The severed limbs
Adorned with ankle-rings
Twisted and turned Like twirling sharks
Hungering for prey.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
Who's reigning the land where River Cauviri flows,
has killed his enemies,
The anklets-wearing legs of warriors of cavalry and elephantry have been hewed and cut off along with the leggings
by the infantry who are fighting from the ground;
And those severed legs look like the sharks

which are flopping in the big sea, without getting any food.

3. In the field of battle where the king of the riverine plains killed his enemies, the legs wearing anklets of valour and the plated leg-wear cut down by foot-soldiers from riders on horsebacks rolled in the sea of blood like the hungry sharks swimming in the far-flung ocean.

10. பல்கணை யெவ்வாயும் பாய்தலிற் செல்கலா
தொல்கி யுயங்குங் களிநெல்லாந் – தொல்சிறப்பிற்
செவ்வலங் குன்றம்போற் றோன்றும் புனனாடன்
தெவ்வரை யட்ட களத்து.

palkañai yevvāyum pāyṭaliṛ celkalā
tolki yuṇṅkuṇ kaḷirellān – tolciṛappir cevvalaṇ kunṛampōṛ rōṇṛum punanāṭaṇ tevvurai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the monarch of the land
Of vitalizing waters
Slaughtered his repugnant foes,
As weapons of every kind Flew and pierced Every limb,
The elephants,
Unable to move,
Stood motionless
Like the mountain Meru
Of ancient fabled fame.
2. In the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom,
watered by River Cauviri,
has killed his enemies,
All the elephants having fainted on account of the darting
Of innumerable arrows over all parts of their bodies
Are suffering much, without being able to proceed further
And are tottering;

And they thus look like the red Hills
of age-old fame.

3. In the battlefield where the king of the riverine plains killed his foes, the elephants with innumerable arrows shooting into all parts of their body found themselves unable to move forward; so they staggered and suffered greatly. In such a condition they looked like the old famed red ochre mounds.

11. கழுமிய ஞாட்பினுண் மைந்திழந்தா ரிட்ட
ஒழிமுரசு மொண்குருதி யாடித் – தொழின்மடிந்து
கண்காணா யானை யுதைப்ப விழுமென
மங்குன் மழையின் திரு மதிராப்போர்ச்
செங்கண்மா லட்ட களத்து.

kaḷumiya ṇāṭpiṇuṇ maintilantā riṭṭa oḷimuraca moṇkuruti yāṭit – toḷinmaṭintu kaṇkāṇā yāṇai yutaippa viḷumēṇa maṅkun maḷaiyiṇ tiru matirāppōrc ceṅkaṇmā laṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Unperturbed in war
Slaughtered his foes, Losing their might
In the jostling fight
Men let fall
The drums of war Which
Half-sunk in the luminous gore
Lost their native resound
And mumbled
Like rain-laden clouds
When elephants eyeless tumbled against them.
2. In the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
Who never gets startled in waging wars,
has killed his enemies,

The war drums left behind by the warriors
who lost their strength,
Having got immersed in abundant blood,
Are kicked by the elephants, which after having lost their eyes
On account of the wounds inflicted by the forces,
Have left their warfare action;
And they (the war-drums) are thus resounding as thunder,
by such kicking.

3. In the field of battle where the unfaltering fighter Senganmal killed his foes, the war drums relinquished in the thick of the fight (and ceased to be beaten) by weakened (wounded) soldiers dipping in the shining blood and ceasing to be of service as of old, now killed by blinded elephants mumbled.

12. ஓவாக் கணைபாய வொல்கி யெழில்வேழந்
திவாய்க் குருதி யிழிதலாற் செந்தலைப்
பூவலங் குன்றம் புயற்கேற்ற போன்றவே
காவிரி நாடன் கடாஅய்க் கடிதாகக்
கூடாரை யட்ட களத்து.

ōvāk kaṇaipāya volki yeḷilvēḷan tīvāyk kuruti yiḷitalār centalaip pūvalan kuṇṇam puyarkērra pōṇravē kāviri nāṭaṇ kaṭāyḱ kaṭitākak
kūṭārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land of Cauvery
Slaughtered the unfriendly foes
In spiteful speed,
The handsome elephants
Grew weak in limbs
In the endless pouring of arrows;
And smeared in smirching blood
Flamboyant
Resembled
Hillocks of red rock
After a drench of rain.

2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom where River Cauviri flows,
Has killed his enemies in quick succession
By driving his forces,
As the dynamic elephants having fainted
On account of incessant piercing of arrows,
Are pouring down heavy blood of the colour of fire;
And they look as if the Red Hills having red colour area are bathing in the fall of rain.
3. In the field of battle where the king of the Cauvery region killed his enemies making a furious attack with his army, the stately elephants continuously pierced by arrows became enfeebled with fire-like blood flowing down their bodies. In such a plight they looked like crimson mounds of sand drenched by rain.

13. நிரைகதிர் நீளெஃக நீட்டி வயவர்
வரைபுரை யானைக்கை நூற – வரைமேல்
உருமெறி பாம்பிற் புரளுஞ் செருமொயம்பிற்
சேஎய்பொரு தட்ட களத்து.

niraiḱatir nīḷekka nīṭṭi vayavar varaipurai yāṇaikkai nūra – varaimēl urumeri pāmpir puraluñ cerumoypir cēeyporu taṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of battle-strong
Fought against and vanquished his foes,
Warriors
Lifting up their long sparkling swords
Well behind
Their heads and shoulders
Chopped off
The trunks of elephants
Resembling hillocks
And the severed trunks
Rolled on the ground

Like pythons hit
By a stroke of lightning.

2. In the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
Who is renowned for his prowess at war-field,
Has killed his enemies,
His warriors had drawn out their long swords
Of swarming radiance and cut down the trunks
Of mountain-like elephants;
And the trunks so butchered are rolling over
Like the thunder-struck snakes
Of the mountain.
3. In the field of battle where the redoubtable warrior king fought and killed his enemies, warriors holding aloft their long scintillating swords cut down the mountainous elephants' trunks which dropping on the ground writhed like huge snakes on the mountain struck down by a thunderbolt.

14. கவளங்கொள் யானையின் கைதுணிக்கப் பட்டுப் பவளஞ் சொரிதரு பைபோற் றிவளொளிய
வொண்ணெங் குருதி யுமிழும் புனனாடன்
கொங்கரை யட்ட களத்து.

kavalankol yānaiyin kaituṇikkap paṭṭup pavaḷaṇ coritaru paipōr rivalōḷiya voṇceṇ kuruti yumilum puṇanāṭaṇ koṇkarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of copious waters
Slaughtered the foes from Kongu,
The trunks of elephants
Used to lift balls of rice
Now dismembered
Resembled huge sacks
Scattering coralline beads
As scarlet blood
Strained through them.

2. In the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola Kingdom watered by River Cauvirri, Has killed the warriors of Kongu country, The elephants which usually take balls of rice, Now on getting their trunks cut down, Are discharging shining blood, Which is like the act of a cobra Effusing shining red-coral.
3. In the battlefield where the king Senganan of the riverine plains killed the Kongars the elephants' trunks with which food was taken were cut down and shining blood gushed out of such severed trunks like corals pouring out of a bag.

15. கொல்யானை பாயக் குடைமுருக்கி யெவ்வாயும் புக்கவா யெல்லாம் பிணம்பிறங்கத் – தச்சன்
வினைபடு பள்ளியிற் றோன்றுமே செங்கட்
சினமால் பொருத களத்து.

*kolyānai pāyak kuṭaimurukki yevvāyum pukkavā yellām piṇampiraṅkat – taccaṇ viṇaiṇpaṭu paḷḷiyiṛ rōṇrumē cenkaṭ
ciṇamāl poruta kaḷattu.*

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of great rage
Fought against his foes,
Everywhere
Fell to pieces
The flagmasts and umbrellas
As elephants
Enraged to killing Rushed here and there;
Carcasses piled and scattered
In all places
Resembling
A carpenter's place of work.
2. In the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the indignant red-eyed King of the Chola kingdom,

has killed his enemies,
 As his murderous elephants are breaking their royal umbrellas and pouncing on
 in all the directions,
 All the places they have so entered have become the places of piles of corpses;
 And they look like the workshops where carpenters are engaged in carpentry.

3. In the battlefield where the furious king Senganmal waged war, deadly elephants, attacked and destroyed all round the royal umbrellas of enemies and in the places where the elephants entered (in the fray) corpses lay scattered and the whole field looked like the place where carpenters worked.

16. பரும வினமாக் கடவித் தெரிமறவர்
 ஊக்கி யெடுத்த வரவத்தி னார்ப்பஞ்சாக்
 குஞ்சரக் கும்பத்துப் பாய்வன குன்றிவரும்
 வேங்கை யிரும்புலி போன்ற புன்னாடன்
 வேந்தரை யட்ட களத்து.

paruma viṇamāk kaṭavit terimaravar
ūkki yeṭutta varavatti nārppaṇcāk kuñcarak kumpattup pāyvaṇa kuṇṇivarum vēṅkai yirumpuli pōṇra punanāṭaṇ
vēntarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the king of the land
 Of flowing waters
 Slaughtered the rival kings,
 The horses in armored plates
 Driven by the choicest of horsemen
 Neighed in resounding echoes
 And jumped on the heads
 Of elephants fearless
 Resembling
 Tigers of ferocity
 Pouncing on prey
 Among the hills.

2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom watered by river Cauviri,
Has killed his enemy king,
The destroyers of fine race which are having saddles,
Being ridden by the warriors of excelling prowess,
Are raising great tumultuous noise and pouncing on
The frontal globe of the prehead of elephants
Which do not get frightened by the said noise;
It looks like the act of a large tiger
Which is rushing at a huge mountain.
3. In the field of war where king Senganmal of the riverine plains killed his enemy kings, saddled horses in battle array, ridden by courageous cavalymen, spring on the forehead of elephants which are unmoved by the great uproar raised by warriors with gusto. Such action of the steeds looked like the large striped tiger springing on a rock.

17. ஆர்ப்பெழுந்த ஞாட்பினு ளாளா ளெதிர்த்தோடித்
தாக்கி யெறிதர வீழ்தரு மொண்குருதி
கார்த்திகைச் சாற்றிற் கழிவிளக்குப் போன்றனவே
போர்க்கொடித் தானைப் பொருபுன னீர்நாடன்
ஆர்த்தம ரட்ட களத்து.

ārppelunta ṇāṭpinu ḷāḷa ḷetirttōṭit tākki yeritara vīṭtaru moṇkuruti kārttikaic cārrir kaliviḷakkup pōṇṇanavē pōrkkōṭit tāṇaip porupuna nīrnāṭan
ārttama raṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king
Of an army of flag-marchers,
And of a land
Of waters embattling with the banks,
Slaughtered his arrogant foes;
In that resounding field
Warrior against warrior Dashed and ran,
Attacked and threw

Their weapons,
The ample blood Shed shone
Like very many lamps
On karthigai festival.

2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King Of the Chola kingdom who is having a mighty army with the war-flag on its van
And who's having a river-watered kingdom
With River Cauviri of dashing waves,
Has roared and killed his enemies,
The shining blood is flowing down
From the wounded warriors on both sides
Who're moving towards and attacking one another
By throwing missiles in the tumultuous battle;
It's looking like the scene of a large number of earthen lamps
Which every house is beautifully lit with,
On the full moon day of Karthikai month
3. Chozhan Senganan, the possessor of a war-flag and ruler of the land where the waters of the river Kaveri beat against the banks, wages war with great uproar and kills many an enemy in the field of battle. In such a noisy battlefield soldier dashes against soldier and throws the javelin, in consequence whereof, the shining blood that gushes down from the warriors resembles the many glowing lamps lit
during the Karthigai festival.

18. நளிந்த கடலுட் டிமிறிரை போலெங்கும்
விளிந்தார் பிணங்குருதி யீர்க்குந் – தெளிந்து
தடற்றிடங் கொள்வாட்டளை யவிழுந் தார்ச்சேஎய் உடற்றியர் ரட்ட களத்து.

nalinta kaṭaluṭ ṭimirai pōlenkum viḷintār piṇaṅkuruti yīrkkun – teḷintu taṭarriṭaṅ koḷvāṭṭalai yaṇiḷun tārcceey uṭarriyar raṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the youthful Sen Kan Chozhan
Of sword that handsomely fits
The easily identifiable sheath
Slaughtered his angering foes,
The swift current of blood
Swept away the corpses
Resembling
The waves of the wide sea
And the swirling vessels in tide.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom
Who possesses the bright sword which occupies
The interior space of the ornamental scabbard
And who is wearing the garland of blossomed flowers,
Has killed his enemies who have enraged him,
The blood-flood is dragging along
The heap of corpses in all the directions,
Like the waves in the sea which is vast in extent,
Are dragging boats with persons therein.
3. In the field of battle where the king Sengannan bearing a shining sword in the scabbard and wearing a loosening garland (round his neck) killed his enemies who infuriated him, the heaps of corpses were tossed about by waves of blood as boats by billows in the deep sea.

19. இடைமருப்பின் விட்டெறிந்த வெஃகங்கான் மூழ்கிக் கடைமணி கான்வரத் தோற்றி - நடைமெலிந்து
முக்கோட்ட போன்ற களிநெல்லா நீர்நாடன் புக்கம ரட்ட களத்து.

iṭaimaruppiṇ viṭṭerinta vekkaṅkāṇ mūḷkik kuṭaimaṇi kāṇvarat tōṛri - naṭaimelintu mukkōṭṭa pōṇra kaḷirellā nīrnāṭaṇ pukkama raṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land

Of copiously flowing waters
Fought in person and slew his foes,
The piercing steel
Sank deeply into the flesh
In between the two horns
Leaving only its handle in sight.
The elephant
Unable to move or sink
Seemed to have grown
Three horns.

2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom watered by river Cauviri,
Has entered and killed his enemies,
With the spear flung at the middle of the tusks,
The shaft of the spear being thrust in the tusks
And its handle alone being sighted,
All the elephants so seen faltering are looking
As if they're having three tusks.

3. In the battlefield where the king of the riverine plains entering killed his enemies, the javelins aimed and thrown between the tusks of elephants pierced to the depth of the extreme joint which was visible. The javelins thus sticking up between the tusks of elephants looked as if the animals which now appeared greatly weakened had three tusks instead of two!

20. இருசிறக ரீர்க்குப் பரப்பி யெருவை
குருதி பிணங்கவருந் தோற்றம் – அதிர்விலாச்
சீர்முழாப் பண்ணமைப்பான் போன்ற புனனாடன்
நேராரை யட்ட களத்து.

iruciṛaka rīrkkup parappi yeruvai kuruti piṇaṅkavarun tōṛram – atirvilāc cīrmulāp paṇṇamaippān pōṇra puṇaṇāṭaṇ nērārai yaṭṭa kalattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of flowing waters

Slew his opposing foes,
 The vultures
 Flapping their feathers
 Under the two wings
 Gorged at the corpses
 Drenched in gore;
 The spectacle and sound
 Resembling
 A musician and his small drum
 And the perfectly rhythmic beats.

2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
 King of the chola kingdom watered by river Cauviri,
 Has killed his enemies,
 The scene of vultures spreading their wings
 And seizing the corpses from which blood is flowing out,
 Appears as if one who is trying to set tune
 His drum which raises no tremolo.
3. In the battlefield where the king of the riverine plains killed his enemies, the eagles spreading the roots of their wings wide and clawing the bloody corpses looked like a person setting right the drums lacking the proper tune.

21. இணைவே லெழின்மருமத் திங்கப்புண் கூர்ந்து கணையலைக் கொல்கிய யானை – துணையிலவாய்த்
 தொல்வலி யாற்றித் துளங்கினவாய் மெல்ல
 நிலங்கால் கவரு மலைபோன்ற செங்கட்
 சினமால் பொருத களத்து.

inaivē leḷinmarumat tīnkappuṇ kūrntu kanaiyalaik kolkiya yānai-tunaiyilavāyt tolvali yārrit tuḷaṅkinavāy mella nilaṅkāl kavaru malaipōṇra ceṅkaṭ cinamāl poruta kaḷattu.

1. In the battlefield
 Where Sen Kan Chozhan
 Of great fury
 Fought and slew,

The entwined spears
 Penetrated deep
 Into their breasts;
 And the elephants
 Grown weak in limbs
 By the shifting steel
 With no drivers to guide
 Shorn of their strength
 Shivered and fell
 Grasping the land with their legs
 Sinking in the land with their legs
 Sinking in slow degrees
 As mountains slide
 Flattened to the ground.

2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
 King of the Chola kingdom, has waged war,
 The elephants which have excessive wounds
 On account of the brace spears going deep
 Into their beautiful breasts,
 And have got fainted by the distress
 Caused by the infliction of arrows,
 Are now derelicts which have lost
 Their earlier strength and are now drooping;
 They thus look like mountains which are grasping
 The land with their legs.

3. In the field of battle where the king Senganmal waged war, well-fitted out javelin's piercing their strong breasts and wounding them deeply, and greatly staggered by the fast flying arrows, the elephants losing their riders and losing their wonted strength trembling collapsed on the ground, looking like mountains, grasping the earth with their legs.

22. இருநிலஞ் சேர்ந்த குடைக்கீழ் வரிநுதல்
 ஆடியல் யானைத் தடக்கை யொளிறுவாள்
 ஓடா மறவர் துணிப்பத் துணிந்தவை
 கோடுகொ ளொண்மதியை நக்கும்பாம் பொக்குமே
 பாடா ரிடிமுரசிற் பாய்புன னீர்நாடன்
 கூடாரை யட்ட களத்து.

irunilañ cērnta kuṭaikkīl varinutal āṭiyal yānait taṭakkai yōḷiruvāḷ ōṭā maravar tuṇippat tuṇintavai kōṭuko ḷoṇmatiyai nakkumpām pokkumē pāṭā riṭimuraciṛ pāypuna nīrnāṭan
kūṭārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the king of the land of copious waters
 Of battle drums
 Resounding like thunder Slaughtered his envious foes
 As warriors
 Who never showed their back to the field
 Hacked and whacked,
 The swaying trunks of victorious elephants
 Of ash-lined foreheads now dismembered
 Writhed in the field under the white umbrellas
 Resembling the dark serpent
 That swallows
 The white shining moon.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
 King of the Chola kingdom
 Who possesses the royal drum
 Which is like roaring thunder
 And the River Cauviri which has flowing waters,
 Has killed his enemies,
 His warriors who are holding glittering swords
 And who would never show their back in defeat,
 Have cut off the long trunks of victorious elephants
 Having streaks on the foreheads;
 And the trunks so severed and which are now Lying near the royal umbrellas
 Which have fallen on earth,
 Look like the snakes which touch the brilliant moon
 Which has a cusp.
3. In the battlefield where the king of the plains where rivers flow, the possessor of drums sounding like great thunder, killed his enemies, unfleeing warriors with flashing swords cut down the long trunks of victorious elephants with striped foreheads. The trunks so cut down looking like the snake licking full moon (the earth's shadow darkening the full moon) lay by the side of the royal white umbrellas knocked down in the field.

23. எற்றி வயவ ரெறிய நுதல்பிளந்து நெய்த்தோர்ப் புனலு ணிவந்தகளிற் றுடம்பு
செக்கர்கோள் வானிற் கருங்கொண்மூப் போன்றவே
கொற்றவேற் றானைக் கொடித்திண்டேர்ச் செம்பியன்
செற்றாரை யட்ட களத்து.

erri vayava reriya nutalpilantu neyttōrp punalu ṇivantakaliṛ ruṭampu cekkarkōḷ vāṇiṛ karuṅkoṇmūp pōṇravē korravēr rāṇaik koṭittinṭērc cempiyan cerrārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the battlefield
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of an army of victorious spears,
And of chariots
Strongly built and flagged,
Slew his opposing foes,
The dead carcasses of elephants
On which the warriors tumbled
Their foreheads blown
And sunk in the fury and mire
Of blood
Resembled
Black clouds in a scarlet sky.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom
Who possesses a victorious force of spearmen
And a strong chariot which has a tremulous standard,
Has killed his enemies,
The bodies of the elephants over which the blood is flowing
On account of breaking of their foreheads

By throwing of arms by the warriors,
Look like the black clouds on the red-sky.

3. In the battlefield where the Chozha king Senganan, the owner of a victorious spear-borne army and a flagged strong chariot, killed his enemies, the bodies of elephants whose foreheads were split by weapons of war aimed against them by warriors dipping and floating in the pool of blood, looked like black clouds in a red-hued sky.

24. திண்டோண் மறவ ரெறியத் திசைதோறும்
பைந்தலை பாரிற் புரள்பவை – நன்கெனைத்தும்
பெண்ணையந் தோட்டம் பெருவளி புக்கற்றே
கண்ணார் கமழ்தெரியற் காவிரி நீர்நாடன்
நண்ணாரை யட்ட களத்து.

tiṇṭōṇ maṛava reriyat ticaitōrum
paintalai pāriṭ puralṭpavai – nanṅenaittum peṇṇaiyan tōṭṭam peruvaḷi pukkarrē kaṇṇār kamaḷteriyar kāviri nīrnāṭaṇ
nanṇārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land of Cauvery,
Of fragrant and eye-filling garlands,
Slew his unfriendly foes;
Thrown by warriors
Strong and broad-shouldered,
In all directions,
Rolled in mud
The greenish-brown heads;
And as these grew in number
Resembled
A typhoon in a palm grove.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom having River Cauviri,
Who is wearing fragrant garland
Which is so pleasing to the eyes,
Has killed his enemies,

The black-haired heads of the enemies are tumbling
 O'er the ground in all the directions
 On account of throwing of swords by his warriors
 Who're having strong shoulders;
 And they look like the rolling over of palmyra fruits
 On account of the entry and blowing of gale
 In palmyra grove.

3. In the battlefield where the king of the Cauvery region wearing lovely sweet-smelling garlands killed his enemies, because of the sword cuts by strong-shouldered warriors' black heads (cut down) rolled on the ground on all sides and looked as if a violent storm blew over a palmyra grove (knocking down the black fruits and rolling them all round).

25. மலைகலங்கப் பாயு மலைபோ னிலைகொள்ளாக் குஞ்சரம் பாயக் கொடியெழுந்து – பொங்குபு
 வானந் துடைப்பன போன்ற புனனாடன்
 மேவாரை யட்ட களத்து.

malaikalankap pāyu malaipō nilaikolḷāk kuñcaram pāyak koṭiyeluntu – poṅkupu vāṇan tuṭaippaṇa pōṇra punanāṭan
mēvārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the king of the land
 Of copious waters
 Slew the advancing foes,
 Elephants standing firm
 Uprooted other elephants
 Like mountains uprooting mountains
 And the flags afluttering
 Flew up and furled
 As if
 Cleansing the skies.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola kingdom watered by River Cauviri, Has killed his enemies,

As the elephants are firmly pouncing
 Like the act of mountains which strike against mountains
 And nonplus them,
 The standards tied on their heads are rising up,
 and waving, as if they are sweeping the sky.

3. In the field of battle where the king of the riverine plains killed his enemies, like mountain strangling a mountain shatteringly, elephants with their rear legs firmly rooted sprang on the enemy elephants and when they did so, the ensigns housed on their backs rose high and flapped as if they brushed the very skies!

26. எவ்வாயு மோடி வயவர் துணித்திட்ட
 கைவாயிற் கொண்டெழுந்த செஞ்செவிப் புன்சேவல்
 ஐவாய் வயநாகங் கவ்வி விசும்பிவருஞ்
 செவ்வா யுவணத்திற் றோன்றும் புன்னாடன்
 தெவ்வரை யட்ட களத்து.

evvāyu mōṭi vayavar tuṇittitta kaivāyir koṇṭelunta ceñcevip puṇcēval aivāy vayanākaṅ kavvi vicumpivaruṇ cevvā yuvaṇattir rōṇrum puṇanāṭaṇ
tevvarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the king of the land
 Of flowing waters
 Slaughtered his repugnant enemies
 Rushing everywhere
 Warriors
 Hacked and struck,
 And the red-eared male kite
 Snatching in its beak
 A hewn hand dismembered,
 Winged aloft
 Resembling
 The Brahmin-kite
 Whirling in the sky
 Snatching a five-headed serpent
 In its claws and beak.

2. In the battle-field, where Changatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola kingdom watered by River Cauviri, Has killed his enemies,
The tawny kites which are having reddish ears,
Are seizing by their mouths
The hands slain by the warriors
Who are running here and there,
Are raising on high;
They look as if the white-headed kites which are having Reddish mouths and are flying high in the sky,
Are seizing the mighty
Five-mouthed snakes.
3. In the field of war where the king Senganan of the riverine plains killed his enemies the red-eared male kites rose in the air holding in their mouths enemy warriors' hands, which, the Chozha soldiers rushing in on all sides cut down; the scene resembled a red-mouthed brahmin kite flying in the sky holding the mighty five-mouthed snake in its mouth.

27. செஞ்சேற்றுட் செல்யானை சீறி மிதித்தலால் ஒண்ணெங் குருதிகள் தொக்கிண்டி நின்றவை
பூவிர் வியன்றமிடாப் போன்ற புனனாடன்
மேவாரை யட்ட களத்து.

ceñcērruṭ celyānai cīri mitittalāl oñcen kurutikaḷ tokkiṇṭi niṇṇavai pūvir viyaṇṇamiṭāp pōṇra puṇaṇāṭaṇ
mēvārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of copious waters
Slew the advancing foes,
The rushing elephants Infuriated
Trampled under their feet
The mire of blood;
And in the holes Collected

Pools of shining scarlet blood
 Resembling
 A water tank of flaming flowers.

2. At the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola kingdom watered by River Cauviri, Has killed his enemies,
 The shining and reddish blood is getting collected
 At the cavities created
 By the treading of the infuriated elephants
 Which are walking in the mud mired by bloodshed;
 It looks like a water pot which is Replete with reddish flowers.
3. In the battlefield when the king Senganan of the riverine plains killed his foes, the passing elephants violently treading the blood-miry ground, blood collected in pools, in the footprints and the blood so collected in the pits resembled red flowers in large wide vessels.

28. ஓடா மறவ ருருத்து மதஞ்செருக்கிப் பீடுடை வாளார் பிறங்கிய ஞாட்பினுட்
 கேடகத்தோ டற்ற தடக்கை கொண்டோடி
 இகலன்வாய்த் துற்றிய தோற்ற மயலார்க்குக்
 கண்ணாடி காண்பாரிற் றோன்றும் புனனாடன்
 நண்ணாரை யட்ட களத்து.

ōḍā marava ruruttu matañcerukkip pīṭuṭai vālār pirankiya ñāṭpiṇuṭ kēṭakattō ṭarra tāṭakkai koṇṭōṭi ikalanvāyt turriya tōrra mayalārkkuk kannāṭi kāṇpārir rōṇrum punanāṭan
nanṇārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the king of the land
 Of flowing waters
 Slew the unfriendly foes,
 Warriors who never ran away from the field
 Frowned big in pride and valour fought,
 Their swords of glory

Held aloft;
And the long hands
Still clutching the shield
Rolled on the ground.
The night-prowlers
With these limbs in their fearful jaws
Looked at strangers
Through their rolling eyes
Resembling beads of glass.

2. In the battle-field, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom watered by river Cauviri,
Has killed his enemies,
The scene of jackals seizing by their mouth
And running away with the large hands of warriors
Which have fallen, being cut off along with buckler,
At the said battlefield,
Where those warriors who never showed their back in defeat
And who are carrying swords of victorious greatness
Are fighting vigorously and getting exhilarated pride, Does appear to those who stand nearby
as those who see themselves in the mirror.
3. In the field of war where the king Senganan of the riverine plains killed his enemies, the unfleeing warriors furiously and with gusto fought holding in their hands their renowned swords. In such a battle, the jackals ran away holding in their mouths the enemy soldier's hand with the shield therein cut down. For the onlookers it looked as if people were looking at mirrors!

29. கடிக்காவிற் காற்றுற் றெறிய வெடிபட்டு
வீற்றுவிற் றோடு மயிலினம்போல் – நாற்றிசையும்
கேளி ரிழந்தா ரலறுபவே செங்கட்
சினமால் பொருத களத்து.

kaṭikāviṛ kārurṛuṛ reṛiya veṭipattu vīrruvīṛ rōṭu mayilīnampōl – nārṛicaiyum kēli rilantā ralarupavē cenkaṭ
ciṇamāl poruta kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of great fury
Fought and slew,
Like unto peacocks
Running helter shelter
In packs and shoals Frightened
By the increasing speed of wind
In a dark crowded grove
So did
The women
Who lost their men
Run helter-skelter
Weep and wail
In all directions fourfold.
2. In the battlefield, where Changatcholan the king of the Chola kingdom who's having reddish eyes and wrath,
has fought with his enemies,
Those women who've lost their husbands are weeping aloud in all the directions
Like groups of peacocks which are running severally, getting afraid of the blowing of cold biting wind
o'er the garden which has trees of fragrant flowers.
3. In the field of battle where the furious Chozha king with bloody eyes waged war, like the flock of peacocks that scared runs about severally in a dense grove when a tempest rages, the women who lost their husbands raised a wail on all sides, running about.

30. மடங்க வெறிந்து மலையுருட்டு நீர்போல்
தடங்கொண்ட வொண்குருதி கொல்களி நீர்க்கு
மடங்கா மறமொய்ம்பிற் செங்கட் சினமால் அடங்காரை யட்ட களத்து.

maṭaṅka verintu malaiyuruṭṭu nīrpōl taṭaṅkoṇṭa vonkuruti kolkaḷi rīrkku maṭaṅkā maramoympir ceṅkaṭ ciṇamāl aṭaṅkārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of leonine
Strength, valour and fury
Slaughtered the recalcitrant foes,
Like unto the flood
That uproots mountains
And rolls them on
So did
The expanding flood
Of shining grisly gore
Roll in its course
The slain elephants.
2. In the battlefield, where Changatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom,
Who has imposing shoulders and breast
And renowned for untumbled bravery
Has killed his enemies, who are raging in wrath,
The bright blood-flood which is widespread like the water-flood
Which uproots the mountains,
Throws them, making them roll and tumble,
Is dragging the slain elephants
Along with it.
3. In the field of war where the red-eyed furious Senganan of unflinching valour killed his foes, like the flooding water dashing against the rocks and rolling down the huge boulders, the vast shinning flood of blood dragged the dead elephants along.

31. ஓடா மறவ ரெறிய நுதல்பிளந்த
கோடேந்து கொல்களிற்றுக் கும்பத் தெழிலோடை
மின்னுக் கொடியின் மிளிரும் புன்னாடன் ஒன்னாரை யட்ட களத்து.

ōṭā marava reṛiya nutalpīlanta kōṭēntu kolkalirruk kumpat telilōṭai miṇṇuk koṭiyiṇ mīlirum punanāṭan onṇārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of copious waters
Slew his dissenting foes,
As the warriors
Who never ran away from the field
Aimed their weapons,
The killing elephants of uplifted horns,
Their foreheads blown,
And their heads
Covered in plated gear
Shone like streaks
Of lightning.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom watered by river Cauviri,
Has killed his enemies,
The imposing frontlet tied o'er frontal globe
Of the killing elephants which get their foreheads
Cleaved by the throwing of spears by warriors
Who never show their back in defeat in war,
Looks like gleaming streak of lightning
Running thro' dark clouds.
3. In the field of battle where the king of the riverine plains killed his enemies, the lovely golden plate on the fore-heads of the deadly elephants whose foreheads were split by the unfleeing warriors throwing their javelins at them resembled lightnings (in the sable clouds).

32. மையின்மா மேனி நிலமென்னு நல்லவள்
செய்யது போர்த்தாள்போற் செவ்வந்தாள்-பொய்தீர்ந்த
பூந்தார் முரசிற் பொருபுன வீர்நாடன்
காய்ந்தாரை யட்ட களத்து.

maiyinmā mēni nilamēnnu nallavaḷ ceyyatu pōrttālpōr cevvantāḷ-poytīrnta pūntār muraciṛ porupuṇa nīrnāṭan kāyntārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of copious rivers
Never turning dry or proving false
Embattled the banks;
Where the king
Of the garland of flowers
And of victorious drums
Slaughtered the jealous enemies,
The goodly earth
Of blemishless beauty
Covered in a blanket red
Turned crimson herself.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom, who wears a garland
Of fragrant flowers which don't wither,
Possesses the Royal Drum of war, which is ever-beaten
In token of victory and who is having River Cauviri, Water of which does not dry up at all
But dashes against the shores,
Has killed his furious enemies,
Lady Earth who has a spotless body
Of fertile elegance
Has tuned red in colour as if she put on a red garment,
On account of the blood
Flowing out of warriors' fight.
3. In the field of war, the flower-garlanded king, possessing the drum of victory and lord of the region where the perennial waters of the Cauvery dash against the banks, killed his enemies. There Dame Earth of flawless beauty became red-hued as if she drew a red mantle over her body.

33. பொய்கை யுடைந்து புனல்பாய்ந்த வாயெல்லா
நெய்த லிடையிடை வாளை பிறழ்வனபோல்
ஐதிலங் கெஃகி னனிரொளிவா டாயினவே
கொய்கவன் மாவிற் கொடித்திண்டேர்ச் செம்பியன்
தெவ்வரை யட்ட களத்து.

*poykai yuṭaintu punalpāyṇta vāyellā neyta liṭaiyiṭai vālai piraḷvaṇapōl aitilaṇ kekki naviroḷivā ṭāyinavē koycuvaṇ māvīṛ koṭittiṇṭērc cempiyaṇ
 tevvarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.*

1. In the field of battle
 Where Sen Kan Chozhan
 Of strong chariot and fluttering flag Drawn by well-kempt horses
 Slew his hateful enemies,
 The spectacle
 Of handsome steel spearheads
 Flashing now and then Among long swords
 Shining bright
 Resembled
 A lake of broken bunds
 With stagnant pools of water
 Collected everywhere
 And the neithal flowers in bloom
 And in between
 The frisking and gamboling Valai fish.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola kingdom, who has royal horse with sheared mane and a strong chariot with his standard tied to it,
 has killed his enemies,
 The glittering swords are flying along with beautiful gleaming lances
 Like the scabbard-fish flopping every now and then thro' the fingers of water-lily flowers all o'er the places, Where the water had gushed out from the buttress of the bund of a tank which got breached.
3. In the field of battle where the Chozha king Senganan, the possessor of horses with trimmed manes and mighty chariots killed his enemies, like the valai fish swimming and rolling along amidst the neithal blooms blowing in the (red) waters that have flooded all round with the bund of the tank giving way, attractive javelins and flashing swords rolled along (in the moving flood of blood).

34. இணரிய ஞாட்பினு னேற்றெழுந்த மைந்தர்
கடரிலங் கெஃக மெறியச் சோர்ந்துக்க
குடர்கொண்டு வாங்குங் குறுநரி கந்தில்
தொடரொடு கோணாய் புரையு மடர்பைம்பூட்
சேய்பொரு தட்ட களத்து.

iṇariya ṇāṭpiṇu lērrēlunta maintar cuṭarilaṇ kekka meriyac cōrntukka kuṭarkoṇṭu vāṇkuṇ kuṟunari kantil toṭaroṭu kōṇāy puraiyu maṭarpaimpūṭ cēyporu taṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of greenish brown plated breast
Fought and slew,
In the thickening field
Valiant warriors
Rose up, in all their might Aimed and threw
Spears of shining steel
And wounded,
Fell to the ground
And the pack of vixen
As they grabbed at the intestines
In their mouth and ran Resembled
Hounds in tethering chains.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom, who wears ornaments
Made of fine gold in the shape of foil the thin flap,
Has killed his enemies,
The jackal is seizing by its mouth and dragging away,
The bowels which have been falling o'er the ground
By the throwing of shining lances by his warriors

Who proceeded against their enemies
In the dense and continuous fight;
And it resembles the scene of a wolf
Which is chained, and tied to a pillar
Being dragged away.

3. In the battlefield where the Chozha king wearing thick-set lovely ornaments, fought and killed (his foes), in the thick of the fight warriors rose with fury and threw the javelins in consequence of which the bowels of enemy soldiers protruded and the foxes taking hold of them in their mouths tugged at them. This looked like the hunting dogs tethered to pillars (tugging at the chain).

35. செவ்வரைச் சென்னி யரிமானோ டவ்வரை
ஒல்கி யுருமிற் குடைந்தற்றான் - மல்கிக் கரைகொன் றிழிதருஉங் காவிரிநாடன்
உரைசா னுடம்பிடி மூழ்க வரசோடு அரசுவா விழ்ந்த களத்து.

cevvaraic cenni yarimāṇō ṭavvarai olki yurumir kuṭaintarrāṇ - malkik karaikoṇ riḷitarūṇ kāvirināṭaṇ uraicā nuṭampiṭi mūḷka varacōṭu aracuvā vīḷnta kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of overflowing,
Bund-breaking Cauvery fought and slew,
Felled with their kings
The armoured elephants as well
Bathed in a shower of spears,
Resembling
Mountains of red-rock
And the lion in its peaky haunts
Both giving way to strokes
Of lightning and thunder
And sliding to the level ground.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed King of the Chola kingdom watered by River Cauviri

Which is abound and flowing ruining the bunds,
Has killed his enemies,
The state elephants of his enemy have fallen dead
Along with their kings, with the spears of victorious fame
Of the Chola king piercing their bodies;
It looks as if the guileless mountain is getting trembled
And falling along with lion on its peak,
On account of thunder.

3. The renowned javelins thrown by the king of the region of the bank-breaking Cauvery, piercing the royal elephants with the royal rides on the back collapsed on the ground. This looked like the red hills with the lions on them breaking to pieces at the fall of a thunderbolt.

36. ஒடி உவம நூறழ்வின்றி யொத்ததே
காவிரி நாடன் கழும்பலங் கொண்டநாள்
மாவுதைப்ப மாற்றார் குடையெலாங் கீழ்மேலா
ஆவுதை காளாம்பி போன்ற புனனாடன்
மேவாரை யட்ட களத்து.

ōo uvama nūraḷvinri yottatē kāviri nāṭaṇ kaḷumalaṅ koṇṭanāl māvutaippa mārār kuṭaiyelāṅ kīḷmēlā āvutai kālāmpi pōṇra puṇanāṭaṇ
mēvārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the monarch of the land
Of copious waters
Slaughtered his advancing foes,
On that fateful day
When the lord of the land of Cauvery
Captured kazhumalam
The umbrellas of rivaling kings Trampled by horses
Were strewn upside down
Like the mushroom Upturned under the feet
Of pasturing kine.

Oh! Oh! How very similar
Was the spectacle!

2. At the battlefield, where Changatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom watered by River Cauviri,
Has killed his enemies,
On the day of his capture of Kazhumalam town of the Chera kingdom,
The royal umbrellas of his enemies are getting turned Upside down on account of kicking by his horses,
And they look like the mushrooms being kicked
By the herd of cows;
Yes, the simile has become very apt and consistent
Without any contrast.
3. On the day when the king of the Cauvery region (the Chozha king) annexed the place called Kazhumalam, killing his enemies in the field of battle, the (royal) umbrellas of his enemies that had been kicked up by the (war) horses topsy-turvy looked like the mushrooms kicked up by the (grazing) cows. O, this comparison without flaw suits the scene!

37. அரசர் பிணங்கான்ற நெய்த்தோர் முரசொடு
முத்துடைக் கோட்ட களிற்றீர்ப்ப - எத்திசையும்
பெளவம் புணரம்பி போன்ற புனனாடன்
தெவ்வரை யட்ட களத்து.

*aracar piṇaṅkāṇra neyttōr muracoṭu muttuṭaiḱ kōṭṭa kaḷiṟṟippa - etticaiyum pauvam puṇarampi pōṇra puṇaṇāṭaṇ
tevvarai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.*

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of copious waters
Slew his hateful foes,
The corpses of kings
Shedding
A flood of blood
In all directions

Were swept in the tide
The horned elephants
The battle drums,
And the pearls
Resembling
A vast ocean and a fleet of ships.

2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola Kingdom watered by River Cauviri,
Has killed his enemies,
The flood of blood shed by the corpses of dead kings
On the opposite side, is dragging along
In all the directions,
The elephants which are wearing
Pearl-stitched ornamental cloth on their faces,
Are having long tusks and carrying their royal drums
O'er them and which are since dead;
The flood of blood looks like an ocean
And the dead elephants like the ships Sailing on it.

3. In the field of war where the king of the riverine plains killed his enemies, the blood gushing out of the bodies of kings, dragged along in the current all round the war drums, and the fallen elephants with pearl bearing tusks. This looked like the wavy sea with the ships moving on the waves.

38. பருமப் பணையெருத்திற் பல்யானை புண்கூர்ந்து
உருமெறி பாம்பிற் புரளுஞ் - செருமொயம்பிற்
பொன்னார மார்பிற் புனைகழற்காற் செம்பியன் துன்னாரை யட்ட களத்து.

parumap paṇaiyeruttir palyānai puṇkūrntu urumeri pāmpir puraluñ - cerumoympir ponnāra mārpīr puṇaikālarkār cempiyan tunnārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where Sen Kan Chozhan
Of war renown
And a valiant chest

Bejewelled in gold,
 And of ring-adorned ankles,
 Slew his enemies,
 The bull-necked Elephants huge,
 Several of them
 Sorely wounded
 Rolled on the ground
 Like pythons
 Caught in a stroke
 Of lightning and thunder.

2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
 King of the Chola kingdom
 Who is renowned for his prowess at war,
 Having a wide breast, wearing gold necklace over it
 And having his ankles with anklets strung around them,
 Has killed his enemies,
 A number of elephants which have cushions
 On their necks and have large-naped necks,
 Are tumbling over an account
 Of the excessive wounds inflicted
 On them by his armed forces,
 Like the snakes which are scared away,
 By the noise of thunder.
3. In the battlefield where the Chozha king of valour wearing gold chains on his bosom and anklets of valour on his legs killed his enemies, many decorated big elephants deeply wounded rolled on the ground and wriggled like (huge) snakes struck down by a thunderbolt.

39. மைந்துகால் யாத்து மயங்கிய ஞாட்பினுட்
 புய்ந்துகால் போகிப் புலான்முகந்த வெண்குடை
 பஞ்சிபெய் தாலமே போன்ற புனனாடன் வஞ்சிக்கோ வட்ட களத்து.

maintukāl yāttu mayankiya ṇāṭṭpiṇuṭ puyntukāl pōkip pulāṇmukanta venkuṭai pañcipey tālamē pōṇra punanāṭan vañcikkō vaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
Where the king of the land
Of flowing waters
Vanquished his foe,
The king of Vanchi,
Struggling to their feet
The warriors stayed on;
Their legs caught
In the mire and the mud
And the white umbrellas
Their stems broken
Lay aslant and sunk Taking in
The strewn pieces of flesh
Resembling
A crimson earth
Of crushed Banyan fruits.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
King of the Chola kingdom watered by River Cauviri,
Has killed Cheraman kanaikkaal Irumporai,
the Chera king who ruled o'er the Chera kingdom,
from his capital town 'vanchi',
The white royal umbrella is unable to proceed on account of the fetters, caused by the crowding warriors,
Since its poles are getting torn off at the war;
And it looks like a salver into which the paste of red-cotton is poured.
3. In the battlefield where the king of the riverine plain killed the king of Vanchi, in the thick of the flight where warriors of unflinching valour crowding participated, the royal white umbrellas with their handles plucked away and filled with red flesh looked like vessels filled with red-cotton juice.

40. வெள்ளிவெண் ணாஞ்சிலான் ஞால முழுவனபோல்
எல்லாக் களிற்று நிலஞ்சேர்ந்த - பல்வேற்
பணைமுழங்கு போர்த்தானைச் செங்கட் சினமால் கணைமாரி பெய்த களத்து.

veḷḷiven ṇāñcilāṇ ṇāla muḷuvaṇapōl ellāk kaḷiru nilañcērnta – palvēr paṇaimuḷaṅku pōrttāṇaīc ceṅkaṭ ciṇamāl kaṇaimāri peyta kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where Sen kan Chozhan
 Of implacable rage,
 And of an army
 Of long-resounding battle drums,
 Shot a shower of arrows,
 It appeared
 As if
 The elephants all
 Tethered to silver shares shining
 Ploughed the entire field.
2. At the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
 King of the Chola kingdom who has a pile of spears
 And a fighting army, along with the royal drum
 Which makes loud sound,
 Has thrown his arrows like rain-fall
 On his enemies,
 All the elephants which have long trunks are stooping
 Out of shame, towards the earth;
 And it looks as if they are ploughing the land
 With the ploughs made of silver.
3. In the battlefield where the furious Chozha king Senganan possessed spears galore and an army with the drum of victory showered arrows, the male elephants with their tusks ploughing up the land collapsed on the ground. This looked like the ploughing of the land with white silver ploughs.
41. வேனிறத் திங்க வயவரா லேறுண்டு
 கானிலங் கொள்ளாக் கலங்கிச் செவிசாய்த்து
 மாநிலங் கூறு மறைகேட்ப போன்றவே
 பாடா ரிடிமுரசிற் பாய்ப்புன வீர்நாடன்
 கூடாரை யட்ட களத்து.

vēṇirat tiṅka vayavarā lēruṇṭu kāṇilaṇ koḷḷāk kalāṅkic cēvicāyṭtu mānilaṇ kūru maraikēṭpa pōṇravē pāṭā riṭimuraciṛ pāypuna nīrnāṭaṇ
kūṭārai yaṭṭa kaḷattu.

1. In the field of battle
 Where the king of the land
 Of copious waters flowing,
 Of thundering drums resounding,
 Slaughtered his opposing enemies,
 Pierced in the breast
 With spears thrown
 By doughty warriors,
 The elephants
 Unable to stand Rolled on their sides
 Resting on their ears
 As if they were listening
 To the sacred truths Taught
 By Mother Earth.
2. In the battlefield, where Chengatcholan the red-eyed
 King of the Chola kingdom
 watered by the flowing waters of River Cauviri,
 Who has war-drum roaring like thunderbolt,
 has killed his enemies,
 The elephants with the piercing spears transfixed
 by the warriors into their breasts, being unable to set their feet firmly on the ground,
 Are lying and inkling their ears
 on one side in decumbence;
 It looks as if they hear the esoteric teaching imparted by the Goddess of Earth.
3. The javelins thrown by the warriors piercing their bodies, the elephants, getting stunned and unsteady in the legs fall to the ground, with their ears close to the earth. It looks as though they are listening to the hidden truths that Maiden Earth whispers into their ears!

களவழி நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

MUTARKURIPPAKARĀTI

களவழி நாற்பது
செய்யுள் முதற்குறிப்பகராதி
(எண்: செய்யுள் வரிசை எண்)

Mutarkurippakarāti

அஞ்சனக் குன்றேய்க்கும்	7	añcaṇak kunrēykkum
அரசர் பிணங்கான்ற	37	aracar piṇaṅkāṇra
ஆர்ப்பெழுந்த ஞாட்பினு	17	ārppelunta ñāṭpiṇu
இடைமருப்பின் விட்டெறிந்த	19	iṭaimaruppiṇ viṭṭerinta
இணரிய ஞாட்பினு	34	iṇariya ñāṭpiṇu
இணைவே லெழின்மருமத்	21	iṇaivē leḷiṇmarumat
இருசிறக ரீர்க்குப் பரப்பி	20	iruciṛaka rīrkkup parappi
இருநிலஞ் சேர்ந்த	22	irunilaṇ cērnta
உருவக் கடுந்தேர்	4	uruvak kaṭuntēr
எவ்வாயு மோடி	26	evvāyu mōṭi
எற்றி வயவ ரெறிய	23	eṇṇi vayava reṇiya
ஒழுக்குங் குருதி	3	oḷukkuṇ kuruti
ஒடி உவம னுறழ்வின்றி	36	ōo uvama nuraḷvinṇi
ஒடா மறவ	28	ōṭā maṛava
ஒடா மறவரெறிய	31	ōṭā maṛavareriya
ஒவாக் கணைபாய	12	ōvāk kaṇaipāya
கடிகாவிற் காற்றூற்	29	kaṭikāvir kārrur
கவளங்கொள் யானையின்	14	kavaḷaṅkoḷ yāṇaiyiṇ
கழுமிய ஞாட்பினுண்	11	kaḷumiya ñāṭpiṇuṇ
கொல்யானை பாயக்	15	kolyāṇai pāyak
செஞ்சேற்றுட் செல்யானை	27	ceñcērruṭ celyāṇai
செவ்வரைச் சென்னி	35	cevvaraic ceṇṇi
ஞாட்பினு ளெஞ்சிய	2	ñāṭpiṇu leñciya
திண்டோண் தறவ	24	tiṇṭōṇ tarava
தெரிகணை யெஃகத்	5	terikaṇai yeḱkan
நளிந்த கடலுட்	18	naḷinta kaḷaluṭ
நாண்ஞாயி றுற்ற செருவிற்கு	1	nāṇñāyi rurra ceruvirku

நானாற் றிசையும்
 நிரைகதிர் நீளெஃக
 பரும வினமாக்
 பருமப் பணையெருத்திற் பல்கணை யெவ்வாயும்
 பொய்கை யுடைந்து
 மடங்க வெறிந்து
 மலைகலங்கப் பாயு
 மேலோரைக் கீழோர்
 மைந்துகால் யாத்து
 மையின்மா மேனி
 யானைமேல் யானை
 வெள்ளிவெண் ணாஞ்சிலான்
 வேனிறத் திங்க வயவரா

6 nāṇār ricaiyum
 13 niraiḱatir nīlēkka
 16 paruma viṇamāk
 38 parumap paṇaiyeruttir
 10 palkaṇai yevvāyum
 33 poykai yuṭaintu
 30 maṭaṇka veṛintu
 25 malaikalaṇkap pāyu
 9 mēlōraik kīḷōr
 39 maintukāl yāttu
 32 maiyiṇmā mēṇi
 8 yāṇaimēl yāṇai
 40 veḷḷiven ṇāñcilāṇ
 41 vēṇiṛat tiṇka vayavarā

A GLOSSARY OF CULTURE SPECIFIC TERMS

(Prepared by Prof. N. Murugaiyan)

This glossary covers the culture specific terms found in the works, namely, Inna Nārpatu (IN), Iniyavai Nārpatu (Ini N), Kārnārpatu (KN) and Kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu (Kaḷa N). The abbreviations indicated within brackets are used along with the verse numbers for enabling the users' easy identification of the verses in the four different works.

- aimpālār* : Women who have dressed their hair in five modes or pleats IN 14
- aimpālāy* : By the five modes of dressing a woman's hair KN 11
- aitu ilaṅku* : Appearing handsome Kaḷa N 33
- aivāya vēṭkai* : The five types of desire emanating from senses connected with the body, mouth, eyes, nose and ears Ini N 25
- alavaṅkaṇ* : The eyes of the male crab KN 39
- amarpuṭaiyār* : Those who have the companionship Ini N 9
- ampi* : Wooden boats Kaḷa N 37
- añcaṇak kuṇru ēykkum* : Appearing like the blue hills Kaḷa N 7
- aṅkaṇvicumpiṇ* : The vast spaced picturesque sky. These words are found in one of the most memorable lines of the work aṅkaṇ vicumpiṇ akal nilā which means 'the full moon in the picturesque sky' Ini N 9
- antaṇar* : Brahman. But the word refers to those who are known for their graciousness or to those who chant the Vedas. The following lines from Tirumular's Tirumantiram refer to the same meaning : antaṇmai pūṇṭa arumaṇai yantattuc cintaicey yantaṇar Ini N 7
- aracu uvā* : The royal elephant with a frontlet. The Tamil Lexicon describes it as follows: with its four legs, sexual organ, trunk and tail touching the ground, with white toe-nails, seven cubits in height, nine cubits long and thirteen cubits in circumference, with the fore part of the body Kaḷa N 35

arimāṇ ḍṭu	: A hunting dog used for tracking lions Kaḷa N 35
ārtta	: One who got married IN 2
ārttu	: Raising a warrior's shout of triumph, joy, valor or defiance Kaḷa N 2
atarcenru	: Going round villages and towns asking for alms Ini N 11
atērpāruti	: That chariot's wheel Kaḷa N 4
aṭṭa kaḷattu	: A battlefield in which the king destroyed or killed enemies to conquer or subdue them, the term aṭukaḷam means Field of Battle Kaḷa N 1
āvḍṭu poṇṇītal	: Gifting gold in addition to a cow to a Brahman. This is considered to be the First Type of gift. Ini N 23
avvittu	: Bending one's mind Ini N 36
cakkarattāṇai	: The wheel-weapon wielding Vishnu, the husband of the goddess of Earth IN 1
calam	: Obstinacy Ini N 20
calavarai	: Deceitful person Ini N 20
cāru	: Festival Kaḷa N 17
cattiyāṇ	: The Lance armed God Muruga, the younger son of Siva and the lord of hilly regions IN 1
cekkar	: Reddish in color Kaḷa N 23
celcuṭar	: Moving sun Kaḷa N 4
celkalākātu	: Unable to move Kaḷa N 10
cēṇ	: Sky, distance, remoteness KN 31
ceṇkaṇmāl	: Māl is one of the names of the Cholas as they are the descendents of Vishnu or Thirumal. Kaḷa N 4
ceṇal	: Getting angry or enraged IN 4
ceṇṇaṅkoḷal	: Getting angry IN 37
cērtal	: Constantly thinking about Ini N 1
cevval kuṇṇam	: Red hill Kaḷa N 10
ceyyatu	: Covered with a red carpet Kaḷa N 32
ciṇaiyil	: Fenceless or without enclosure IN 5
ciral	: Kingfisher KN 36
cirṇṇāḷuṭaiyāṇ	: Those who have young soldiers under their control Ini N 38

cōṭu	: Sandal, cōṭu is the contracted form of cuvaṭu . Kaḷa N 9
curam	: Jungle KN 29
curampōtal	: Getting into the forest IN 12
eḱkam	: Spears Kala N 5
eḷil ḍṭai	: A beautiful frontlet for elephants Kaḷa N 31
eḷili	: Cloud KN 37
ellippolutu	: At night Ini N 34
ēmamil	: Unguarded or defenseless, with no fortified wall of protection for the safety of those who are within the enclosed fence IN 24
eṇ aṇiyā māntar	: Those who are not familiar with books on astrology IN 31
eṇilāṇ	: One who has not mastered arithmetic IN 16
ērkkai	: At the beginning of an agricultural season farmers get together to plough for the first time in the season on an auspicious day with appropriate ceremonies. This is also known as ponnēr (golden ploughshare) or nallēr (good ploughshare) KN 39
eruttu	: The navel, the back of the neck of an elephant Kaḷa N 38
eruvai	: Vultures Kaḷa N 20
ēvatu	: As deployed in service Ini N 3
evvam	: affliction, distress, fault, blemish KN 33
ikalaṇ	: A Jackal Kaḷa N 28
iḷaṅkiḷaimai	: Tenderness of offspring Ini N 3
iḷukkutal	: Lying severed Kaḷa N 3
inkulikam kunru	: Vermilion Hills. The elephants that look like blue hills become vermilion hills after moving around the battlefield. Kaḷa N 7
intin	: Datepalm, phoenix dockylifera KN 40
irunṅaṇ mū	: Dark clouds KN 12
iṭaṅkaliyāḷar	: One who passes beyond bounds overstepping the proper limit IN 11
iṭumpai	: Suffering or affliction or distress or calamity. According to Tamil Lexicon it is one of the eight

- evil dispositions such as kāmam, kurōtam, ulōpam, mōkam, matam, mārcariyam, iṭumpai, acūyai IN 6
- kaikaḷintu* : Leaving Ini N 29
- kaittinmai* : Having nothing in the hand. The Tamil word kaittu means 'That which is in hand. Gold, riches, wealth' Tamil Lexicon, p. 1105 IN 36
- kāl iṇitu* : Very sweet Ini N 40
- kālāmpi pōṇṇa* : Similar to the fang of a poisonous snake Kaḷa N 36
- kaḷarum* : Speaking fully understanding the nature of the hall of assembly Ini N 12
- kaḷattu* : In the field of battle Kaḷa N 1
- kaḷikaṣku* : Those in a state of intoxication after taking toddy. The word kaḷittal means being in a state of intoxication in the past. But it now refers to the state of being joyful. IN 9
- kaḷirrukkōṭu* : The horns or tuskers of a male elephant Kaḷa N 3
- kallātān* : One who has not learnt the art of riding on horseback IN 29
- kaḷumalam* : A place in the cērā country Kaḷa N 36
- kamañcūl* : Wateriness of clouds KN 37
- kaṇmāṇi* : Losing ground IN 4
- kaṇmūṇṇṭaiyān* : The three-eyed god is siva, having the eye of fire on his Forehead. His three eyes are often described as cōma (Moon), cūri (Sun) yākkiṇi (Fire). Inna N 1
- kaṇṇēr kaṭunṇaṇai* : Terrible arrows which are as sharp as women's eyes. It is the practice of poets to use the simile of arrows to describe women's eyes. Kaḷa N 8
- kārttikai* : Festival of lights placed at the gate and other parts of the house (Tamil Lexicon) KN 26
- kārttikai cāruil* : The festival of lamps celebrated in the eighth Hindu month kārttikai in honor of Skanta or Kārttikēyā. Kaḷa N 17
- karumpu* : Sugarcane, saccharum officinarum, a tropical crop with tall thick stems from which sugar is extracted IN 5
- karuvaṇikālam* : Dark rain bearing clouds frequented rainy season KN 34

karuvi	: A column of army IN 4
karuviḷai	: A wild creeper with dark blue flowers, clitoria ternatea, KN 9
katam	: The fiercely fought battle Ini N 8
kavarriṇāl	: Using dice (for playing a game), The Tamil word kavaru means a die IN 25.
kavvai	: Scandal, slander KN 28
kēḷir iḷantār	: Women who have lost their husbands in war Kaḷa N 29
kiḷamaiyuṭaiyār	: Those who have the right or authority IN 27
kolkaḷiru	: Slayed War-elephants Kaḷa N 30
kōlkōṭi	: Sceptre becoming dented in the case of a king who fails to render Justice. But, In the verse under reference, the partiality of someone is referred to. Ini N 5
kōṇḍay puraiyum	: Jackals appearing like hunting dogs Kaḷa N 34
koṅkarai	: People belonging to the koṅku, the ancient country governed by the Seran dynasty on the Western coast. Kaḷa N 14
koṇmū	: The cloud Kaḷa N 23
kōṭal	: Taking or receiving Ini N 27
kōṭṭuyar pāyṭal	: To jump off the tall tree branch IN 30
koṭumpāṭu uṭaiyār	: One who is cruel-minded or endowed with perversity IN 6
koṭuṅkōl	: A crooked scepter representing tyrannous rule as opposed to a right scepter, ceṅkōl IN 3
koycuvaṇmā	: A horse with trimmed hair Kaḷa N 33
kukkil puratta	: The exterior of a red bird centropus rufipennis Kaḷa N 5
kumiḷiṇ pū	: The flower of Coomb teak KN 28
kumpattup pāyvaṇa	: Pounced on the forehead of an elephant Kaḷa N 16
kuṇicaram	: An elephant KN 12
kuṇiyariyān	: One who knows nothing about the art of snake charming IN 29
kūrram	: Yama, the god of death, considered to be one of

- the protectors of the world along with Indra, Fire, wind etc Ini N 28
- kurukilai* : White fig leaf, Ficus Virens Ait KN 27
- maintar* : Soldiers Kaḷa N 34
- maintikantār* : Those who have lost strength Kaḷa N 11
- mākkolai* : Not allowing an animal caught in the cross current of water from saving itself is an offence. IN 33
- malartalai* : Vast spaced Ini N 20
- māṇamaḷintapiṇ* : After losing one's dignity or self-respect Ini N 13
- māṇātām āyiṇ* : If it turns out to be worthless. Ini N 2
- maṇil* : A black paste smeared on the head of a drum to increase its resonance Tamil Lexicon, University of Madras, P. 3170
- mānilam* : Broad land Kaḷa N 40
- maṇiyilāk kuṇṇicaram* : An elephant with no bells attached to its saddle. There is an adage in Tamil that goes as follows: The sound of bell comes first and the elephant comes later on. IN 13
- maññai* : Peacock (KN 4)
- maṇṇiṇ* : In the open space that serves as the hall of assembly Ini N 18
- maṇai* : Words of advice Kaḷa N 40
- maṇamaṇṇar* : The king who has killing as his occupation IN 3
- māṇramariyāṇ* : One who is unable to comprehend the constituent parts of words IN 7
- marumattu* : On the chest, a vital part of the body Kaḷa N 21
- mayarikaḷ* : People whose minds are in a state of confusion or bewildered people Ini N 21
- mēvār* : Enemies or foes Kaḷa N 25
- mīḷimai* : Prowess IN 40
- mīṇ* : This Tamil word that refers to fish is presented as mīṇam in Sanskrit with the same meaning according to N.M. Venkatasamy Nattar, p. 13, Kaḷavaḷi, 1966, Kaḷa N 7
- moympu* : Shoulder Kaḷa N 30
- mukam nāṇkuṭaiyāṇ* : Brahma, the lotus-born son of Vishnu, is a four-faced

god. He is worshipped 'as creator, progenitor or evolver of the worlds and creatures' of the universe KN 1

- mukkaṇ pakavaṇ* : The three-eyed god Sivā, having the third eye, the eye of fire, on his forehead. Siva, one having the color of fire, one of the chief gods of the triad with a special function of destruction. IN 1
- mukkōṭṭa pōṇra kaḷirellām* : The elephants with three horns, two tuskers and a spear thrown at them getting stuck in between the tusks Kaḷa N 19
- murukiyam* : A drum used in the hilly tracts. It is played in temples dedicated to Muruka, the Younger son of Siva and Parvati KN 27
- muttērmuṇvalār* : Girls or women having pearl-like teeth. It is a common practice among Tamil poets to use a pearl simile to describe women's teeth. Ini N. 1
- mutumakkaḷ* : The learned or wise Ini N 19
- nacai* : Desire Ini N 26
- nakkum pāmpu* : It is generally believed by people that there is some enmity between the moon and the snake. The snake that licks the moon is responsible for the lunar eclipse. According to Hindu mythology, the total lunar eclipse taking place is caused by the swallowing of the moon by the snake. Kaḷa N 22
- nalcavaiyil* : In a renowned hall of assembly, The Sanskrit word capā becoming capai in Tamil first and got changed to cavai as per an easy interchange of pa and va available in Tamil Phonology Ini N 1
- nalkūra* : The hot rays of the sun weakening KN 2
- namar* : Our lord KN 37
- nāṇ ṇāyirū* : Morning time with the rising of the sun Kaḷa N 1
- nāṇappaṭal* : Getting humiliated IN 15
- nāñcil vaḷavaṇ* : Balaraman, an elder brother of Krishna, known for having his ploughshare as his war-weapon KN 19
- ñāṇkar* : At all sides: above, on, over KN 29
- naṅkāṭalar* : Our lord KN 35

- nārāmai* : To sprout IN 19
- nāriṇmai* : Being loveless IN 8
- nārṛam ilāta* : Having no fragrance IN 7
- ñāṭṭiṇ uḷ* : Inside the columns of an army Kaḷa N 2
- nērārai* : Enemies Kaḷa N 9
- neyttōr* : Floods of blood Kaḷa N 37
- nilāk kāṇṇiṇitē* : It is indeed a pleasure to witness the full the moon of the vast spaced picturesque sky Ini N 9
- nilameṇum nallavaḷ* : The earth called lady. Earth is treated as woman by the Tamil as well as by the other linguistics groups in India. Terms such as pūmā tēvi, nilamaṭantai referring to earth will serve as illustration to the statement made above. Kaḷa N 32
- niṛaimāṇpuil* : A woman devoid of chastity Ini N 10
- nīrmiṭṭā* : Water-tank Kaḷa N 27
- nīrṭtūmpu* : Sluice Kaḷa N 2
- niruti* : One of the eight protectors of the world as found in the following list : Indra, Fire, Wind, Rains, Niruthi, regent of the south-west, Kuperan, lord of the north and Isanan, Siva, the lord of the north. Ini N. 30
- ollum tuṇaiyum* : As far as possible Ini N 24
- oḷukkum* : The transitive verb form of oḷukum which is intransitive. Kaḷa N 3
- ōmpāviṭal* : Leaving unprotected IN 17
- orḱam* : Losing mind power Ini N 39
- orriṇāṇ* : By the spies or secret agents or emissaries Ini N 35
- ōṭṭilā* : Not in the habit of chanting Vedas IN 21
- ōṭṭu* : Making a retreat showing one's back in a field of battle IN 8
- ōṭṭu uṭaimai* : Not forgetting the Vedas. As it is chanted ōṭappaṭutaliṇ, it has become ōṭṭu the veda or sacred writing. Ini N 7
- pacalai* : Greenishness of complexion owing to love sickness KN 4
- pakal pōlum neṇcam* : The mind as clear as the sun IN 8
- paḷḷiyil* : Like the places Kaḷa N 15

pālpaṭum	: Bestowing a large quantum of milk Ini N 38
paṇai	: Bamboo. A woman's shoulder is often compared with the bamboo. Ini N 37
paṇai	: Grown big Kaḷa N 38
pañcicey	: Pouring reddish curry inside Kaḷa N 39
paṇil	: Saddleless. Riding a horse that has no saddle is painful. IN 9
pantam	: Bond, relatives IN 1
parippu	: A burden IN 9
pariyārkkū	: To those who show no loving kindness towards one IN 26
parumam	: Saddle The words parumam , paṇ , kallaṇai are all synonyms same meaning according to N.M. Venkatasamy Nattar p. 13 kaḷavaḷi Nārpatu , Saiva Siddhanta Works Publishing Society Limited, Tinnevely Madras, Kaḷa N 16, 38
pati iruntu	: From the home town Ini N 40
pātiri	: Yellow-flowered fragrant trumpet flower, one of the eight kinds of flowers used for daily worship, bignonia chelonoides KN 3
pāttu uṇal	: Sharing food with those in the southern country IN 21
pāttuil	: With no folding IN 2
pāṭṭuraittal	: Saying whatever one wants to say in a verse composed IN 10
pāṭu ār	: With a roaring sound Kaḷa N 41
pauvam	: Sea Kaḷa N 37, KN 17
pavar	: A creeper KN 29
payamoli	: Useful words Ini N 6
penṇaiyantōṭṭam	: A palm orchard Kaḷa N 24
peruviral vāṇam	: The sky is celebrated as a giver and taker. The sky that sends showers to the earth is the giver and while it absorbs water from the sea it is the taker. That is why it is described as 'big fingered sky'. KN 34
pētai peru maṭam	: Lady love's simplicity KN 30
peṭṭavai	: All that one is fond of Ini N 22
piḷirāmai	: Not getting angry Ini N 39

- piṭi* : A female elephant KN 38
- piṭitta paṭai* : Hand-held war weapon IN 7
- pollāṅku* : Wickedness Ini N 5
- poṅkarum* : Orchards KN 29
- poṇṇaivaḷḷai* : The white complexioned Balarāma who has the palm tree as flag IN 1
- pulai uḷḷi* : Desirous of eating flesh, fish, meat etc IN 12
- pulcēval* : Simple Kite-cock Kaḷa N 26
- pullārai* : Enemies Kaḷa N 4
- puṇaiṇṇi* : Without a float IN 3
- purāṅkūrutal* : Speaking ill of a person while he is not present by making a false or malicious statement. Ini N 19
- puṭavai* : Clothing or dress of women. It will also refer to the dress of men. IN 2
- pūval kuṇṇam* : A hillock formed by red earth Kaḷa N 12
- takaintaṇa* : Blossomed KN 19
- tālam* : Earthen dish Kaḷa N 39
- taḷavam* : Golden Jasmine, Jasmine humile KN 36
- taḷiriya* : As soft as the tender leaf. A woman's skin is often compared to a tender leaf. Ini N 37
- taṇmaiylāḷar* : Those who are mean-natured. The sweet-natured are kind even to their enemies while the mean-natured are known for harming even their best friends. That is why the enmity of mean-natured must be avoided at all costs. Na Mu Venkatasamy Nattar in his edition of Nānārpatu, p. 28 Inna Nārpatu, The South India Saiva Siddhantha Nūrpatippukkaḷakam, Madras, 1966 IN 31
- tannaittāṇ pōrrutal* : Safeguarding one's own self is nothing but having control over one's mind, language used and senses deployed in one's day-to-day life IN 32
- tantirattiṇ* : As per the norms prescribed in treatises Ini N 18
- tariyariyāṇ* : Without knowing what sort of obstruction is at the bottom or middle of the water in a river or a tank IN 29
- taruṇmai* : Boastfulness IN 13

taṭumār̥ram	: The restlessness caused by poverty and other things IN 3
tēriṇ	: If examined Ini N 3
teruḷvī	: A creeper garden KN 25
tevvēntarai	: Enemy kings Kaḷa N 6
timil	: A boat in the sea Kaḷa N 18
tiripin̄ri	: With no aberration of mind Ini N 22
tirumāl	: Vishnu is the preserver, who furnishes each soul with its allotted portion of joys, sorrows, as the results of former actions. He is a sea-water like complexioned god who is the brother of Indra. He took the bow of his brother and placed it vertically for preventing the pouring of rains. KN 1
tiruvil	: The bow of Indra, king of the Devas, lord of the clouds, rain, season, crops and worshipped at the seasons of sowing and reaping KN 1
tōṇri	: Red species of Malabar glory-lily Tamil Lexicon KN 26
tuḷāymālaiyāṇ	: God Vishnu who has worn the garland made of holy basil, Ocimum Grattissimum , tuḷaci 'The basil is a fragrant herb held in veneration by the Hindus, which is said to be female metamorphosed (Tamil Lexicon)'. There are several varieties of basil found in various parts of the country, some of them are sacred to Siva while others are sacred to Vishnu Ini N 1
tūṅkum	: Hanging IN 14
tun̄ṇārai	: Enemies Kaḷa N 38
tuṭakkam	: Effort IN 40
uḷai	: Hair plume made of Yak's (Bos Grunniens) on a horse's head KN 22
ūṇam koṇṭāṭār	: Those who are not magnifying lapses Ini N 27
uḷaicēr	: To reside or dwell IN5
ūrum	: Directing the horse mounting its saddle IN 29
urum meṇi	: Thunder struck Kaḷa N 13
uṭarriyār	: The infuriating enemy Kaḷa N 18
uṭkil	: While estimating Ini N 26
utai	: The cold wind KN 30

uvaṇattil	: Like the white headed kite Kaḷa N 26
vāḷumatar	: A way that has been put to active use by the terrible tigers IN 30
vañcikkō	: A town of the cēra country, now applied to one in the Coimbatore district, commonly Karuvūr Kaḷa N 39
vaṭuviṭai	: Tender mango fruit divided into two parts KN 6
vāyppuṭaiyār	: Those who are endowed with literacy, wealth, authority and masculinity Ini N 6
vēḷam	: An elelphant, KN 38
vēḷāṇmai	: Saving others from suffering IN 36
veṇumpuṇam	: The unsaddled back of a horse, particularly a war elephant IN 38
yāṇaiyiṇ kai	: An elephant's trunk, the elongated prehensile nasal part Kaḷa N 14
yātta naṭpu	: Friendship forged IN 11

